NO BLANK CHECK

Ellender Says Federal Budget Can Be Trimmed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP) — Sen. Ellender (D-La) said tonight he will fight any efforts to give the Pentagon a blank check for missiles, satellites or other new weapons.

"Merely pouring money into our defense program will not automatically work miracles," said Ellender, a member of the Appropriations Committee.

A Republican on the committee. Sen. Dworshak of Idaho, also took a swing at statements that Congress has been niggardly in voting funds for missiles, aircraft and other defense hardware.

"Much testimony before congressional committee hearings is seeking to create this false premise," Dworshak said in a statement.

Rap Witnesses

"American security will be jeopardized and national preparedness undermined by spokesmen of industry and science who contend that inadequate appropriations are responsible for the lack of progress in the field of preparedness.

Both senators referred to Senate and House inquiries as to why Russia was able to put up the first orbiting satellites and what the United States must do about it.

Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex) will resume the Senate's satellite-missile inquiry Monday with Navy witnesses testifying behind closed doors.

His Defense Preparedness subcommittee will hear two World War II military leaders Tuesday, Adm. Chester Nimitz of the Navy and Gen. Carl Spaatz of the Air Force. It may wind up the present phase of hearings Wednesday with testimony by Secretary of Defense McElroy.

To Resume

A similar inquiry by the House Armed Services Committee will resume Tuesday.

Ellender, criticizing President Eisenhower's new 74-billion-dollar budget, said a big savings in defense outlays could come from tighter unification of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

"First and foremost, we must end the duplication of effort in the senseless battle that has been going on between the three armed services," he said in a recorded radio address (WWL, New Orleans).

"It is a sad indictment of the President, who, himself, is a military leader, that the Russians had to fire a satellite ahead of us before he woke up to what was going on in his own household," he said.

"As commander in chief, he can end that rivalry tomorrow if he wishes, or, for that matter, he could have ended it last year or the day he was sworn in as President."

Ellender said no new legislation is needed.

Air Defense Work Guided By Holaday

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Defense Department, in a move to head off new inter - service rivalry, announced Saturday that missiles director William M. Holaday will coordinate Air Force and Army work in "urgently" building a defense against enemy missiles.

The statement followed publication of a memorandum by Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy which assigned the Air Force and Army dual responsibility for detecting and knocking down 15,000-mile-an-hour rocket bombs.

McElroy's directive ordered the Air Force to work out a system for spotting the invading missiles and the Army to develop a missile capable of destroying them.

Will Coordinate Efforts

Holaday will coordinate the services' work until the new Advance Research Projects Agency (ARPA) starts operating, the statement said.

ARPA is to direct research and development of futuristic space weapons as well as satellites and anti-missile weapons projects.

The Pentagon said the Air Force will "continue as a matter of urgency to concentrate" on development of its "wizard" radar detection system.

The Army "is to continue its current development effort" on its Nike-Zeus anti-missile missile.

Must Approve Major Changes

The Pentagon said the Army also is to concentrate on developing a system to "demonstrate the feasibility of achieving an effective defense against the ICBM."

On the touchy subject of rivalry between the two services, which Holaday must now resolve, the statement said "both services are

Passman Lashes At Swift Halting Of Soil Sign-Up

Congressman Otto E. Passman has branded the abrupt cutoff of the cotton farmers signup in the soil bank program as "wholly contrary to assurances which had been given farmers that there would be ample time for them to file applications."

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson has received a vigorous protest against the halt of signups, through the congressman's Washington office.

Noting that areas such as North Louisiana, which suffered crop disaster conditions last fall, should "receive some special consideration in the soil bank allocations," Passman blasted the recent action, which prohibits cotton farmers from placing land in the acreage reserve portion of the soil bank program.

The surprise cut-off was explained by Benson as necessary to avoid going into the red on the 500 million surplus control program. The only previous limitations was a $3,000 ceiling on the soil bank payment to any one farm.

Endorsing any government proposals which would permit increased farm production with reduced government controls, Passman said the Administration's "political" request to raise and lower farm price supports at will could create havoc in the agricultural economy.

Delta Queen Faces Uncertain Future

By JOE McDavid

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 18 (UP)—The Delta Queen, final link to the romantic era of river boat gamblers and sprawling cotton plantations, today faced an uncertain future.

The luxurious four-deck steamer, built in the roaring '20's at a cost of one million dollars, is the last of the Mississippi river passenger sternwheelers.

For the past 10 years, the Delta Queen has been carrying passengers on unhurried trips downriver to New Orleans at Mardi Gras time.

The Delta Queen was put up for sale Thursday.

Old Days Gone

Mrs. Letha Greene of Cincinnati, Ohio, the owner, said few people are interested nowadays in leisurely river boat trips.

Though she is the last of the old-time sternwheelers, the Delta Queen has no actual link with the turbulent days when gamblers rode the river boats and Negro slaves labored to load river packets with cotton.

The Queen was built in Scotland and shipped piece-by-piece to California, where she was assembled in 1927.

Naughty Nights

For 20 years, she was operated as a luxury steamer on the Sacramento river. Care-free trips in the California manner, and stories of naughty nights about the Queen with liquor bottles bobbing in her wake are a part of the legend of the Golden Gate land.

U.S. May Put Space Issue Before U.N.

Seeks To Keep Initiative Now Believed Held

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP) — The United States may throw into the United Nations soon President Eisenhower's proposal for an international pact to ban outer space warfare. This could lead to direct American-Soviet talks on the issue.

Use of the United Nations is one of the steps reported under serious consideration at the State Department for carrying forward East-West moves toward a summit conference.

Secretary of State Dulles and his advisers believe the United States has gained the initiative on this issue during the last week. They would like to keep it. Some concede privately they will fail to do so if they merely sit back and wait for Premier Bulganin to reply to President Eisenhower's message last Sunday in which he conditionally agreed to a top-level conference.

Steps Considered

Among the steps under consideration are introduction of the outer space control proposal in the United Nations in some manner not yet worked out, the use of diplomatic channels between Russia and the Western powers to begin exploratory exchanges on summit conference issues, more detailed talks with America's allies on precisely how to approach a top-level meeting, and what meeting, and what practical objectives to seek there.

In the policy studies within the State Department, suggestions have included calling a special

Spain Halts Attempts At Red Revival

MADRID, Jan. 18 (AP) — The government announced today a plot to revive the Communist party in Spain has been uncovered with the arrest of 44 persons in three major cities.

The director general of public security said many were university students and all had confessed. They are being held for trial.

The announcement said they hoped to spread "confusion and disorientation" among the people with protests against the rising cost of living.

Rounded Up

Police rounded up 27 in Madrid, 13 in Zaragoza in northern Spain, and 4 at Valencia on the east coast. The United States has its largest air base in Spain outside Madrid. Another is at Zaragoza.

Most prominent among those arrested is Javier Pradera Cortazar, husband of the daughter of Rafael Sanchez Mazas. Mazas is the prime philosopher of the Falange, Spain's only legal party. Pradera Cortazar also is a nephew of the Spanish ambassador in Damascus, Syria.

Pradera Cortazar was one of seven arrested in February, 1956 as a ringleader in rioting at Madrid University and an attack on Falange party headquarters. The students demanded greater freedoms.

There were reports at the time that Pradera Cortazar and the Indian Horde Shoots Up N. Carolina Klan Meet

4 Wounded By Shotgun, Rifle Fire

The Indians, apparently well-organized, fired shotguns, rifles and pistols for nearly half an hour before a squad of North Carolina state troopers arrived to rescue the Klansmen.

The Klansmen, themselves armed with shotguns, apparently did not return the fire. Only four persons were known to have been wounded despite the firing of thousands of rounds of ammunition.

The troopers, arriving at a battleground completely in darkness, used tear gas to disperse the Indians, but many of them had already left before the police force arrived.

The riot climaxed a week of rumblings in Robeson County, home of some 30,000 Indians of the Lumbee tribe. Their people have lived in this area for centuries.

The resentment of the Indians stemmed from two recent cross-burnings in the county. One of them was burned in the driveway of a home at St. Pauls last Monday night, reportedly as a warning to an Indian woman to stop dating a white man.

The second was burned at East Lumberton, where an Indian family moved into a white neighborhood.

Earlier in the week the Klan announced through handbills it would hold a rally near this south-central North Carolina community, which has a large Indian population. Indian leaders had spent the week urging their people to ignore the rally.

But hundreds of them already had congregated in a field across the road from the rally site long before tonight's rally was supposed to begin.

Shortly before 7 p.m., about a dozen hooded Klansmen arrived at the rally sight. They carried shotguns. They set about putting up a microphone, a rag-wrapped

Second Oldest Senator Dies From Cancer

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Matthew M. Neely, acid-tongued veteran of the political wars, died of cancer Saturday after a 15-month illness.

The West Virginia Democrat, at 83, was the second oldest member of the Senate.

The Republicans will gain a seat in the Senate. West Virginia's governor, Cecil Underwood who will appoint Neely's successor, is a Republican. The lineup then will be 49 Democrats and 47 Republicans.

The once-fiery senator was a frail invalid in his last public appearance, Jan. 7. He rode in an ambulance from Bethesda Naval Medical Center that day to attend, in a wheel chair, the opening session of Congress.

Ike Salutes Foe

He died at the naval hospital at 9:00 a.m., CST. An official announcement said, "after a protracted illness from malignancy."

President Eisenhower, whom Nelly had frequently criticized, sent a telegram of sympathy to Mrs. Nelly and issued a statement.

"As a member of the House of Representatives, governor of West Virginia, and as a senator, Mr. Neely served his state and country faithfully for many years," the President said. "Mrs. Eisenhower and I extend our heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Neely and her family in the great personal loss they have sustained."

Neely's Republican colleague from West Virginia, Sen. Chapman Revercomb, said that "while we belonged to different political parties our personal relationship as senators was friendly and cordial... the people of West Virginia mourn the passing of their distinguished fellow citizen and statesman."

In his 35 years in Congress—nearly 25 of them in the Senate—Neely was one of the most colorful figures on Capitol Hill.

His oratory was legendary—sharp and biting in criticism, flowery in eulogy, but always flavored with scriptual and literary quotations.

Tavern Operator Slays 19-Year-Old

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 18 (AP)—A tavern operator at nearby Boutte shot a 19-year-old youth to death today in what police called an attempted burglary and officers captured the youth's accomplice several hours later at a motel here.

Officers said William L. Ely of New Orleans died of 12-gauge shotgun wounds.

Leslie Laque, operator of the tavern 15 miles west of New Orleans, told officers he surprised Ely and his companion as they attempted to break into his tavern. Laque said he also fired at the companion who fled in an auto.

State police said Jennings P. Campbell, 22, admitted trying to break into the Laque tavern with Ely. Campbell was not wounded.

Laque said he had installed a burglar alarm system at his tavern after he was robbed several times last year and lost more than $2,500.

FOR AREA FARMERS

Emergency Credit Assist Is Sought

Louisiana Delta Council Manager Harvey P. Grant Jr. of Delhi is flying to Washington today to press for emergency credit assistance for area farmers.

Grant is to meet Tuesday with Farm Credit Administration heads, Department of Agriculture officials, Congressional leaders and other top heads to discuss obtaining the relief.

Approximately $7-million may be available to persons in the area, if legislation creating a special $200 - million fund goes through.

Senators Eastland, Fulbright, Symington and Kefauver introduced legislation Jan. 9 to create the special loan, fund. The money would be available for farmers and their suppliers for disaster resulting from excessive rainfall, such as was experienced in 1957.

Included in the disaster area are the parishes of Caldwell, Catahoula, Concordia, East Carroll, Franklin, Madison, Morehouse, Ouachita, Richland, Tensas and West Carroll, Grant said.

These senators will also introduce another bill to extend small business administration loans to small businessmen in these areas who have been hit financially by the 1957 crop losses.

These loans will be entirely sep-

Candidate Search For '59 Starts

By JAMES MCLEAN

BATON ROUGE, Jan. 18 (AP)—Rep. Claude Kirkpatrick, an anti-administration voice, and two of Gov. Earl Long's leaders, Sen. B. B. Rayburn and highway director R. B. Richardson, are drawing new attention today as 1959 possibilities for governor.

However, they don't have the field to themselves. Shake a big tree near any large gathering of people in Louisiana these days and a dozen potential candidates will tumble out.

Traditionally, the mid - term Legislature, in this case the 1958 session in May, is the political setting for would-be candidates to come out in the open.

The session represents a sort of feeling out period. Candidacies don't crystalize until a year later. This time it may be different because the vote comes earlier, in December , 1959, rather than January, 1960.

Rate Attention

Kirkpatrick, Rayburn and Richardson, either by talk in political quarters or by their own actions or by their own words, are rating attention.

"The tall, black-haired Jefferson Davis representative, who has performed capable fiscal chores for both the administration of Gov. Long and former Gov. Robert Kennon, is traveling about the state telling people he is interested. That is definite.

To questions, Kirkpatrick simply declined to confirm or deny reports are true.

On more than one occasion, Kirkpatrick has offered fiscal advice to state administration. Fiscal problems are becoming a prime issue in Louisiana. Long may select Kirkpatrick on his budget committee, to add a non-partisan tone.

Kirkpatrick is not new to statewide politics. He served as state campaign manager for New Or-

Tot Survives Big Dose Of Kerosene

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 18—UP—One-year-old Freddie Miller drank what doctors said could have been a lethal dose of kerosene, but he lived to smile about it.

Charity hospital attendants said the blond haired blue eyed son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Miller of Jackson, La., laughed and smiled today on his mother's lap.

The roly-poly baby was playing near his father yesterday as Miller painted the front porch of their home. Freddie grabbed an opened can of kerosene and drank.

Arkansans may also expect cloudy skies today and tomorrow with rain tomorrow.

One Airman Dies; 1 Hurt At Shreveport

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 18 (AP)—One Air Force officer died and his co-pilot was injured today when their jet airplane crashed and burned 12 miles north of here.

The Air Force witheld identification of the dead pending notification of his family. His body remained in the fiery wreckage of the TF102A, a two-place trainer fighter.

First Lt. John R. Disheroon, about 34, of Wichita Falls, Tex., who received back, leg and internal injuries, was pulled from the fire by two brothers who watched the crash from their parents' plantation nearby.

Rushed To Plane

W.C. Sentell Jr., of Baton Rouge, said he and his brother, Billy, jumped into a car and rushed to the crashed plane.

"When we drove up the lieutenant had jumped from the cockpit and was lying by the side of the plane," Sentell said. "Fire was already licking up all around the cockpit containing the other man and we couldn't get to him. We pulled the lieutenant to safety."

Disheroon, bundled in blankets and given first aid by a physician who happened to pass, said the aircraft had "four or five explosions."

"We stock cocked the engine and tried to start it again but couldn't," he said. "We tried to find a field to put her in, but didn't have much luck."

The plane cleared a stand of trees, Disheroon said, but when the pilot attempted to pull the nose up to level off, the aircraft stalled and crashed into the open field near highway 71.

Over Half - Mile

Wreckage was strewn along a half-mile path before the plane ground to a halt in the rain-soaked field.

"God, it was a rough impact when we hit," Disheroon said. "After the plane stopped, I jabbed

MODELS, STARLETS

Call-Girl Ring In Paris Broken UP

PARIS, Jan. 18 (AP) — French police announced today they have broken up a plush call-girl racket which offered its clients models, movie starlets, and housewives needing a spot of cash.

News that the police had 250 of the girls' names, with photos, sent a shiver up the spine of the Paris demimonde, which sensed a first class scandal. But police said the names would not be released — only kept on file.

The case came to light when charges were placed against Gabrielle Bellerot for what the French call "proxenetisme" — procuring.

"La Belle Gabrielle" — admitting to 48 years, though some ungallantly said she is 52 — once operated a celebrated house of her own in the swank Champs Elysees area, the police prefecture said. When such activities were outlawed in 1946 she found herself out of business.

So, from her apartment near the Arc de Triomphe, she set to work with her telephone, police said. For a fee, ranging up to $50 or more depending on one thing and another, Mme. Bellerot would provide clients with a series of photos from which to choose, arrange the rendezvous, and even provide quiet, but temporary, lodgings.

She did well, frequenting the best Paris fashion houses, sporting mink coats and enough jewelry to attract attention.

Questioning some of the girls involved, police came up with the statement that anyone who dealt with the madame had to furnish guarantees of "discretion and honor." The gendarmes said some of the names on La Belle Gabrielle's list were familiar but that many came as complete surprises.

Crossett Youth's Death In Shooting Ruled Accidental

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) —A verdict of accidental death was rendered by a coroner's jury last night in the shooting yesterday of Griffin Miller, 17 - year - old Crossett High School senior.

The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Miller, and three other Crossett seniors, Patrick Morgan "Sonny" Gray, son of Mrs. Frank Richardson; David Calhoun, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Calhoun, and Mallory Jeffress, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Jeffress, were target shooting, authorities said.

The boys told the jury that Gray had just finished firing his .22 pistol at a target, and that as he turned around the gun accidently went off again, with the bullet hitting Miller in the side.

Dead On Arrival

They said Miller took two or three steps and slumped to the ground. The boys took him to the Crossett Health Center where he was pronounced dead on arrival. The incident occurred at 4:30 p.m. yesterday.

Miller was a member of the high school Press Club; Quill and Scroll, the national honorary writing society, and the science club.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP) — The United States may throw into the United Nations soon President Eisenhower's proposal for an international pact to ban outer space warfare. This could lead to direct American-Soviet talks on the issue.

Use of the United Nations is one of the steps reported under serious consideration at the State Department for carrying forward East-West moves toward a summit conference.

Secretary of State Dulles and his advisers believe the United States has gained the initiative on this issue during the last week. They would like to keep it. Some concede privately they will fail to do so if they merely sit back and wait for Premier Bulganin to reply to President Eisenhower's message last Sunday in which he conditionally agreed to a top-level conference.

Steps Considered

Among the steps under consideration are introduction of the outer space control proposal in the United Nations in some manner not yet worked out, the use of diplomatic channels between Russia and the Western powers to begin exploratory exchanges on summit conference issues, more detailed talks with America's allies on precisely how to approach a top-level meeting, and what meeting, and what practical objectives to seek there.

In the policy studies within the State Department, suggestions have included calling a special

Spain Halts Attempts At Red Revival

MADRID, Jan. 18 (AP) — The government announced today a plot to revive the Communist party in Spain has been uncovered with the arrest of 44 persons in three major cities.

The director general of public security said many were university students and all had confessed. They are being held for trial.

The announcement said they hoped to spread "confusion and disorientation" among the people with protests against the rising cost of living.

Rounded Up

Police rounded up 27 in Madrid, 13 in Zaragoza in northern Spain, and 4 at Valencia on the east coast. The United States has its largest air base in Spain outside Madrid. Another is at Zaragoza.

Most prominent among those arrested is Javier Pradera Cortazar, husband of the daughter of Rafael Sanchez Mazas. Mazas is the prime philosopher of the Falange, Spain's only legal party. Pradera Cortazar also is a nephew of the Spanish ambassador in Damascus, Syria.

Pradera Cortazar was one of seven arrested in February, 1956 as a ringleader in rioting at Madrid University and an attack on Falange party headquarters. The students demanded greater freedoms.

There were reports at the time that Pradera Cortazar and the Second Oldest Senator Dies From Cancer

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Matthew M. Neely, acid-tongued veteran of the political wars, died of cancer Saturday after a 15-month illness.

The West Virginia Democrat, at 83, was the second oldest member of the Senate.

The Republicans will gain a seat in the Senate. West Virginia's governor, Cecil Underwood who will appoint Neely's successor, is a Republican. The lineup then will be 49 Democrats and 47 Republicans.

The once-fiery senator was a frail invalid in his last public appearance, Jan. 7. He rode in an ambulance from Bethesda Naval Medical Center that day to attend, in a wheel chair, the opening session of Congress.

Ike Salutes Foe

He died at the naval hospital at 9:00 a.m., CST. An official announcement said, "after a protracted illness from malignancy."

President Eisenhower, whom Nelly had frequently criticized, sent a telegram of sympathy to Mrs. Nelly and issued a statement.

"As a member of the House of Representatives, governor of West Virginia, and as a senator, Mr. Neely served his state and country faithfully for many years," the President said. "Mrs. Eisenhower and I extend our heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Neely and her family in the great personal loss they have sustained."

Neely's Republican colleague from West Virginia, Sen. Chapman Revercomb, said that "while we belonged to different political parties our personal relationship as senators was friendly and cordial... the people of West Virginia mourn the passing of their distinguished fellow citizen and statesman."

In his 35 years in Congress—nearly 25 of them in the Senate—Neely was one of the most colorful figures on Capitol Hill.

His oratory was legendary—sharp and biting in criticism, flowery in eulogy, but always flavored with scriptual and literary quotations.

Tavern Operator Slays 19-Year-Old

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 18 (AP)—A tavern operator at nearby Boutte shot a 19-year-old youth to death today in what police called an attempted burglary and officers captured the youth's accomplice several hours later at a motel here.

Officers said William L. Ely of New Orleans died of 12-gauge shotgun wounds.

Leslie Laque, operator of the tavern 15 miles west of New Orleans, told officers he surprised Ely and his companion as they attempted to break into his tavern. Laque said he also fired at the companion who fled in an auto.

Laque said he had installed a burglar alarm system at his tavern after he was robbed several times last year and lost more than $2,500.

FOR AREA FARMERS

Emergency Credit Assist Is Sought

Louisiana Delta Council Manager Harvey P. Grant Jr. of Delhi is flying to Washington today to press for emergency credit assistance for area farmers.

Grant is to meet Tuesday with Farm Credit Administration heads, Department of Agriculture officials, Congressional leaders and other top heads to discuss obtaining the relief.

Approximately $7-million may be available to persons in the area, if legislation creating a special $200 - million fund goes through.

Senators Eastland, Fulbright, Symington and Kefauver introduced legislation Jan. 9 to create the special loan, fund. The money would be available for farmers and their suppliers for disaster resulting from excessive rainfall, such as was experienced in 1957.

Included in the disaster area are the parishes of Caldwell, Catahoula, Concordia, East Carroll, Franklin, Madison, Morehouse, Ouachita, Richland, Tensas and West Carroll, Grant said.

These senators will also introduce another bill to extend small business administration loans to small businessmen in these areas who have been hit financially by the 1957 crop losses.

These loans will be entirely sep-

Candidate Search For '59 Starts

By JAMES MCLEAN

BATON ROUGE, Jan. 18 (AP)—Rep. Claude Kirkpatrick, an anti-administration voice, and two of Gov. Earl Long's leaders, Sen. B. B. Rayburn and highway director R. B. Richardson, are drawing new attention today as 1959 possibilities for governor.

However, they don't have the field to themselves. Shake a big tree near any large gathering of people in Louisiana these days and a dozen potential candidates will tumble out.

Traditionally, the mid - term Legislature, in this case the 1958 session in May, is the political setting for would-be candidates to come out in the open.

The session represents a sort of feeling out period. Candidacies don't crystalize until a year later. This time it may be different because the vote comes earlier, in December , 1959, rather than January, 1960.

Rate Attention

Kirkpatrick, Rayburn and Richardson, either by talk in political quarters or by their own actions or by their own words, are rating attention.

The tall, black-haired Jefferson Davis representative, who has performed capable fiscal chores for both the administration of Gov. Long and former Gov. Robert Kennon, is traveling about the state telling people he is interested. That is definite.

To questions, Kirkpatrick simply declined to confirm or deny reports are true.

On more than one occasion, Kirkpatrick has offered fiscal advice to state administration. Fiscal problems are becoming a prime issue in Louisiana. Long may select Kirkpatrick on his budget committee, to add a nonpartisan tone.

Kirkpatrick is not new to statewide politics. He served as state campaign manager for New Or-

Tot Survives Big Dose Of Kerosene

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 18—UP—One-year-old Freddie Miller drank what doctors said could have been a lethal dose of kerosene, but he lived to smile about it.

Charity hospital attendants said the blond haired blue eyed son of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Miller of Jackson, La., laughed and smiled today on his mother's lap.

The roly-poly baby was playing near his father yesterday as Miller painted the front porch of their home. Freddie grabbed an opened can of kerosene and drank.

Rain Is Expected In District Area

Overcast skies are predicted for the Twin Cities area today and tomorrow, with rain expected tomorrow.

No important changes in temperature are in view for the area. Yesterday's readings were 46 and 34 compared with Friday's recorded high and low of 62 and 33.

Arkansans may also expect cloudy skies today and tomorrow with rain tomorrow.

One Airman Dies; 1 Hurt At Shreveport

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 18 (AP)—One Air Force officer died and his co-pilot was injured today when their jet airplane crashed and burned 12 miles north of here.

The Air Force witheld identification of the dead pending notification of his family. His body remained in the fiery wreckage of the TF102A, a two-place trainer fighter.

First Lt. John R. Disheroon, about 34, of Wichita Falls, Tex., who received back, leg and internal injuries, was pulled from the fire by two brothers who watched the crash from their parents' plantation nearby.

Rushed To Plane

W.C. Sentell Jr., of Baton Rouge, said he and his brother, Billy, jumped into a car and rushed to the crashed plane.

"When we drove up the lieutenant had jumped from the cockpit and was lying by the side of the plane," Sentell said. "Fire was already licking up all around the cockpit containing the other man and we couldn't get to him. We pulled the lieutenant to safety."

Disheroon, bundled in blankets and given first aid by a physician who happened to pass, said the aircraft had "four or five explosions."

"We stock cocked the engine and tried to start it again but couldn't," he said. "We tried to find a field to put her in, but didn't have much luck."

The plane cleared a stand of trees, Disheroon said, but when the pilot attempted to pull the nose up to level off, the aircraft stalled and crashed into the open field near highway 71.

Over Half - Mile

Wreckage was strewn along a half-mile path before the plane ground to a halt in the rain-soaked field.

"God, it was a rough impact when we hit," Disheroon said. "After the plane stopped, I jabbed

MODELS, STARLETS

Call-Girl Ring In Paris Broken UP

PARIS, Jan. 18 (AP) — French police announced today they have broken up a plush call-girl racket which offered its clients models, movie starlets, and housewives needing a spot of cash.

News that the police had 250 of the girls' names, with photos, sent a shiver up the spine of the Paris demimonde, which sensed a first class scandal. But police said the names would not be released — only kept on file.

The case came to light when charges were placed against Gabrielle Bellerot for what the French call "proxenetisme" — procuring.

"La Belle Gabrielle" — admitting to 48 years, though some ungallantly said she is 52 — once operated a celebrated house of her own in the swank Champs Elysees area, the police prefecture said. When such activities were outlawed in 1946 she found herself out of business.

So, from her apartment near the Arc de Triomphe, she set to work with her telephone, police said. For a fee, ranging up to $50 or more depending on one thing and another, Mme. Bellerot would provide clients with a series of photos from which to choose, arrange the rendezvous, and even provide quiet, but temporary, lodgings.

She did well, frequenting the best Paris fashion houses, sporting mink coats and enough jewelry to attract attention.

Questioning some of the girls involved, police came up with the statement that anyone who dealt with the madame had to furnish guarantees of "discretion and honor." The gendarmes said some of the names on La Belle Gabrielle's list were familiar but that many came as complete surprises.

Crossett Youth's Death In Shooting Ruled Accidental

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) —A verdict of accidental death was rendered by a coroner's jury last night in the shooting yesterday of Griffin Miller, 17 - year - old Crossett High School senior.

The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Miller, and three other Crossett seniors, Patrick Morgan "Sonny" Gray, son of Mrs. Frank Richardson; David Calhoun, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Calhoun, and Mallory Jeffress, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Jeffress, were target shooting, authorities said.

The boys told the jury that Gray had just finished firing his .22 pistol at a target, and that as he turned around the gun accidently went off again, with the bullet hitting Miller in the side.

Dead On Arrival

They said Miller took two or three steps and slumped to the ground. The boys took him to the Crossett Health Center where he was pronounced dead on arrival. The incident occurred at 4:30 p.m. yesterday.

Miller was a member of the high school Press Club; Quill and Scroll, the national honorary writing society, and the science club.

Orth To Address Guard Session

Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Army Franklin L. Orth will be featured speaker at the 1958 convention here Feb. 8-9 of the Louisiana National Guard Association.

This was announced yesterday by Lt. Col. Leonard E. Pauley, Lake Charles, president of the association, who said that more than 700 members are expected to attend the convention.

Officers of ground and air units from throughout the state will attend the conference, which will include business sessions, dances, speeches and entertainment.

In charge of hospitality and general arrangements is Lt. Col. Walter H. Johnson, commander of local units of the Third Battalian, 199th Infantry. Companies of this battalion are stationed in Monroe, Bastrop and Ruston.

Will Preside

Lt. Col Pauley will preside over all phases of the conference. He enlisted in Company "K" of the 156th Infantry, Louisiana National Guard in 1930 and received his commission in 1939.

Pauley served overseas in World War II with the 31st Infantry Division. The organization landed in England in October, 1942, and crossed into France in 1944.

With the second battalion, 156th Infantry, Pauley was assigned to SHAEF Headquarters as security command in France, Luxembourg and Germany. In addition to other duties, the battalion handled all of General Eisenhower's personal escort assignments throughout Europe.

LT. COL. L. E. PAULEY

In 1946, Pauley reorganized the Third Battalion, 156th Infantry and is the unit's present commander.

Essentials For Health Study Cited

If health is to be taught on the same plane as other subjects, instructers must have a thorough understanding of health background and needs of each child, A. S. Huffman told the Lenwil School faculty.

The speaker, associate professor of health and physical education at Northeast State, declared "No one method can do a good job in health education." Health knowledge and health practice must be combined in one package.

Health is a faculty, parent, community, national problem, he said, and "we must work together on it if we are to exist."

Emphasizing the need of health teaching, the speaker pointed to various causes of death in Louisiana during 1956 of children ranging from five to fourteen years of age.

Accidents, totaling 323, led the list. These included death by poison, violence, motor vehicle, fire and explasion, drowning, and other forms of accidents. Cancers and tumors ranked second, with 56 deaths listed. Pneumonia was third, and nervous system and sense organs was fourth in causes of death.

FOUR EVENTS SET

Coons, Dogs Pitted In Contest Here

Four events will be featured during the challenge coon hunt set for Saturday at the Ouachita Valley Fair Grounds.

The challenge hunt will have hunters challenging other hunters' dogs to compete against their own dogs in the hunt.

The hunt is open only to thoroughbred hounds which may be registered or grade dogs. No curs or non-hound breeds are permitted.

Challenges may be placed through V. A. Capers, FA 2-8518, president of the Ouachita Valley Coon Hunters Association, sponsor of the meet. Paul Sanders at FA 5-3520 will also collect challenges.

Four Events

The four events as described by Capers include coon-in-a-log, coon-in-a-hole, coon-in-a-sack and coon-on-a-pole. In the first named, a coon is placed in a log with one end open and a dog has 10 seconds to get him out.. In the second event, a sloping hole two feet deep is dug, with about a 10-inch diameter at the top and larger at the bottom. The coon is put in the hole and the dog is supposed to run him out.

In the sack event, two people work as a team. A coon is put up a tree inside an enclosure, and while one team - member climbs the tree and attempts to shake the coon loose, the other stands ready with a sack to catch the animal. For the pole event, a coon is placed on top of a 10-foot pole, and a person attempts to climb the slick pole and get the coon loose with his bare hands. These events will get underway at 2 p.m.

Capers said a 10-second time limit is placed on each event and is timed with a stop-watch. At the end of that time that particular try is over and another dog or person trys his skill.

A business meet is planned for 6 p.m. the date of the hunt, a chicken supper for 6:30, and the coon hunt at 7:30 p.m.

AT INDIANOLA

Wetzel Buried By His Mother, Sister

INDIANOLA, Miss., Jan. 18 (AP)—The mother and sister of executed killer William A. Wetzel buried him today and left for North Carolina to visit his brother, who is serving a life sentence for murder.

Wetzel was executed at nearby state penitentiary at 12:33 a.m. yesterday for the grangland murder of stool pigeon Edgar (Sonny) McGraw in a prison field in 1953.

William's brother, Frank, was sentenced to life for murdering a highway patrolman who tried to stop him from going to Mississippi to free William last month. Frank faces another murder trial for the death of a second patrolman.

Mrs. Ida Wetzel, the mother, and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Johnson, all of Seneca Falls, N.Y., had come to Mississippi to plead for William's life at a clemency hearing this week.

Like Others

William Wetzel's funeral was similar to that of any resident of this deeply religious agricultural county. There was a sermon, a funeral procession, a Christian burial and a flag-draped coffin because of his Army service during World War II. Four of the six pallbearers were prison guards. The other two, volunteers Tom Buchanan and Paul Lott, were local citizens.

Two dozen carloads of Sunflower Countians, including citizens, former convicts, and prison officials, crowded the funeral home chapel and followed the coffin to the Indianola city cemetery.

Wetzel, according to prison chaplain R. B. Hicks, had accepted Christ in prison.

The chaplain said it was his personal opinion that "God opened the cell door to loosen him from his physical prison. When I put my hand on his shoulder and shook his hand in the gas chamber. Bill Wetzel's body did not tremble.

"I do not believe a man could do that without the grace of God. Never did a man give me a better assurance that he was a Christian than did Bill Wetzel."

Then, his voice chocking with emotion, Hicks concluded: "I am as sure that Brother Wetzel is in the presence of God today as I am that my own father and mother are."

Mrs. Wetzel sobbed quietly during the sermon. But when Hicks removed the flag from the coffin and presented it to her the grey-haired woman broke down and leaned on her daughter's arm as they both wept.

Mrs. Johnson managed to control herself quickly but her husband was obviously nervous and upset.

As the three left for North Carolina, Mrs. Wetzel told newsmen the presence of so many people at the funeral made her "realize that Bill had not been alone all this time."

Wetzel had been in death row since it was constructed in 1954. He had seen 16 men executed in the gas chamber.

SUSPECT BOOKED

A Monroe Negro was booked on a simple robbery charge here yesterday after he allegedly took money from another man, City Police said. Records identified the suspect as Meredith Reese, 1101 DeSiard St. Reese's arrest resulted from a report by Charles Johnson, 906 Arkansas St., claiming he was victim of Reese's actions, police said.

DAMAGE AWARDS

Cutter Plans To Appeal Decision

OAKLAND, Calif., Jan. 18 (AP)—Cutter Laboratories said today it will appeal a jury verdict which awarded $147,00 damages to two children stricken with polio after inoculation in 1955 with Salk vaccine produced by Cutter.

Parents of the two children had sued jointly for $365,000.

Thirty-one additional suits estimated at 10 million dollars have been filed against Cutter. Many others are on file against four other vaccine producers. All allege that faulty serum caused polio.

The jury of eight women and four men came to their verdict yesterday after deliberating 15 hours. The jurors said they felt they had no choice under Judge Thomas J. Ledwich's instructions, and added this statement to the verdict:

"With regard to the law of warranty we feel that we have no alternative but to conclude that Cutter marketed vaccine which caushed the plaintiffs to come down with poliomyelitis."

The statement added that the majority felt that Cutler was not negligent "either directly or by inference."

The defense had insisted that if Cutter produced any bad vaccine it was the fault of government testing procedures followed by the five manufacturers.

The jury awarded $131,500 to parents of 8-year-old Anne Elizabeth Gottsdanker of Santa Barbara, and $15,800 to those of James Randall, 4, of Monrovia.

The trial lasted 28 days. It was regarded as establishing a precedent for pending suits.

Dr. Robert K. Cutter said the firm of which he is president will appeal the verdict and added:

"While we are naturally disappointed with the verdict, we are nevertheless most appreciative the jury took such an unusual action as to express their firm belief that there were no carelessness or incompetence on the part of Cutter Laboratories."

South's First Nuclear Power Plant Slated

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Jan. 18 (AP)—Construction work on the South's first nuclear power plant will be ready to begin as soon as the Atomic Energy Commission acts on the plant proposal.

This was announced by Carolinas Virginia Nuclear Power Associates Inc., following a meeting in Charlotte this week. A sketch of the proposed plant at Parr, S. C., was presented to CVNPA's board of directors by engineering consultants.

In their proposal to AEC, Nuclear Power Associates said successful development and operation of the Parr project could lead to construction of economical large-scale nuclear power plants by the participating companies in their respective service areas.

Cost of the project is expected to be in excess of 20 million dollars and the reactor is designed for an electrical capacity of 17,000 kilowatt.

IN RECENT YEARS

Organizing Tough For Labor Unions

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP) — Labor unions, admittedly batting close to zero in recent years in organizing new members, predict that the problem will be tough for years ahead.

The trend for the next few years is for a flood of younger workers and middle-aged women to enter the labor force — types the unions have found it hardest to recruit.

Peter Henle, assistant AFL-CIO research director, told a labor group here that "because of these factors, unions are likely to encounter a far greater proportion of workers who are apathetic or even hostile to unionism."

Unions have had some organizing success in the past few years, but the gains have barely kept pace with the steady increase in the labor force or with normal loss of members through death, change of jobs, etc.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, told the Federation convention last month that union organizing had stopped cold. He called for further effort.

Henle spoke at an AFL-CIO conference this week on the "Changing Character of American Industry." Ewan Clague, Labor Department statistics commissioner, had just forecast that out of an epected 10 million increase in the labor force by 1965, some 8-million will be women 35 years or older and young people 24 and younger. He also said there will be a big increase in part-time workers.

All this is expected to take place because of the big jump in the birth rate after World War II and the increasing tendency of women to take jobs after their children enter school.

Other speakers talked of a shift in industry over the next few decades from the North and East to the South and West.

The way it looks, said Henle, is that by 1965 "more than half the labor force will have been born after 1925.

"These people bear no scars of the 1930 depression," he said. "Although their parents may have talked to them of hard times, this could have left but a vague impression, not any genuine awareness of the problem.

"Our generally high employment economy has given them a rosy, some might say even a lackadaisical, attitude toward life."

Henle said union success in raising pay and job standards in the past ironically may have meant that "youngsters coming on the job do not respond to unions as warmly as their fathers."

The typical older woman worker, he said, may be a married, supplementary breadwinner with "less interest (then her husband) in her conditions of employment and in any effort to better them."

Henle said that considering the trends, many unions will want to change their organizing and bargaining techniques "in meeting an increasing number of neutral or even anti-union workers."

The four events as described by Capers include coon-in-a-log, coon-in-a-hole, coon-in-a-sack and coon-on-a-pole. In the first named, a coon is placed in a log with one end open and a dog has 10 seconds to get him out,. In the second event, a sloping hole two feet deep is dug, with about a 10-inch diameter at the top and larger at the bottom. The coon is put in the hole and the dog is supposed to run him out.

In the sack event, two people work as a team. A coon is put up a tree inside an enclosure, and while one team - member climbs the tree and attempts to shake the coon loose, the other stands ready with a sack to catch the animal. For the pole event, a coon is placed on top of a 10-foot pole, and a person attempts to climb the slick pole and get the coon loose with his bare hands. These events will get underway at 2 p.m.

Capers said a 10-second time limit is placed on each event and is timed with a stop-watch. At the end of that time that particular try is over and another dog or person trys his skill.

A business meet is planned for 6 p.m. the date of the hunt, a chicken supper for 6:30, and the coon hunt at 7:30 p.m.

AT INDIANOLA

Wetzel Buried By His Mother, Sister

INDIANOLA, Miss., Jan. 18 (AP)—The mother and sister of executed killer William A. Wetzel buried him today and left for North Carolina to visit his brother, who is serving a life sentence for murder.

Wetzel was executed at nearby state penitentiary at 12:33 a.m. yesterday for the grangland murder of stool pigeon Edgar (Sonny) McGraw in a prison field in 1953.

William's brother, Frank, was sentenced to life for murdering a highway patrolman who tried to stop him from going to Mississippi to free William last month. Frank faces another murder trial for the death of a second patrolman.

Mrs. Ida Wetzel, the mother, and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Johnson, all of Seneca Falls, N.Y., had come to Mississippi to plead for William's life at a clemency hearing this week.

Like Others

William Wetzel's funeral was similar to that of any resident of this deeply religious agricultural county. There was a sermon, a funeral procession, a Christian burial and a flag-draped coffin because of his Army service during World War II. Four of the six pallbearers were prison guards. The other two, volunteers Tom Buchanan and Paul Lott, were local citizens.

Two dozen carloads of Sunflower Countians, including citizens, former convicts, and prison officials, crowded the funeral home chapel and followed the coffin to the Indianola city cemetery.

Wetzel, according to prison chaplain R. B. Hicks, had accepted Christ in prison.

The chaplain said it was his personal opinion that "God opened the cell door to loosen him from his physical prison. When I put my hand on his shoulder and shook his hand in the gas chtmber. Bill Wetzel's body did not tremble.

"I do not believe a man could do that without the grace of God. Never did a man give me a better assurance that he was a Christian than did Bill Wetzel."

Then, his voice chocking with emotion, Hicks concluded: "I am as sure that Brother Wetzel is in the presence of God today as I am that my own father and mother are."

Mrs. Wetzel sobbed quietly during the sermon. But when Hicks removed the flag from the coffin and presented it to her the grey-haired woman broke down and leaned on her daughter's arm as they both wept.

Mrs. Johnson managed to control herself quickly but her husband was obviously nervous and upset.

As the three left for North Carolina, Mrs. Wetzel told newsmen the presence of so many people at the funeral made her "realize that Bill had not been alone all this time."

Wetzel had been in death row since it was constructed in 1954. He had seen 16 men executed in the gas chamber.

SUSPECT BOOKED

A Monroe Negro was booked on a simple robbery charge here yesterday after he allegedly took money from another man, City Police said. Records identified the suspect as Meredith Reese, 1101 DeSiard St. Reese's arrest resulted from a report by Charles Johnson, 906 Arkansas St., claiming he was victim of Reese's actions, police said.

DAMAGE AWARDS

Cutter Plans To Appeal Decision

OAKLAND, Calif., Jan. 18 (AP) — Cutter Laboratories said today it will appeal a jury verdict which awarded $147,00 damages to two children stricken with polio after inoculation in 1955 with Salk vaccine produced by Cutter.

Parents of the two children had sued jointly for $365,000.

Thirty-one additional suits estimated at 10 million dollars have been filed against Cutter. Many others are on file against four other vaccine producers. All allege that faulty serum caused polio.

The jury of eight women and four men came to their verdict yesterday after deliberating 15 hours. The jurors said they felt they had no choice under Judge Thomas J. Ledwich's instructions, and added this statement to the verdict:

"With regard to the law of warranty we feel that we have no alternative but to conclude that Cutter marketed vaccine which caushed the plaintiffs to come down with poliomyelitis."

The statement added that the majority felt that Cutler was not negligent "either directly or by inference."

The defense had insisted that if Cutter produced any bad vaccine it was the fault of government testing procedures followed by the five manufacturers.

The jury awarded $131,500 to parents of 8-year-old Anne Elizabeth Gottsdanker of Santa Barbara, and $15,800 to those of James Randall, 4, of Monrovia.

The trial lasted 28 days. It was regarded as establishing a precedent for pending suits.

Dr. Robert K. Cutter said the firm of which he is president will appeal the verdict and added:

"While we are naturally disappointed with the verdict, we are nevertheless most appreciative the jury took such an unusual action as to express their firm belief that there were no carelessness or incompetence on the part of Cutter Laboratories."

South's First Nuclear Power Plant Slated

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Jan. 18 (AP)—Construction work on the South's first nuclear power plant will be ready to begin as soon as the Atomic Energy Commission acts on the plant proposal.

This was announced by Carolinas Virginia Nuclear Power Associates Inc., following a meeting in Charlotte this week. A sketch of the proposed plant at Parr, S. C., was presented to CVNPA's board of directors by engineering consultants.

In their proposal to AEC, Nuclear Power Associates said successful development and operation of the Parr project could lead to construction of economical large-scale nuclear power plants by the participating companies in their respective service areas.

Cost of the project is expected to be in excess of 20 million dollars and the reactor is designed for an electrical capacity of 17,000 kilowatt.

IN RECENT YEARS

Organizing Tough For Labor Unions

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP) — Labor unions, admittedly batting close to zero in recent years in organizing new members, predict that the problem will be tough for years ahead.

The trend for the next few years is for a flood of younger workers and middle-aged women to enter the labor force — types the unions have found it hardest to recruit.

Peter Henle, assistant AFL-CIO research director, told a labor group here that "because of these factors, unions are likely to encounter a far greater proportion of workers who are apathetic or even hostile to unionism."

Unions have had some organizing success in the past few years, but the gains have barely kept pace with the steady increase in the labor force or with normal loss of members through death, change of jobs, etc.

George Meany, AFL-CIO president, told the Federation convention last month that union organizing had stopped cold. He called for further effort.

Henle spoke at an AFL-CIO conference this week on the "Changing Character of American Industry." Ewan Clague, Labor Department statistics commissioner, had just forecast that out of an epected 10 million increase in the labor force by 1965, some 8-million will be women 35 years or older and young people 24 and younger. He also said there will be a big increase in part-time workers.

All this is expected to take place because of the big jump in the birth rate after World War II and the increasing tendency of women to take jobs after their children enter school.

Other speakers talked of a shift in industry over the next few decades from the North and East to the South and West.

The way it looks, said Henle, is that by 1965 "more than half the labor force will have been born after 1925.

"These people bear no scars of the 1930 depression," he said. "Although their parents may have talked to them of hard times, this could have left but a vague impression, not any genuine awareness of the problem.

"Our generally high employment economy has given them a rosy, some might say even a lackadaisical, attitude toward life."

Henle said union success in raising pay and job standards in the past ironically may have meant that "youngsters coming on the job do not respond to unions as warmly as their fathers."

The typical older woman worker, he said, may be a married, supplementary breadwinner with "less interest (then her husband) in her conditions of employment and in any effort to better them."

Henle said that considering the trends, many unions will want to change their organizing and bargaining techniques "in meeting an increasing number of neutral or even anti-union workers."

Instructor for the school will be Paul H. Raines, special agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, from Dallas.

The school is open to all law enforcement agencies in the Monroe area. The Monroe department will have four members attending. West Monroe will send two men.

The subjects to be handled in the course include photographic uses in law enforcement; color photography as an aid to law enforcement; photographic evidence; operation principles of a camera; mechanical operation of a press-type camera; practical problems covering evidence phases of law enforcement; dark room procedure; and sketching and photographing crime scenes.

Guatemala Election

The United States has a big stake in the election that is being held in Guatemala today. The United States has given that country $75 million in economic aid since the pro-Communist regime of President Arbenz was overthrown in 1954.

Thus, while the U. S. state department in Washington and the U. S. ambassador in Guatemala are maintaining a scrupulous impartility, it is no secret that this country would like to see a victory of the moderates.

The three candidates in the election are Gen. Miguel Ydigoras Fuentes, 62, National Democratic Reconciliation candidate, who has been described as a "right-wing military extremist;" Lt. Col. Jose Luis Cruz Salazar, 37, candidate of the middle-of-the-road National Democratic Movement; and Mario Mendez Montenegro, 47, Revolutionary party leader.

Since the Russian Sputnik launchings, Communist agents have stepped up their activities in Latin America. The United States having failed to launch its satellite, has lost prestige there. Should Guatemala slide back toward the left it would be viewed as another sign of dwindling United States influence. It probably would mean discontinuance or a sharp reduction of American economic aid for that country and a stepping up of Russian aid with the intent of bringing that country into the Russian orbit insofar as possible.

The National Democratic Movement is the party of the late Col. Carlos Castillo Armas. It was Castillo Armas who, in a notably unbloody revolt in 1954, unseated the Communist-infiltrated government of the dictatorial President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman. Castillo Armas went on to head the state as president of the ruling junta. He was assassinated last July 26.

An election to choose a successor was held last Oct. 20, with the moderate center candidate, Miguel Ortiz Passerelli, emerging the victor. Some of the returns were admittedly fraudulent, and Gen. Ydigoras, who won a large majority in Guatemala City, set up such a loud cry that he succeeded in switching political control to a friendly military junta. Thus vanished all chance of a peaceful transition of political control for the first time in Guatemala's history.

Already Cruz Salazar would be expected to win rather easily but Ydigoras will draw some of the conservative votes that would otherwise go to Cruz Salazar.

Mendez Montenegro is said not to be a Communist and leaders of his party claim they are against the Communists but the party is reported to be heavily infiltrated from the left and Guatemalan reds have been instructed to vote for him.

From the standpoint of the United States, the election of Mendez Montenegro would be the worst possible outcome, since it would seem to be a victory for the Communists. Election of either of the other two men would be preferable, although the labeling of Ydigoras as a "military extremist" seems to make Cruz Salazar the best choice.

Potomac Fever

If a budget is to include everything one desires and exercise no discipline or restraint over what one spends, then there is no real object in having a budget. Yet that is just about the situation we find ourselves in as a nation right now.

About a year ago, we had sprung upon us the highest peacetime budget in history—about $72 billion. There was decided reaction throughout the nation to any such expenditures. The opposition to such a budget was the greatest, insofar as measured by Congressmen hearing from their constituents back home is concerned, that any budget ever had.

As a result, the budget was cut a great deal—on the face of it. Actually, though some claimed cuts as high as $5 billion, it was not cut at all. The reason it was not cut is because it could not be cut—not with $70 billion authorized but unexpended funds already available at the beginning of the fiscal year. Current estimates of total spending for this fiscal year now bear out this view.

Still, the members of Congress were able to point out to the voters that they had voted for budget cuts and that apprently they had been successful. And the voters themselves relaxed, too, with the feeling of having really brought pressure to bear on Congress and of having accomplished a very worthwhile job. What illusions on both parts!

Now, a year later, we are being faced with an even higher budget—almost $74 billion. And the advocates of big spending, knowing that Congress will go along—especially in an election year—unless the reaction from "back home" is too strong, have been actively fear-washing the people for some time now so there will be no reaction.

First, we hear from many testifying scientists that Russia has gone ahead of us in missile and satellite development. Then we hear rumors about a Gaither report to the effect that we are in mortal danger. Next we hear from the Rockefeller report that we must spend at least $3 billion more a year on defense to keep up with Russia, much less get ahead of her.

All this came along prior to submission of the budget so that the people back home would be so scared they would not object to any size budget, no matter how large. Without objection, we know that the members of Congress will soon become so weakened with Potomac fever upon their return to the capital that there will be no trouble on that score.

This Potomac fever is a treacherous disease. Otherwise sound men soon become infected with it after getting into government service. Many Congressmen who see things quite clearly from the viewpoint of their constituents while they are repairing fences back home soon become infected with it upon returning to Washington. Its symptoms are rather clear. First, it causes a person to become addicted to spending without regard to where the money is coming from. Second, it causes him to heed rumors and listen to rumors rather than getting the facts and standing off and looking at matters clearly.

The usual procedure when faced with unusual expenditure demands in one direction is to cut the budget in some other direction—but not if you have the Potomac fever. Find excuses, such as the danger is so great—when no one knows how great the danger is. Or, depend upon increased income to balance the budget—when no one knows whether there will be any increase or not. Or, just quit "worshipping a balanced budget" and go back to the original New Deal philosophy of regarding deficit financing as a blessing rather than a curse—when anyone knows that continued deficit financing will as surely destroy a nation as atomic bombs and guided missiles.

The only antidotes to Potomac fever are common sense and patriotism. Use of common sense very quickly stops one from spending money he does not have, especially if he has already borrowed to the hilt. And certainy one is not unpatriotic if he simply refuses to go farther into debt; instead, he will place defense first and cut down on other expenditures until the safety of his country is assured.

Rio de Janeiro is located in a special territorial unit called the Federal District. The city government includes a department of agriculture because many of the district's 450 square miles are given over to forest land and farms.

Arkansas maintains wholly or partially 37 game preserves containing a total of 660,200 acres or roughly a little more than one thousand square miles.

Real Leadership Shows During Time Of Crisis

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The value of a solid and practical viewpoint in politics, especially in times of crisis is being demonstrated once more as this Congress gets under way.

The real leadership again comes from the men who are prepared to grapple withthe very serious problem now confronting the U.S. in both the international and domestic fields in the most practical way they can devise. The dreamers and theorists, todescribe them bluntly, for the most part are only adding to the confusion which causes so many Americans to ask in dismay "What is the trouble in Washington?"

President Eisenhower must be numbered among the practical leaders, but it becomes evident at intervals and at his press conferences in particular, that the chief executive is not as well informed as he could be. Whether this is due to a calculated intent to brief him only as a limited number of essentials, or an understandable inability to know and grasp the million details of problems pub before him, it still gives the impression that the President is not well informed.

This is not a desirable situation, but it is offset to some extent by the fact that there are well informed men at his beck and call, even though evidence in a number of cases indicates that he does not get around to consulting them.

In the few days since the opening of the second session of the 85th Congress, the man to meet the rather chilling outlook with greatest directness has been Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Senate majority leader, whose role at this session will be second to none in importance, largely because he is the political engineer who can keep the train on the track. His recipe is a simple one—to keep controversy at a minimum level, stick to legitimate criticism and discourage partisanship, then move toward objectives without deviation.

To achieve these purposes, he must reason with both Democratic and Republican senators on the Senate Preparedness subcommittee which he heads, to run down the facts on the state of U. S. defenses without going off on such tangents as the reorganization of the military staff system and of the entire Pentagon. Thus far he has been fairly successful, largely by holding the hearings behind closed doors to preserve secrecy, then encouraging the witness to talk to the press, while he himself stands by to interpolate. In dealing with fifty aggressive reporters, this requires considerable agility, a quality in which Johnson is not lacking.

Meanwhile President Truman, who has not hidden his light under a bushel at any time since leaving the White House, has belittled the President on several occasions. Senator Mike Mansfield (Dem.-Mont.) assistant majority leader and one of the prominent liberals in his party, has told friends that he cannot vote for the extension of reciprocal trade, which is on the President's program, though the presidential power to raise and lower tariffs has been a credo of the liberal Democratic wing since early in the New Deal.

Mansfield reportedly has said that since he is a cadidnate for re-election this year, he cannot risk the opposition of Montanans who want to limit foreign imports from Canada. Johnson who does not have to run again until two years hence, will have to shoulder the inimitable job of easing through the administration program, though there is strong opposition to it in Texas, and in other southern states as well.

He is convinced that its curtailment would do vast harm to the United States in this period of precarious foreign relations with those countries having trade reciprocity with the U. S. Some of his party mates think this argument overdrawn.

Johnson has been the target for criticism in this political capital from those who describe him as a slick politician, a seeker after the presidency, and those who believe that sectional and regional considerations should weigh more heavily than principal objectives. However, in the manner familiar to congressional observers he has insisted that henceforth all other congressional matters will be secondary to national defense.

That will be challenged from time to time by those who want to make farm relief, civil rights, federal educational aid and other measures of lesser importance the most pressing business before the Senate. There will be revolts which could throw the whole legislative program into confusion. With his opposite number Senator William F. Knowland (Rep.-Cal.) the minority leader, a part time absentee while running for governor of California, Johnson will have to use all of his skill and finesse, of which he has plenty, to keep a Senate majority under his direction.

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAYS

Republicans In New Jersey Split

The state of New Jersey is different from other states in that a part of its population works in New York, another part in Philadelphia. Its industrial cities such as Newark, Passaic, Paterson, and there are many more, are constantly growing and its bedroom towns to which New Yorkers move, are increasing in number and population.

Politically, the state used to be Republican but in recent years, it has become Democratic. In fact, the most powerful so-called big city boss developed anywhere in this country, Frank Hague, was a Jersey Democratic satrap. It is a state with large populations of Poles, Hungarians, White Russians and other former Europeans.

Like the Republican Party in New York state, the Republicans in New Jersey have become torn by internecine strife between moderns, as represented by Senator Clifford Case, and the pre-1952 Republicans who have been voting Democratic locally, thus helping Governor Meyner in the last election to enjoy a run-away victory. The pre-1952 Republicans, in New Jersey, believe, as their counterparts in New York believe, that if they have to vote a radical, they would prefer him to be in the Democratic Party.

New Jersey's senior U.S. Senator H. Alexander Smith's term is up and he has wanted to be re-elected. Although he is 77 years old, by no stretch of the imagination can he be regarded as aged, since Senator Green of Rhode Island is 90 and can cha-cha for long and arduous hours. Maybe, Green possesses such gifts because he is a bachelor. At any rate, Smith, who has regularly served the Eisenhower administration faithfully, was declared to be too aged in favor of Bernard Shanley who was the President's secretary and resigned that position to run for Smith's.

Shanley either miscalculated his strength or the value of the President's name, but his candidacy has not built the momentum that had been expected. Furthermore, the Republican leadership of the state had anticipated that by joint action of the two United States senators, Smith and Case, and the state chairman, Samuel L. Bodine, if Shanley could not be put over, they would be able to call off all sorts of other candidates and instead nominate Representative Peter Frelinghuysen Jr., who is an Eisenhower Republican and comes of an old and distinguished New Jersey family.

Such a move, however, is not likely to succeed as there is such strong grass-roots opposition to the Republican leadership in New Jersey that several unexpected persons are presenting themselves as candidates for the nomination of United States senator in Smith's place. Among the most active of these is Robert Morris, who is resigning his position as counsel for the Senate Internal Security subcommittee. Morris has held judicial office in New York State, but comes of a New Jersey family with deep roots in that state. He is actively campaigning as a conservative Republican with a long history of anti-communist activity as counsel for congressional committees. Morris is making an energetic fight for the nomination, going directly to those who are likely to vote in the primaries and rekindling Republican aspirations.

This contest is interesting because it is developing into a clear-cut fight between the modern Republicans and the pre-1952 Republicans on a basis of principle and strategy. Perhaps the greatest strategic weakness of the Republican Party both in New York and New Jersey is that the acknowledged leaders have lost contact with the party's supporters who have in a large measure been drifting away during the past five years.

During the Roosevelt and Truman administrations, these Republicans had targets which they could fight and against which they held local lines. Since Eisenhower became President, their targets have been removed and all they can do is to grumble. Many stay away from the polls; many vote for local Democrats.

This analysis represents Republicans who want nothing for themselves. They ask of their party a candidate for whom they can conscientiously vote. They did not feel that Senator Clifford Case was such a candidate, but they had no organized means to defeat him. Since his election, Senator Clifford Case has had practically no influence in New Jersey. It is possible that the conservative element in the Republican Party will take over in the 1958 election, but it is not at all certain that any Republican can be elected.

VIEWS OF OUR READERS

Monroe, La.

Editor, Morning World,

Congratulations! Congratulations and thanks for publishing the editorial from the Southern States Industrial Council recognizing the need for increased salaries for teachers in this time of national concern. It is true without question that teaching is the most important of all professions — more imporant than medicine, more important than law, more important than engineering — because it is through teaching that doctors, lawyers, scientists, and engineers are born. The schools exist solely for the children of America, the greatest of all our resources for the future. As people working with this most precious of resources, teachers deserve the prestige and income that their high calling merits.

In regard to the paragraph in the editorial which states that raises in salaries should not apply to "the teachers now employed" who are already "getting all they are worth," we can dismiss blanket criticism as no more than an exaggeration for effect. It is inconceivable that all the teachers of America, or all the teachers of Louisiana could be inferior!!!! But we will agree with you that there are sub - standard teachers (along with the thousands of dedicated and excellent teachers.) The fact of which the writer of this editorial was perhaps unaware is that, according to the standards set by the state board of education, there are many teachers in our schoolrooms who are not qualified to teach, or at least are not qualified to teach the subjects or grades to which they are assigned. The standards are there! There are in Louisiana alone about 2,0000 teachers who are teaching on a "T" certificate. Now a "T" certificate means simply that a teacher is teaching out of her field, or has not taken enough training to qualify to teach at all. How do such teachers get into the classroom? Through the scarcity of qualified teachers!!! Yes, the standards are there but the money is lacking to attract and hold enough teachers who meet the standards. And no one deplores this condition more than members of the teaching profession. We feel that even one unqualified teacher in a classroom is damaging to the children and to the whole profession.

In answer to the need for thoroughly qualified teachers there is a commission called TEPS, Teacher Education and Professional Standards. TEPS, which is composed of a cross - section of teachers and administrators, is now operating on the national, state, and local levels. Its aim? To provide ever better education and training for student teachers, and to attract the best qualified young people into the profession. TEPS is also working for the constant and continuing improvement of teachers in service, through study, workshops, and additional college training. Teachers themselves are trying to eliminate all "T" certificates, and to upgrade the quality of teaching at all levels.

SOLON'S PRESSURED

Bastrop, La.

Editor, Morning World:

I have most appreciably received some tract literature from the Association of Citizens Councils of Greenwood, Miss. I note with interest a dissertation written by the association. In one paragraph is written, "Note particularly the population of the states represented by the great integrators and civil righters, Hubert Humphries of Minnesota and Wayne Morse of Oregon. It is plain that these representatives have been pressured and propagandized into advocating integration for the other fellow."

I agree with the gentleman, that they, together with many other representatives, have been pressured into the school integration drive. I could name a surprising number of congressional representatives, and bigwigs around Washington who are charter members of the NAACP; but, for the reason that the law prohibits the naming names, unless the names have already become a matter of publicity. However, the senate judiciary committee could easily locate everyone of them.

Knowledge of the truth reveals many things that are being done behind the screens, and brings to light many deceptions that are being used to lend aid to the advancement of muscovitism and Marxism in the United States. The plain truth is this: "The pressures that are being used in the school integration drive, are found in the pocket - books of ignorant, disloyal, and unscrupulous people who are enemies of civil society, and are disciples of Karl Marx, who first advocated the expansion of socialism by bought and paid-for legislation and court rulings.

FAVORS PROGRESS

Monroe, La.

Editor, Morning World:

I try to place together some of the statements I have read in your paper. I am really trying hard — very hard — to convince myself that maybe we actually do not need an underpass — or anything else. It takes quite some time for something to sink into this hard head of mine, and I certainly have plenty of spare time waiting on long trains to clear the crossings.

Two words keep popping into my mind. They are progress and politics and I certainly hate to get the two confused. There are some people who like to confuse them to us.

Residential streets have almost been turned into thoroughfares by people (like me) who must use them to go to work. Would it be so wrong for us to share in the cost of making main arteries of them? Must it be politics instead of progress?

Maybe 'someone out of the blue' will improve things for us free. Maybe this 'someone' will build an underpass. Maybe this 'someone' will build an auditorium. Wishful thinking? Some say it will happen. Some say we need nothing. Progress or politics?

One of the best programs that we could have ever hoped for has been defeated. The people who have confused progress with politics and played politics with progress are certainly most responsible. They should and will be haunted by every citizen who: knows how to think for himself, knows right from wrong, never expects something for nothing, has faith in and respect for the officials elected, has a sincere desire for a better place to live, thinks of other people.

Early Recognition Of Ailment Vital

Glaucoma is a common cause of blindness. It is suspected whenever vision is blurred or discomfort is noted in or about the eyes. Excessive tearing, dissatisfaction with glasses, mild headaches, slow focusing especially in dim light, pain in the eyes, and colored halos around lamps are enough to warrant a thorough examination.

Diagnosis is made easily by means of a simple, painless test. In glaucoma, tension within the eyeball is increased. The structure contains fluid that keeps the orb from collapsing. This fluid enters through openings in one part of the eye and escapes through a series of drains in another part.

Glaucoma occurs when the outflow is blocked and the excess fluid overdistends the visual compartment. The resulting pressure damages the delicate nerve cells of the retina and, unless recognized and treated early, blindness ensues.

Physical strain, overindulgence in coffee or tea, certain eye drops, and tight fitting clothing such as collars, girdles, or belts makes glaucoma worse. Darkness also influences tension because a dilated pupil affects the area where fluid escapes from the eye. The victim is advised also to avoid excitement, anger, worry, and fear. Emotions affect the flow of aqueous humor and increase tensions in much the same way as blood pressure rises with a psychic upset.

Many glaucoma sufferers are high-strung. The disease is first noted after an aggravating life situation. In one report, the author states the original attack was precipitated in nine cases by witnessing an accident involving close friends or relatives.

PSORIASIS

L. V. Answer me one question, please: Has psoriasis ever been cured?

Reply

Yes. Some individuals are seemingly cured in that the rash has not recurred. Others are relieved for months or years. A high percentage of psoriasis victims always has some evidence of the disease varying from a single lesion to extensive involvement. Furthermore, what helps one sufferer often is useless for another.

NO PILL ROLLING

J. T. writes: Could a person have Parkinson's disease without the characteristic hand tremor and pill rolling movement of the fingers? The muscles all over my body are stiff. When I am walking I get to running in short steps and can't control it unless I stand still.

Reply

Yes, but other neurological disorders must be considered with symptoms like yours.

Since the Russian Sputnik launchings, Communist agents have stepped up their activities in Latin America. The United States having failed to launch its satellite, has lost prestige there. Should Guatemala slide back toward the left it would be viewed as another sign of dwindling United States influence. It probably would mean discontinuance or a sharp reduction of American economic aid for that country and a stepping up of Russian aid with the intent of bringing that country into the Russian orbit insofar as possible.

The National Democratic Movement is the party of the late Col. Carlos Castillo Armas. It was Castillo Armas who, in a notably unbloody revolt in 1954, unseated the Communist-infiltrated government of the dictatorial President Jacobo Arbenz Guzman. Castillo Armas went on to head the state as president of the ruling junta. He was assassinated last July 26.

An election to choose a successor was held last Oct. 20, with the moderate center candidate, Miguel Ortiz Passerelli, emerging the victor. Some of the returns were admittedly fraudulent, and Gen. Ydigoras, who won a large majority in Guatemala City, set up such a loud cry that he succeeded in switching political control to a friendly military junta. Thus vanished all chance of a peaceful transition of political control for the first time in Guatemala's history.

Already Cruz Salazar would be expected to win rather easily but Ydigoras will draw some of the conservative votes that would otherwise go to Cruz Salazar.

Mendez Montenegro is said not to be a Communist and leaders of his party claim they are against the Communists but the party is reported to be heavily infiltrated from the left and Guatemalan reds have been instructed to vote for him.

From the standpoint of the United States, the election of Mendez Montenegro would be the worst possible outcome, since it would seem to be a victory for the Communists. Election of either of the other two men would be preferable, although the labeling of Ydigoras as a "military extremist" seems to make Cruz Salazar the best choice.

Potomac Fever

If a budget is to include everything one desires and exercise no discipline or restraint over what one spends, then there is no real object in having a budget. Yet that is just about the situation we find ourselves in as a nation right now.

About a year ago, we had sprung upon us the highest peacetime budget in history—about $72 billion. There was decided reaction throughout the nation to any such expenditures. The opposition to such a budget was the greatest, insofar as measured by Congressmen hearing from their constituents back home is concerned, that any budget ever had.

As a result, the budget was cut a great deal—on the face of it. Actually, though some claimed cuts as high as $5 billion, it was not cut at all. The reason it was not cut is because it could not be cut—not with $70 billion authorized but unexpended funds already available at the beginning of the fiscal year. Current estimates of total spending for this fiscal year now bear out this view.

Still, the members of Congress were able to point out to the voters that they had voted for budget cuts and that apprently they had been successful. And the voters themselves relaxed, too, with the feeling of having really brought pressure to bear on Congress and of having accomplished a very worthwhile job. What illusions on both parts!

Now, a year later, we are being faced with an even higher budget—almost $74 billion. And the advocates of big spending, knowing that Congress will go along—especially in an election year—unless the reaction from "back home" is too strong, have been actively fear-washing the people for some time now so there will be no reaction.

First, we hear from many testifying scientists that Russia has gone ahead of us in missile and satellite development. Then we hear rumors about a Gaither report to the effect that we are in mortal danger. Next we hear from the Rockefeller report that we must spend at least $3 billion more a year on defense to keep up with Russia, much less get ahead of her.

All this came along prior to submission of the budget so that the people back home would be so scared they would not object to any size budget, no matter how large. Without objection, we know that the members of Congress will soon become so weakened with Potomac fever upon their return to the capital that there will be no trouble on that score.

This Potomac fever is a treacherous disease. Otherwise sound men soon become infected with it after getting into government service. Many Congressmen who see things quite clearly from the viewpoint of their constituents while they are repairing fences back home soon become infected with it upon returning to Washington. Its symptoms are rather clear. First, it causes a person to become addicted to spending without regard to where the money is coming from. Second, it causes him to heed rumors and listen to rumors rather than getting the facts and standing off and looking at matters clearly.

The usual procedure when faced with unusual expenditure demands in one direction is to cut the budget in some other direction—but not if you have the Potomac fever. Find excuses, such as the danger is so great—when no one knows how great the danger is. Or, depend upon increased income to balance the budget—when no one knows whether there will be any increase or not. Or, just quit "worshipping a balanced budget" and go back to the original New Deal philosophy of regarding deficit financing as a blessing rather than a curse—when anyone knows that continued deficit financing will as surely destroy a nation as atomic bombs and guided missiles.

The only antidotes to Potomac fever are common sense and patriotism. Use of common sense very quickly stops one from spending money he does not have, especially if he has already borrowed to the hilt. And certainy one is not unpatriotic if he simply refuses to go farther into debt; instead, he will place defense first and cut down on other expenditures until the safety of his country is assured.

Real Leadership Shows During Time Of Crisis

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The value of a solid and practical viewpoint in politics, especially in times of crisis is being demonstrated once more as this Congress gets under way.

The real leadership again comes from the men who are prepared to grapple withthe very serious problem now confronting the U.S. in both the international and domestic fields in the most practical way they can devise. The dreamers and theorists, todescribe them bluntly, for the most part are only adding to the confusion which causes so many Americans to ask in dismay "What is the trouble in Washington?"

President Eisenhower must be numbered among the practical leaders, but it becomes evident at intervals and at his press conferences in particular, that the chief executive is not as well informed as he could be. Whether this is due to a calculated intent to brief him only as a limited number of essentials, or an understandable inability to know and grasp the million details of problems pub before him, it still gives the impression that the President is not well informed.

This is not a desirable situation, but it is offset to some extent by the fact that there are well informed men at his beck and call, even though evidence in a number of cases indicates that he does not get around to consulting them.

In the few days since the opening of the second session of the 85th Congress, the man to meet the rather chilling outlook with greatest directness has been Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Senate majority leader, whose role at this session will be second to none in importance, largely because he is the political engineer who can keep the train on the track. His recipe is a simple one—to keep controversy at a minimum level, stick to legitimate criticism and discourage partisanship, then move toward objectives without deviation.

To achieve these purposes, he must reason with both Democratic and Republican senators on the Senate Preparedness subcommittee which he heads, to run down the facts on the state of U. S. defenses without going off on such tangents as the reorganization of the military staff system and of the entire Pentagon. Thus far he has been fairly successful, largely by holding the hearings behind closed doors to preserve secrecy, then encouraging the witness to talk to the press, while he himself stands by to interpolate. In dealing with fifty aggressive reporters, this requires considerable agility, a quality in which Johnson is not lacking.

Meanwhile President Truman, who has not hidden his light under a bushel at any time since leaving the White House, has belittled the President on several occasions. Senator Mike Mansfield (Dem.-Mont.) assistant majority leader and one of the prominent liberals in his party, has told friends that he cannot vote for the extension of reciprocal trade, which is on the President's program, though the presidential power to raise and lower tariffs has been a credo of the liberal Democratic wing since early in the New Deal.

Mansfield reportedly has said that since he is a cadidnate for re-election this year, he cannot risk the opposition of Montanans who want to limit foreign importsfrom Canada. Johnson who does not have to run again until two years hence, will have to shoulder the inimitable job of easing through the administration program, though there is strong opposition to it in Texas, and in other southern states as well.

He is convinced that its curtailment would do vast harm to the United States in this period of precarious foreign relations with those countries having trade reciprocity with the U. S. Some of his party mates think this argument overdrawn.

Johnson has been the target for criticism in this political capital from those who describe him as a slick politician, a seeker after the presidency, and those who believe that sectional and regional considerations should weigh more heavily than principal objectives. However, in the manner familiar to congressional observers he has insisted that henceforth all other congressional matters will be secondary to national defense.

That will be challenged from time to time by those who want to make farm relief, civil rights, federal educational aid and other measures of lesser importance the most pressing business before the Senate. There will be revolts which could throw the whole legislative program into confusion. With his opposite number Senator William F. Knowland (Rep.-Cal.) the minority leader, a part time absentee while running for governor of California, Johnson will have to use all of his skill and finesse, of which he has plenty, to keep a Senate majority under his direction.

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAYS

Republicans In New Jersey Split

The state of New Jersey is different from other states in that a part of its population works in New York, another part in Philadelphia. Its industrial cities such as Newark, Passaic, Paterson, and there are many more, are constantly growing and its bedroom towns to which New Yorkers move, are increasing in number and population.

Politically, the state used to be Republican but in recent years, it has become Democratic. In fact, the most powerful so-called big city boss developed anywhere in this country, Frank Hague, was a Jersey Democratic satrap. It is a state with large populations of Poles, Hungarians, White Russians and other former Europeans.

Like the Republican Party in New York state, the Republicans in New Jersey have become torn by internecine strife between moderns, as represented by Senator Clifford Case, and the pre-1952 Republicans who have been voting Democratic locally, thus helping Governor Meyner in the last election to enjoy a run-away victory. The pre-1952 Republicans, in New Jersey, believe, as their counterparts in New York believe, that if they have to vote a radical, they would prefer him to be in the Democratic Party.

New Jersey's senior U.S. Senator H. Alexander Smith's term is up and he has wanted to be re-elected. Although he is 77 years old, by no stretch of the imagination can he be regarded as aged, since Senator Green of Rhode Island is 90 and can cha-cha for long and arduous hours. Maybe, Green possesses such gifts because he is a bachelor. At any rate, Smith, who has regularly served the Eisenhower administration faithfully, was declared to be too aged in favor of Bernard Shanley who was the President's secretary and resigned that position to run for Smith's.

Shanley either miscalculated his strength or the value of the President's name, but his candidacy has not built the momentum that had been expected. Furthermore, the Republican leadership of the state had anticipated that by joint action of the two United States senators, Smith and Case, and the state chairman, Samuel L. Bodine, if Shanley could not be put over, they would be able to call off all sorts of other candidates and instead nominate Representative Peter Frelinghuysen Jr., who is an Eisenhower Republican and comes of an old and distinguished New Jersey family.

Such a move, however, is not likely to succeed as there is such strong grass-roots opposition to the Republican leadership in New Jersey that several unexpected persons are presenting themselves as candidates for the nomination of United States senator in Smith's place. Among the most active of these is Robert Morris, who is resigning his position as counsel for the Senate Internal Security subcommittee. Morris has held judicial office in New York State, but comes of a New Jersey family with deep roots in that state. He is actively campaigning as a conservative Republican with a long history of anti-communist activity as counsel for congressional committees. Morris is making an energetic fight for the nomination, going directly to those who are likely to vote in the primaries and rekindling Republican aspirations.

This contest is interesting because it is developing into a clear-cut fight between the modern Republicans and the pre-1952 Republicans on a basis of principle and strategy. Perhaps the greatest strategic weakness of the Republican Party both in New York and New Jersey is that the acknowledged leaders have lost contact with the party's supporters who have in a large measure been drifting away during the past five years.

During the Roosevelt and Truman administrations, these Republicans had targets which they could fight and against which they held local lines. Since Eisenhower became President, their targets have been removed and all they can do is to grumble. Many stay away from the polls; many vote for local Democrats.

This analysis represents Republicans who want nothing for themselves. They ask of their party a candidate for whom they can conscientiously vote. They did not feel that Senator Clifford Case was such a candidate, but they had no organized means to defeat him. Since his election, Senator Clifford Case has had practically no influence in New Jersey. It is possible that the conservative element in the Republican Party will take over in the 1958 election, but it is not at all certain that any Republican can be elected.

VIEWS OF OUR READERS

Monroe, La.

Editor, Morning World,

Congratulations! Congratulations and thanks for publishing the editorial from the Southern States Industrial Council recognizing the need for increased salaries for teachers in this time of national concern. It is true without question that teaching is the most important of all professions — more imporant than medicine, more important than law, more important than engineering — because it is through teaching that doctors, lawyers, scientists, and engineers are born. The schools exist solely for the children of America, the greatest of all our resources for the future. As people working with this most precious of resources, teachers deserve the prestige and income that their high calling merits.

In regard to the paragraph in the editorial which states that raises in salaries should not apply to "the teachers now employed" who are already "getting all they are worth," we can dismiss blanket criticism as no more than an exaggeration for effect. It is inconceivable that all the teachers of America, or all the teachers of Louisiana could be inferior!!!! But we will agree with you that there are sub - standard teachers (along with the thousands of dedicated and excellent teachers.) The fact of which the writer of this editorial was perhaps unaware is that, according to the standards set by the state board of education, there are many teachers in our schoolrooms who are not qualified to teach, or at least are not qualified to teach the subjects or grades to which they are assigned. The standards are there! There are in Louisiana alone about 2,0000 teachers who are teaching on a "T" certificate. Now a "T" certificate means simply that a teacher is teaching out of her field, or has not taken enough training to qualify to teach at all. How do such teachers get into the classroom? Through the scarcity of qualified teachers!!! Yes, the standards are there but the money is lacking to attract and hold enough teachers who meet the standards. And no one deplores this condition more than members of the teaching profession. We feel that even one unqualified teacher in a classroom is damaging to the children and to the whole profession.

In answer to the need for thoroughly qualified teachers there is a commission called TEPS, Teacher Education and Professional Standards. TEPS, which is composed of a cross - section of teachers and administrators, is now operating on the national, state, and local levels. Its aim? To provide ever better education and training for student teachers, and to attract the best qualified young people into the profession. TEPS is also working for the constant and continuing improvement of teachers in service, through study, workshops, and additional college training. Teachers themselves are trying to eliminate all "T" certificates, and to upgrade the quality of teaching at all levels.

SOLON'S PRESSURED

Bastrop, La.

Editor, Morning World:

I have most appreciably received some tract literature from the Association of Citizens Councils of Greenwood, Miss. I note with interest a dissertation written by the association. In one paragraph is written, "Note particularly the population of the states represented by the great integrators and civil righters, Hubert Humphries of Minnesota and Wayne Morse of Oregon. It is plain that these representatives have been pressured and propagandized into advocating integration for the other fellow."

I agree with the gentleman, that they, together with many other representatives, have been pressured into the school integration drive. I could name a surprising number of congressional representatives, and bigwigs around Washington who are charter members of the NAACP; but, for the reason that the law prohibits the naming names, unless the names have already become a matter of publicity. However, the senate judiciary committee could easily locate everyone of them.

Knowledge of the truth reveals many things that are being done behind the screens, and brings to light many deceptions that are being used to lend aid to the advancement of muscovitism and Marxism in the United States. The plain truth is this: "The pressures that are being used in the school integration drive, are found in the pocket - books of ignorant, disloyal, and unscrupulous people who are enemies of civil society, and are disciples of Karl Marx, who first advocated the expansion of socialism by bought and paid-for legislation and court rulings.

FAVORS PROGRESS

Monroe, La.

Editor, Morning World:

I try to place together some of the statements I have read in your paper. I am really trying hard — very hard — to convince myself that maybe we actually do not need an underpass — or anything else. It takes quite some time for something to sink into this hard head of mine, and I certainly have plenty of spare time waiting on long trains to clear the crossings.

Two words keep popping into my mind. They are progress and politics and I certainly hate to get the two confused. There are some people who like to confuse them to us.

Residential streets have almost been turned into thoroughfares by people (like me) who must use them to go to work. Would it be so wrong for us to share in the cost of making main arteries of them? Must it be politics instead of progress?

Maybe 'someone out of the blue' will improve things for us free. Maybe this 'someone' will build an underpass. Maybe this 'someone' will build an auditorium. Wishful thinking? Some say it will happen. Some say we need nothing. Progress or politics?

One of the best programs that we could have ever hoped for has been defeated. The people who have confused progress with politics and played politics with progress are certainly most responsible. They should and will be haunted by every citizen who: knows how to think for himself, knows right from wrong, never expects something for nothing, has faith in and respect for the officials elected, has a sincere desire for a better place to live, thinks of other people.

Early Recognition Of Ailment Vital

Glaucoma is a common cause of blindness. It is suspected whenever vision is blurred or discomfort is noted in or about the eyes. Excessive tearing, dissatisfaction with glasses, mild headaches, slow focusing especially in dim light, pain in the eyes, and colored halos around lamps are enough to warrant a thorough examination.

Diagnosis is made easily by means of a simple, painless test. In glaucoma, tension within the eyeball is increased. The structure contains fluid that keeps the orb from collapsing. This fluid enters through openings in one part of the eye and escapes through a series of drains in another part.

Glaucoma occurs when the outflow is blocked and the excess fluid overdistends the visual compartment. The resulting pressure damages the delicate nerve cells of the retina and, unless recognized and treated early, blindness ensues.

Physical strain, overindulgence in coffee or tea, certain eye drops, and tight fitting clothing such as collars, girdles, or belts makes glaucoma worse. Darkness also influences tension because a dilated pupil affects the area where fluid escapes from the eye. The victim is advised also to avoid excitement, anger, worry, and fear. Emotions affect the flow of aqueous humor and increase tensions in much the same way as blood pressure rises with a psychic upset.

Many glaucoma sufferers are high-strung. The disease is first noted after an aggravating life situation. In one report, the author states the original attack was precipitated in nine cases by witnessing an accident involving close friends or relatives.

PSORIASIS

L. V. Answer me one question, please: Has psoriasis ever been cured?

Reply

Yes. Some individuals are seemingly cured in that the rash has not recurred. Others are relieved for months or years. A high percentage of psoriasis victims always has some evidence of the disease varying from a single lesion to extensive involvement. Furthermore, what helps one sufferer often is useless for another.

Yes, but other neurological disorders must be considered with symptoms like yours.

Ellender Says Federal Budget Can Be Trimmed

mack (D-Mass) said in an interview it is the President's duty as commander in chief to tell Congress how he thinks the Defense Department should be reorganized.

"I want to know his views," McCormack said. "He's the commander in chief. He has the responsibility of letting the Congress know his views. Certainly his views would be worthy of and should receive consideration."

Although Democrats control both the House and Senate, McCormack said this Congress probably would hesitate to order any major reorganization without a plan from the President.

Can Save Money

Ellender, often an economy advocate, said there are many areas in the President's new budget where money can be saved.

"I do not think that, in our haste to catch up with the Russians in technological advances, we can or should deliver a blank check to the Defense Department, or, for that matter, to any department of our government," he said.

He questioned requests for four billions of new foreign aid, saying friendly nations "should now recognized the great strain our country faces in girding itself to meet the challenge in the age of space flight."

Dworshak said the Defense Department began the current fiscal year last July 1 with just under 40 billion dollars of unspent funds that Congress had voted, including more than 13 billions that were unobligated.

He said this included more than 12 billions for Air Force aircraft and missiles; more than 4 billions for Army equipment and missiles; and more than 5 billions for Navy aircraft and related procurement.

Dworshak said funds available just for missiles this present fiscal year total more than 7 billions and that since 1949 Congress has voted more than 9 billions for research and development.

"If there has been any lag or deficiency," Dworshak said his figures, obtained from the Defense Department, indicate the fault is not with Congress.

six others were exiled to various parts of the country at a distance of more than 200 miles from the capital. Today's announcement did not say where he was arrested. The Falange newspaper Arriba blamed the university rioting on Communists and fellow travelers.

Police informants said today information found in Pradera Cortazar's home named him a member of the Central Committee of the Spanish Communist party.

The announcement said some of those arrested had attended the Soviet-sponsored World Youth Festival in Moscow last August. The arrests were made in the past few weeks. One of those held is a woman.

Police said the group had set up offices equipped with multigraph machines and large amounts of propaganda. Mundo Obrero, secret organ of the Communist party, appealed in October for all those opposed to Generalissimo Franco's regime to join in "a day of reconciliation" as a demonstration against high living costs.

waiting transports in San Francisco bay.

Then, in 1947, she was sold to the Greene family and towed through the Panama Canal to New Orleans to begin plying the mighty Mississippi.

Work On The Whangpoo

The Delta King was sold to a Chinese company, and became a passenger vessel on the Whangpoo river.

Of all the old river boats, perhaps the Robert E. Lee and the Natchez are the most famous. Their historic race from New Orleans to St. Louis in 1870 caught the fancy of the entire world.

Began In A Bar

It all started in the bar of the old St. Charles Hotel in New Orleans when Capt. John Cannon of the Robert E. Lee and Capt. Thomas Leathers of the Natchez got into an argument over the speed of their respective steamers.

While the two skippers argued over cool drinks on a hot June evening, a crowd gathered. A bet of $5,000—big money in those days—was made.

The Lee Won

The Lee made the 1,250 mile run in three days, 18 hours and 30 minutes—a record that was never equaled by a steamboat. The Natchez, delayed by a heavy fog, pulled into St. Louis some 3½ hours later.

Steamboats began fading from the scene as fast land transportation became available. Development of deisel engines all but wrote an end to steamboats.

Just what will become of the Delta Queen, no one knows.

session of the U.N. General Assembly to begin work on an agenda for a big power meeting. This is understood to have originated with specialists in U.N. affairs. At the moment it does not rank high on the list of possibilities.

Security Council

Consideration has also been given to calling a meeting of the much smaller U.N. responsicil under normal U.N. responsibilities, the problem of the reunification of Germany is not so considered here. State Department officials say that must be tackled by the four powers which occupied Germany after World War II — the United States, Russia, Britain, and France.

Hence there is considerable interest in the possibility of separating the Eisenhower outer space proposal from the rest of the propositions which the President put up to Bulganin in the note last weekend, bringing it directly and officially to the attention of the United Nations.

Dulles said Thursday that the problem of safeguarding any peace agreement governing the uses of outer space could be assigned to a U.N. commission. This suggested the prospect of an outer-space "police agency" which would involve far-reaching systems of inspection in the United States, Russia, and other countries.

But inspection is precisely the issue on which all disarmaments talks have come to grief for more than 10 years, and there is no reason so far to think that the fate of the President's outer space proposition will be different.

He once accused 10 senators of talking so long and so often that they were guilty of inflicting "cruel and unusual punishment" in violation of the Constitution.

Among the 10 were the current Democratic and Republican leaders, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.) and Sen. William F. Knowland (Calif.), and Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.).

Morse joined in tributes to Neely today, however. He said the Senate "and the American people have suffered a great loss." Neely was "one of the greatest liberals ever to sit in the Senate, and was a constant source of political inspiration to me personally."

In 1954, when most Democrats didn't dare challenge President Eisenhower's personal popularity, Neely went after him with hammer and tongs and was reelected by a wide margin.

Later he stirred a political hornet's nest by criticizing publicity surrounding the President's religious activity and saying Mr. Eisenhower had never joined a church until he entered politics.

Spanned 50 Years

Until he broke his hip and entered the hospital 15 months ago, Neely was a wiry figure with springy step which belied his years. He favored bright, light colored suits and yellow or white shoes.

His political career spanned 50 years. He was elected mayor of Fairmont, W. Va., in 1908 after serving as a private in the Spanish American War, earning a law degree from the University of West Virginia and practicing law.

He came to Washington in 1913 and served three and a half terms in the House. He served two terms in the Senate and a term as governor of his state, then returned to the Senate after World War II.

Sen. Frederick G. Payne (R-Me.) said Neely "was one of the best friends of the District of Columbia in Congress. The people of the District have lost a real champion."

Elderly Woman Facing Charge Of Arson Here

An aged Monroe Negro woman has been returned here from the State Mental Institution at Jackson, to face an arson charge in the burning of a local church on Nov. 1, 1957.

The Liberty Hill Baptist Church at Sixteenth and Short Wood streets, burned about 6 a.m. last November 12, and fire officials began an investigation.

Following investigation the woman was committed to the mental hospital for observation. She has been returned here after examiners ruled her mentally responsible, the sheriff's office disclosed.

Dep. John Welch brought the woman back to Monroe Friday and she was placed in the parish jail under a $1 000 bond.

arate from any 1958 crop production loans. They are designed to affect disaster areas where farm implement dealers, fuel oil suppliers, seed, feed and chemical dealers and others have been caught with large unpaid balances on supplies and services upon which credit was given to farmers.

It has been proposed that repayment of these loans be scheduled over a three to five year period. Present restricted cotton acreage allotments prevent repayment of 1957 losses in only one year.

Recent Meets

The proposals are the result of recent meetings at which Louisiana Delta Council was represented along with Mid-South Production Credit Association officials, government representatives, bankers, implement dealers and agricultural leaders.

Efforts are also being made to obtain a relaxation of the Farmers Home Administration loan policy for disaster areas.

FHA heads appeared before a house agricultural subcommittee last Friday and Saturday regarding this matter and it was indicated that FHA is sympathetic toward such a liberaliztion of policy.

Normally FHA loans to farmers are limited only to the amount needed to finance the next crop.

Congressman James L. Whittier (D-Miss.) said that FHA is considering including in loans some money to pay taxes and probably 10 per cent as a depreciation allowance on farm machinery and other chattels which could be used to meet payments on indebtedness. These proposals have been recommended by the Louisiana Delta Council.

Living Expenses

Also under consideration by FHA is the possibility of the inclusion of funds in loans for family living expenses when this is necessary.

Senators Allen J. Ellender and Russell B. Long and Rep. Otto E. Passman have requested Grant to contact them for fullest cooperation.

While in Washington, Grant will also consult with the local Congressional delegation and USDA officers concerning the Jan. 17 action of the agricultural department in halting sign-up by farmers for the cotton acreage reserve phase of the soil bank.

This surprise action contradicted earlier department assurances that plenty of money was available and that they had until March 7 to file applications, Grant said.

For Nothing

The phrase "Pigs Is Pigs," title of a little booklet that made lasting fame for Ellis Parker Butler some years ago, has a counterpart today when a man signing as Octave Broussard hurls the statement, "Not Raising Hogs Is Fine Business." It gets right in the Congressional Record to be preserved for generations yet to come.

His idea for the letter to Senator Broussard (R-Arix.) resulted from information received that a certain man received a check from Uncle Sam for $1,000 for not raising hogs! Now his letter states, he plans not to raise hogs next season but to gradually push toward the total of 4,000 hogs which he will not raise and he figures the government will not raise and he figures the government will reward him to the extent of $80,000, all for doing nothing!

Air Force Gives Order For Large Scale Satellites

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP) — Heavily-censored testimony of defense contractors revealed today that the Air Force has ordered development of "large scale satellite vehicles" for reconnaissance.

In the same transcript, released by the Senate Preparedness subcommittee after Pentagon clearance, these contractors said lack of funds caused cancellation of a plan for developing an airborne system for advancing warning of long-range enemy missiles.

Eugene Root, vice president and general manager of Lockheed Aircraft Corp., discussed these matters at a secret session Wednesday.

Most of his testimony, along with that of two other Lockheed officials — Robert Gross, board chairman, and R. A. Bailey, chief of advanced systems—was deleted from the transcript made available to newsmen.

Root testified the Air Force "has given us the go ahead" for developing a reconnaissance satellite that could orbit the world and then return.

He said the contract was by letter and on "a limited basis" even though Air Force leaders had considered such a satellite since 1946.

leans Mayor deLesseps Morrison in 1956.

Rayburn, the genial, quick-witted senator Long chose for his top legislative post, Senate finance chairman, hasn't pushed himself.

But Long, during a news conference several weeks ago replied to a question without hesitation. "I don't see any reason why he wouldn't make a good one, he's a good boy."

State reaction in the Long camp from the governor's casual remark interested Rayburn.

"A fellow never overlooks a chance to advance himself," the Bogalusa senator remarked. He is the governor's legislative budget chief.

Long hasn't given the slightest hint whether he'll even back a candidate in 1959. He failed in his support of Carlos Spaht in 1952.

Highway Director Richardson, a hard working state official, is widely known in the state a first class requirement for any successful candidate for governor.

He is well liked by police jurors. A veteran of more than 30 years' public service, Richardson is concentrating on the start of the giant interstate highway program in Louisiana.

In his words, "quite a few people have talked to me, but I haven't given any thought to it. I'm too busy." But people in Baton Rouge are talking about Richardson.

No legislator in recent years has captured the governor's office. Neither Jimmie Davis, Long nor Kennon were ever members of the Legislature.

Lt. Gov. Lether Frazar, another gubernatorial hopeful, had this thought: "I can't remember any lieutenant governor later winning election as governor, except Earl Long. But there's always a possibility it could happen.

"I think it will be after the 1958 Legislature before definite trends in the next governor's race are established," Frazar said.

Sen. W. J. Cleveland, Crowley, Senate president pro tem, is another administration name known to look with favor on the mansion as a future home. He was acting governor a few days last year, just before hurricane Audrey.

The man Earl Long labels as one of the most powerful vote-getters in Louisiana, Jimmie Davis, has signaled his new interest after almost becoming a starter lasttime.

"I've never had half as much solications" to run, Davis said, "but I realize people can change their minds."

Davis has been darting about the state. "I'm always on the go," he admitted. "I'm trying to make a living. I'm always interested in the welfare of the state, just like anyone else."

Davis, asked about reports heard here that his friends had approached former state police Supt. Francis Grevemberg as a possible entry on a Davis ticket? answered, "I haven't approached anyone about anything."

The singing former governor is the one man Earl Long wanted to see stay out of the 1956 campaign.

Public Service Commissioner John J. McKeithen, who early last year indicated privately he might consider making his bid for the top office, said a few months ago the people of northern Louisiana were talking about a possible link in 1959 between Davis and Long.

Long later commented, "I don't think there's any chance of that—but you can't tell what I might do."

Whatever Long decides, if he should throw his weight behind anyone, the chosen man would have a good chance of landing in the second primary. Long managed that with an unknown in 1952. But Kennon failed in a similar effort with Fred Preaus in 1956.

McKeithen, asked about his plans, said, "it's too early to say, but if I should become a candidate, I would run as an independent, just as I did in winning the Public Service Commission race."

Some Louisianians wonder whether McKeithen and Long actually are torn apart, because McKeithen was one of Long's fair-haired boys during 1948-52. He was Long's handpicked choice for second man on the Carlos Spaht Slate.

But McKeithen fought Long savagely over Long's 1956 legislative attempt to expand the Public Service Commission. Long lost in a popular vote. Those who know the governor say McKeithen is a "pet hate."

Rep. Jasper Smith, Caddo Parish, one of the architects of the two thirds barrier against tax raises, has announced his interest. He is a staunch advocate of government economy.

Two of the big names in the 1956 campaign at the moment represent a strong element of mystery for 1959.

New Orleans Mayor deLesseps Morrison is seeking re-election in April. Should he win, politicians say, he might again turn toward the mansion, backed by the know-how gained in the 1956 campaign.

Morrison finished second to Long. The important thing to remember about Morrison is that he was beaten only by Earl Long, considered the greatest campaigner in the state.

Ellender Says Federal Budget Can Be Trimmed

mack (D-Mass) said in an interview it is the President's duty as commander in chief to tell Congress how he thinks the Defense Department should be reorganized.

"I want to know his views," McCormack said. "He's the commander in chief. He has the responsibility of letting the Congress know his views. Certainly his views would be worthy of and should receive consideration."

Although Democrats control both the House and Senate, McCormack said this Congress probably would hesitate to order any major reorganization without a plan from the President.

Can Save Money

Ellender, often an economy advocate, said there are many areas in the President's new budget where money can be saved.

"I do not think that, in our haste to catch up with the Russians in technological advances, we can or should deliver a blank check to the Defense Department, or, for that matter, to any department of our government," he said.

He questioned requests for four billions of new foreign aid, saying friendly nations "should now recognized the great strain our country faces in girding itself to meet the challenge in the age of space flight."

Dworshak said the Defense Department began the current fiscal year last July 1 with just under 40 billion dollars of unspent funds that Congress had voted, including more than 13 billions that were unobligated.

He said this included more than 12 billions for Air Force aircraft and missiles; more than 4 billions for Army equipment and missiles; and more than 5 billions for Navy aircraft and related procurement.

Dworshak said funds available just for missiles this present fiscal year total more than 7 billions and that since 1949 Congress has voted more than 9 billions for research and development.

"If there has been any lag or deficiency," Dworshak said his figures, obtained from the Defense Department, indicate the fault is not with Congress.

six others were exiled to various parts of the country at a distance of more than 200 miles from the capital. Today's announcement did not say where he was arrested. The Falange newspaper Arriba blamed the university rioting on Communists and fellow travelers.

Police informants said today information found in Pradera Cortazar's home named him a member of the Central Committee of the Spanish Communist party.

The announcement said some of those arrested had attended the Soviet-sponsored World Youth Festival in Moscow last August. The arrests were made in the past few weeks. One of those held is a woman.

Police said the group had set up offices equipped with multigraph machines and large amounts of propaganda. Mundo Obrero, secret organ of the Communist party, appealed in October for all those opposed to Generalissimo Franco's regime to join in "a day of reconciliation" as a demonstration against high living costs.

Delta Queen Faces Uncertain Future

waiting transports in San Francisco bay.

Then, in 1947, she was sold to the Greene family and towed through the Panama Canal to New Orleans to begin plying the mighty Mississippi.

Work On The Whangpoo

The Delta King was sold to a Chinese company, and became a passenger vessel on the Whangpoo river.

Of all the old river boats, perhaps the Robert E. Lee and the Natchez are the most famous. Their historic race from New Orleans to St. Louis in 1870 caught the fancy of the entire world.

Began In A Bar

It all started in the bar of the old St. Charles Hotel in New Orleans when Capt. John Cannon of the Robert E. Lee and Capt. Thomas Leathers of the Natchez got into an argument over the speed of their respective steamers.

While the two skippers argued over cool drinks on a hot June evening, a crowd gathered. A bet of $5,000—big money in those days—was made.

The Lee Won

The Lee made the 1,250 mile run in three days, 18 hours and 30 minutes—a record that was never equaled by a steamboat. The Natchez, delayed by a heavy fog, pulled into St. Louis some 3½ hours later.

Steamboats began fading from the scene as fast land transportation became available. Development of deisel engines all but wrote an end to steamboats.

Just what will become of the Delta Queen, no one knows.

session of the U.N. General Assembly to begin work on an agenda for a big power meeting. This is understood to have originated with specialists in U.N. affairs. At the moment it does not rank high on the list of possibilities.

Security Council

Consideration has also been given to calling a meeting of the much smaller U.N. responsicil under normal U.NI responsibilities, the problem of the reunification of Germany is not so considered here. State Department officials say that must be tackled by the four powers which occupied Germany after World War II — the United States, Russia, Britain, and France.

Hence there is considerable interest in the possibility of separating the Eisenhower outer space proposal from the rest of the propositions which the President put up to Bulganin in the note last weekend, bringing it directly and officially to the attention of the United Nations.

Dulles said Thursday that the problem of safeguarding any peace agreement governing the uses of outer space could be assigned to a U.N. commission. This suggested the prospect of an outer-space "police agency" which would involve far-reaching systems of inspection in the United States, Russia, and other countries.

But inspection is precisely the issue on which all disarmaments talks have come to grief for more than 10 years, and there is no reason so far to think that the fate of the President's outer space proposition will be different.

He once accused 10 senators of talking so long and so often that they were guilty of inifiicting "cruel and unusual punishment" in violation of the Constitution.

Among the 10 were the current Democratic and Republican leaders, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.) and Sen. William F. Knowland (Calif.), and Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.).

Morse joined in tributes to Neely today, however. He said the Senate "and the American people have suffered a great loss." Neely was "one of the greatest liberals ever to sit in the Senate, and was a constant source of political inspiration to me personally."

In 1954, when most Democrats didn't dare challenge President Eisenhower's personal popularity, Neely went after him with hammer and tongs and was reelected by a wide margin.

Later he stirred a political hornet's nest by criticizing publicity surrounding the President's religious activity and saying Mr. Eisenhower had never joined a church until he entered politics.

Spanned 50 Years

Until he broke his hip and entered the hospital 15 months ago, Neely was a wiry figure with springy step which belied his years. He favored bright, light colored suits and yellow or white shoes.

His political career spanned 50 years. He was elected mayor of Fairmont, W. Va., in 1908 after serving as a private in the Spanish American War, earning a law degree from the University of West Virginia and practicing law.

He came to Washington in 1913 and served three and a half terms in the House. He served two terms in the Senate and a term as governor of his state, then returned to the Senate after World War II.

Sen. Frederick G. Payne (R-Me.) said Neely "was one of the best friends of the District of Columbia in Congress. The people of the District have lost a real champion."

Elderly Woman Facing Charge Of Arson Here

An aged Monroe Negro woman has been returned here from the State Mental Institution at Jackson, to face an arson charge in the burning of a local church on Nov. 1, 1957.

The Liberty Hill Baptist Church at Sixteenth and Short Wood streets, burned about 6 a.m. last November 12, and fire officials began an investigation.

Following investigation the woman was committed to the mental hospital for observation. She has been returned here after examiners ruled her mentally responsible, the sheriff's office disclosed.

Dep. John Welch brought the woman back to Monroe Friday and she was placed in the parish jail under a $1,000 bond.

arate from any 1958 crop production loans. They are designed to affect disaster areas where farm implement dealers, fuel oil suppliers, seed, feed and chemical dealers and others have been caught with large unpaid balances on supplies and services upon which credit was given to farmers.

It has been proposed that repayment of these loans be scheduled over a three to five year period. Present restricted cotton acreage allotments prevent repayment of 1957 losses in only one year.

Recent Meets

The proposals are the result of recent meetings at which Louisiana Delta Council was represented along with Mid-South Production Credit Association officials, government representatives, bankers, implement dealers and agricultural leaders.

Efforts are also being made to obtain a relaxation of the Farmers Home Administration loan policy for disaster areas.

FHA heads appeared before a house agricultural subcommittee last Friday and Saturday regarding this matter and it was indicated that FHA is sympathetic toward such a liberaliztion of policy.

Normally FHA loans to farmers are limited only to the amount needed to finance the next crop.

Congressman James L. Whittier (D-Miss.) said that FHA is considering including in loans some money to pay taxes and probably 10 per cent as a depreciation allowance on farm machinery and other chattels which could be used to meet payments on indebtedness. Miss. Plans Legislative Council Bill

By DOUGLAS STARR

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 18 (AP) — Creation of a legislative council will be one of the major pieces of legislation considered during the third week of this rapidly moving 1958 Legislature.

The House meets at 9 a.m. Tuesday, planning a brief session to give plenty of time for committees to replenish the House calendar, and the Senate meets that afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Sen. Stanton Hall of Hattiesburg plans to call up the council bill in the Senate Wednesday morning. He anticipates little opposition in the Senate, which has approved creation of such a council several times in the 16 years Hall has advocated the proposal.

Major opposition — mostly in the House — centers around the argument that the council would be a little legislature, making studies, drafting bills and telling the full Legislature what to do.

But Hall argues the Legislature would have control over the council, as it does over interim committees, because the council members would merely advise the Legislature.

Under his plan, the council would consist of the lieutenant governor, Speaker of the House, eight senators and eight representatives. Total cost of the operation has been estimated at between $70,000 and $100,000.

Duties of the legislative council would be to conduct research, draft proposed bills, make recommendations to the Legislature and generally save time in the early stages of the session by ironing out the details during the months between sessions, Hall says.

Councils similar to Hall's proposed group are working in 34 other states.

The south Mississippi senator is optimistic about the council's chances during this session. "I have more hope this time," he told newsmen. "I don't see an organized opposition to the proposal.

"In addition, the lawmakers can look at the operation of the Tax Study Committee which did practically the same thing the council would do: make a full study of a proposition, in this case, taxes, and then draft proposed bills for the Legislature to consider.

"But that doesn't mean the Legislature has to adopt the committee's recommendations."

Other legislation in committee includes a Senate bill to abolish the State Sovereignty Commission, the state's watchdog agency over segregation.

Sen. William Lucas of Macon, the bill's author and self-styled watchdog of the Treasury, has declined to explain his reason for abolishing the $250,000-a-biennium agency.

House committees will study bills designed to effect major reforms in laws for state aid for hospitalization of the indigent sick.

The proposals were drafted after a three-year study. They call for county participation in the program now financed by the state with a 1½ million-dollar budget.

A bloc of bills affecting Mississippi's insurance laws have been recommended by an interim study committee headed by Rep. Charles Jacobs of Bolivar County.

The committe said many citizens "have been defrauded by insurance companies, particularly health and accident insurance companies which are incorporated outside the state and are not authorized to do business here."

BRYNNER OF HOLLYWOOD

Yul Sleeps 5 Hours, Works On His Ph.D.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 18 (AP)—Yul Brynner sleeps five hours a night. He eats every 2½ to 3 hours. He keeps his Oscar in a dark corner of his den because it's so shiny.

At one time or another in his 37 years, he has learned nine languages. He's writing a thesis to get a degree as a doctor of philosophy.

Don't get the idea that information like this is easy to come by. Yul Brynner is not what you would call a simple man to interview.

First, he's hard to get to. It's not that he dislikes interviews, it's just that he likes to concentrate while working.

When you do get to him, he's hard to pin down. He likes his privacy, doesn't talk easily about his private life, won't grant interviews at home, as many stars do. Not only that, he's more likely to be in France, or Mexico, or some other faraway spot, than in Hollywood.

So you interview him a moment here, a moment there. This particular one started last March, when he won his Academy Award for "The King and I." It wound up the other day on the set of "The Buccaneer," in which he plays the pirate Jean Lafitte. In between, a lot of questions were posed and some of them were answered.

The conclusion, after nearly nine months: He can be exasperatingly evasive and disarmingly cooperative. Sometimes he's both at practically the same time.

The logical place to start an interview is to ask Brynner about his bald head. How does he keep it that way? By simply not stopping with his electric razor when he gets up to his ears, he answers. He just goes on over the top of his head.

But you've touched a tender spot. Maybe it was the wrong way to start.

"Is nothing supposed to be under that shaved head?" he explodes. "If I thought that was the case, I'd blow my brains out!"

Then, in a calmer mood, he tells you he started wearing it that way for "The King and I" on Broadway six years ago, now wouldn't change it for anything.

"I don't have to fuss around, like you, with combing. Besides, it doesn't much matter how a man looks. It's what he does that matters."

Brynner has a rumbling yet staccato voice, like a bass viol in a barrel. He has a big smile, and perfect teeth show through thick, sensuous lips. His large brown eyes have often been described as hypnotic. He has an electromagnetic personality, a devil-may-care manner that may be part Brynner, part Lafitte.

For the part, he was wearing a wig—handsome, brown, Napoleonic, with Presley sideburns — and smoking a cigar. How did he like the wig?

"Don't know the difference," he snaps.

You have heard all sort of stories about where he came from, who his parents were. Mongolian? Swiss? Gypsy? Each time you try to get into his past, however, he backs away.

Well, then, what are his future plans? He's working 15 to 16 hours a day acting, seeing rushes, attending script conferences, getting ready for another trip to Europe.

Someday, he says, he intends to take a winter season off.

"Not to rest so much as to take a certain amount of perspective," he goes on. "You go to a certain extent in art then have to get away from it and find a kind of summation."

About his thesis toward a doctor's degree in philosophy—he has bachelor's and master's degrees from the French Sorbonne—Brynner says:

"I've written thousands and thousands of words on it but don't consider it conclusive. Every six months I rewrite two or three chapters. Thank God, as you grow you learn, you think better."

One Killed, One Hurt In Crash Of Plane In N.M.

FARMINGTON, N. M. (UP) — One man was killed and one critically injured when their light plane crashed shortly after takeoff here today.

Roy Montgomery, 31, the pilot, told police the plane's engine quit about 100 feet off the ground. The craft plunged to earth, skidded about 100 feet through a fence and onto a highway.

Wesley Tison, 46, a passenger, was pinned in the wreckage and died a short time later. Both men worked for the Montgomery Dirt Contracting Co. of Midland, Tex., and Farmington. Montgomery and Tison formerly lived in Midland.

Montgomery was rushed to an Albuquerque hospital by ambulance.

Texan Charged With Murder In Man's Slaying

HOUSTON (UP)—Police Saturday charged Russell Syphrett, 39, with murder in the shotgun death of Jesse Earl Fountain, 18, of Willis, Tex. A Houston man, Wilbur Dalton Barfield, 23, was in serious condition from injuries suffered from the same shotgun blast.

Police said Syphrett told them he was shooting at Barfield, after Barfield and several others had engaged in fist fights at his barbecue stand Friday night.

Syphrett said he saw Barfield aiming a pistol at 19- year- old David Howard Brown so he grabbed a shotgun and fired a blast in Barfield's direction. Syphrett said he only fired the shotgun once but the blast apparently struck both Fountain and Barfield.

Police Lt. B. Porter identified Barfield as the leader of a gang of local hoodlums known as the Laura Koppe gang. Both Barfield and Fountain were armed with .38 revolvers, Porter said.

Alvin Dark To Speak At Jena Banquet

JENA (Special) — Alvin Dark of Lake Charles, one of Louisiana's all-time great professional baseball players, will be the principal speaker at the 10th annual by the First Baptist Church of Jena and scheduled for Friday night, Feb. 7, it was announced this week by Elmo Tullos, general chairman.

The "sweetheart banquet" is an eagerly - anticipated event each year at the Valentine season, with attendance open to all young people of the Jena area. It is not restricted only to young people of the First Baptist Church, Tullos stressed, but is open to all.

"Take Me Out to the Ball Game" will be the theme of this year's banquet in honor of Dark, shortstop for the St. Louis Cardinals of the National league and prior to that a long-time star with the New York (now San Francisco) Giants.

'Louisianians'

In addition to the guest speaker, another outstanding attraction for this year's event will be the appearance of the male chorus from Louisiana college, "The Louisianians," a 60-voice choir which has gained southwide and national fame in appearances at Southern Baptist conventions and other gatherings and through personal appearances at churches and community gatherings throughout Louisiana.

Youth Destined For Gatesville

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (UP)—Police Saturday were preparing to return 14-year-old Pablo Garcia to Gatesville State School for Boys for stabbing a youth with a hunting knife in front of a junior high school.

Bruce Lee Whitlock, 16, was in fair condition today after spending eight hours on the operating table. Police said Garcia, who was released recently from the school after serving time for possession of marijuana, stabbed Whitlock with a six-inch hunting knife in an argument.

Police Juvenile Officer Richard Palmer said Garcia has been handled by police for firearms violations, burglary, theft and abusive language since his release.

Even the way that trim, slim steering wheel feels in your hand tells you there's potent performance in this package!

Just twist the key. This one snaps awake and into action on a moment's notice, and puts out the kind of performance that puts pleasure into driving. V8's with up to 280 h.p. supply the action. Full Coil suspension and a new body-frame design turn that action into a smooth, sweet-handling ride. If you like Chevrolet's looks, wait till you sample its life! Your Chevrolet dealer will arrange it.

LOCAL OPTION?

Prohibition Wall Cracking In Miss.

By DOUGLAS STARR

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 18 (AP) — The prohibitionists' wall of "no compromise" appears cracking again. But whether it will crumble enough to permit legalization of whisky on a local option basis is hard to say.

The barriers were relaxed in 1952 when the question was put to a vote. About half of the state's 400,000 voters participated in the referendum and the result was less than 2-1 against local option.

This small majority has been the hammering point of wets ever since and they never fail to mention it at every opportunity.

The latest relaxation of the barrier to home rule on the whiskey question came this week when Mrs. R. L. Ezelle, state president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, conceded that counties should "have the Democratic right to vote to have legalization if they want."

Her new position, made public at a prohibition forum, parallels that of Sen. George Owens of Pontotoc, another ardent dry, who has made a two-year study of prohibition as practiced in Mississippi.

Owens personally favors a bone-dry law strictly enforced. But as a result of his study, he has added that permitting counties to vote themselves out from under the law would end the hypocritical situation in which the state finds itself.

Mrs. Ezelle apparently echoed Owens' ideas when she told the public forum:

"People need to face up to the facts and look at the other side. The trouble is, we don't face up to our problems enough. If we drys can't win, we have no right to hold on to the (prohibition) law."

Mississippi has been legally dry since 1909, banning sale, transportation and possession of whisky.

But certain areas in the state, principally the tourist-conscious Gulf Coast, Adams, Warren, Washington, and other border counties, sell whisky as openly as any wet areas.

And whisky is available in virtually every other county, sometimes at lower prices than in legitimate stores in other states.

One of the major hypocracies of Mississippi's enforcement of its prohibition laws is the taxing of illegal sales of the beverage.

There is only a special 10 per cent black market tax on the whisky but an additional 2 per cent tax on retail sales.

Some preachers and other drys have advocated repeal of these taxes but the legislators who vote dry on liquor won't give up the revenue.

They insist the revenue be spread around to every county and not returned only to those counties in which the taxes are collected.

Two statements regarding whisky are well known in legislative circles:

"Preachers and bootleggers always vote dry."

"I'll vote dry as long as I can stagger to the polls."

Travel Slides Will Be Shown

A film on better travel slides will be shown to members of the Northeast Louisiana Camera Club at the organization's regular meeting this week, it was announced today.

The group will convene at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Army Reserve building T39-3, Selman Field.

Members are requested to bring prints or slides to the session for discussion following the showing of the film.

693 Are Signed In Franklin For Soil Bank Plan

WINNSBORO (Special) —A total of 693 Franklin parish cotton farmers filed soil bank applications before Agriculture Department officials suspended the nation - wide program Friday.

Seventy - five others were placed on a waiting list Friday pending an investigation by the federal agency to determine how much of its allotted $178-million dollars has already been obligated.

E. J. LaForge, office manager of the Agricultural Stabilization Committee's local office, pointed out that the 693 processed applications earmark $795,000 to local farmers who banked a total of 12,000 acres.

The suspension by the Agriculture Department, as carried by a Washington news dispatch, provided for the waiting lists, and pointed out that after the fund study additional applications may be taken if money is available.

Winnsboro Bank Re-Elects Heads

The Winnsboro State Bank and Trust Company has re-elected all officers and directors to serve for the ensuing year.

Officers are B. S. Landis, chairman of the board; W. F. Prickett, president; H. I. Hill, vice president; C. B. Sherrouse, vice president; W. B. Scriber, cashier; Elizabeth W. Henry, assistant cashier; Herman Netherland, assistant cashier, and H. B. Rountree, manager of the Gilbert branch.

Directors for 1958 are John W. Baker, C. J. Grayson, C. H. Hatfield, Landis, Prickett, Rountree, Sherrouse, J. B. Snyder, W. M. Snyder, Jr., and W. H. Thompson.

Three Area Firms File For Charters

Two Twin City firms and one from Bastrop have filed documents with Secretary of State Wade O. Martin Jr. for domestic charters during the past week.

Eternalite Specialty Sales, Inc., offering residential supplies for sale, has been incorporated at 204 S. Grand street in Monroe.

In West Monroe, the Ouachita Gravel Company, Inc. changed its corporate name to Lakeside Sand and Gravel, Inc.

Mullis Heads Fifth District Dental Society

DR. H. D. MULLIS

Dr. Hunter D. Mullis of Monroe has been elected president of the Fifth District Dental Society, succeeding Dr. John Hooks of Rayville.

Also named to office at the organization's annual meeting at the Lotus Club here were Dr. Donald Quinn of Bastrop, vice president, and Dr. Ben Baugh of Ruston, secretary-treasurer.

Dr. W. E. Smith, Jr., of Monroe, was named to a three-year term as member of the board of governors to serve with Dr. Val Ringo and Dr. Rabun Smith, both of Monroe.

Dr. Neil Buie of Monroe, continues as director to the State Society of Dentists for another year.

During the business period of the meeting, the district society reaffirmed its belief in the flouridation of water supplies.

Two guest speakers appeared on the program. They were Dr. Victor Marquer of New Orleans, president elect of the State Society of Dentists, and Dr. Joseph P. Thiriot of New Orleans, newly appointed executive secretary of the Louisiana Dental Association.

Capitol News Release Errs

A news story from Baton Rouge on Thursday concerning appointment of a coroner for LaSalle Parish contained an error for which a correction has been asked.

The news release from the state capital stated that Dr. T. L. Trax of Jena had been appointed by Gov. Earl K. Long as coroner to succeed "the late" Dr. F. A. Thomas. The story should have read that Dr. Trax succeeds the late Dr. J. M. Kittrell.

Dr. Thomas formerly was coroner of LaSalle Parish but resigned. He was succeeded by Dr. Kittrell who died some time ago while still in office.

Dr. Thomas said he carried on his medical practice in good health.

4 Wounded By Shotgun, Rifle Fire

The Indians waited patiently across the road, their numbers growing with each passing minute.

Shortly after 8:03 p.m., shouts were heard from the Indians asking for the Rev. James Cole, self-styled leader of the Ku Klux Klan in North Carolina.

Minutes later, when there was no response from the Klansmen, the Indians began moving across the road in a body.

Then, hundreds of guns barked, their flashes showing that most of them were being fired into air. The shooting went on for nearly half an hour.

Shortly before 9 o'clock the squad of troopers arrived under command of Capt. C. R. Williams. They immediately began firing tear gas shells into the howling, milling mob.

In minutes the troopers had rescued the Klansmen, only one of whom was robed. They were placed in their cars parked in a nearby field. There they were hooted at by Indians who walked among the cars and banged upon them with rifle and shotgun butts.

At a signal from Capt. Williams the autos bearing the retreating Klansmen began moving out of the field. Several became stuck in loose sand.

Williams said he had not planned to police the rally, but placed all troopers in the area under alert. Shortly before dusk, he said, he ordered the troopers to muster after "sensing we might be needed."

Williams said one Klansman was known to have been wounded, although not seriously. A television cameraman was clipped on the ear with a .22 rifle bullet. A third man was hit in the hand. A fourth, believed to have been a spectator, was hit above the eye with a shotgun pellet.

Roberson County Sheriff Malcolm McLeod was on the scene with about 15 men he had deputized. Minutes before the riot and gunfire, McLeod warned the Rev. Cole, a Free Will Baptist preacher, that he could not control the crowd with so few men.

Cole, visibly shaken, spoke of the U.S. Constitution and his right to hold the rally. He said, "We don't want to hurt anybody."

After the Klansmen left, the Indians held up the huge and blazing Klan banner as a trophy and allowed photographers to take their picture.

Reporters tried to find Cole after the shooting stopped. He was not in evidence.

They also displayed as trophies the microphone and pieces of the public address system taken from the Klan.

A number of autos were badly hit by shotgun pellets and rifle bullets. One reporter said he saw a long line of Indians standing beside the highway firing their weapons into the area of parked cars.

Williams said his troopers confiscated hundreds of rifles and shotguns, many of them taken from autos driven to the scene by Indians. One trooper estimated he had 100 or more in the truck of his patrol cruiser.

One person was reported arrested for carrying a concealed weapon and public drunkenness. He was found drunk in an area outside the shooting, and was carrying a loaded shotgun and pistol.

Bulletin Issued On Missing Man

Mrs. Maxine Evans, 308 Layton St., said her husband Don R. Evans, 29, was last seen walking in the 600 block of Arkansas street.

She told City Police that her attempts to locate him had proven futile. According to Mrs. Evans her husband may have gone to Shreveport, Alexandria, or Dallas Tex., as he had been seeking emplomyent in all three places.

When last seen Evans was wearing a dark brown suit, a maroon shirt, but carried no luggage, the woman said. She described her husband as being 5-feet 11-inches tall, weighing 165 pounds, and having a visible scar on the left jaw.

TWICE AND OUT

BELLAIRE, Mich. — (UP) — Luck finally ran out for an eight-point buck killed near here by Thane Reiley of Flint. Reiley found a .22 caliber bullet imbedded in fat about a quarter of an inch from the buck's heart where he apparently was hit during the 1956 deer season.

No Prejudice In Discipline, Claims Central

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 18 (AP)—School officials have acted fairly and have shown no racial prejudice in disciplining pupils who took part in integration incidents at Central High School, the Little Rock School Board said today.

In a midterm review of integration at Central High, where nine Negroes attend classes with some 2,000 white pupils, the board also said the behavior of most pupils was beyond reproach.

Since Sept. 25, when the six Negro girls and three boys began going to school regularly under the protection of federal troops, several minor clashes between whites and Negroes have been reported.

The latest incident occurred Thursday when a white boy allegedly threw soup on a Negro girl in the school cafeteria.

Both Negro and white pupils have been suspended at various times during the past few months as a result of racial incidents.

"Because of integration, there has been more tension in our school system than usual," the statement said. "Therefore our staff has moved slowly and with restrained mildness in handling all children."

4 Wounded By Shotgun, Rifle Fire

The Indians waited patiently across the road, their numbers growing with each passing minute.

Shortly after 8:03 p.m.; shouts were heard from the Indians asking for the Rev. James Cole, self-styled leader of the Ku Klux Klan in North Carolina.

Minutes later, when there was no response from the Klansmen, the Indians began moving across the road in a body.

Then, hundreds of guns barked, their lashes showing that most of them were being fired into air. The shooting went on for nearly half an hour.

Shortly before 9 o'clock the squad of troopers arrived under command of Capt. C. R. Williams. They immediately began firing tear gas shells into the howling, milling mob.

In minutes the troopers had rescued the Klansmen, only one of whom was robed. They were placed in their cars parked in a nearby field. There they were hooted at by Indians who walked among the cars and banged upon them with rifle and shotgun butts.

At a signal from Capt. Williams the autos bearing the retreating Klansmen began moving out of the field. Several became stuck in loose sand.

Williams said he had not planned to police the rally, b utplaced all troopers in the area under alert. Shortly before dusk, he said, he ordered the troopers to muster after "sensing we might be needed."

Williams said one Klansman was known to have been wounded, although not seriously. A television cameraman was clipped on the ear with a .22 rifle bullet. A third man was hit in the hand. A fourth, believed to have been a spectator, was hit above the eye with a shotgun pellet.

Robeson County Sheriff Malcolm McLeod was on the scene with about 15 men he had deputized. Minutes before the riot and gunfire, McLeod warned the Rev. Cole, a Free Will Baptist preacher, that he could not control the crowd with so few men.

Cole, visibly shaken, spoke of the U.S. Constitution and his right to hold the rally. He said, "We don't want to hurt anybody."

After the Klansmen left, the Indians held up the huge and blazing Klan banner as a trophy and allowed photographers to take their picture.

Reporters tried to find Cole after the shooting stopped. He was not in evidence.

They also displayed as trophies the microphone and pieces of the public address system taken from the Klan.

A number of autos were badly hit by shotgun pellets and rifle bullets. One reporter said he saw a long line of Indians standing beside the highway firing their weapons into the area of parked cars.

Williams said his troopers confiscated hundreds of rifles and shotguns, many of them taken from autos driven to the scene by Indians. One trooper estimated he had 100 or more in the truck of his patrol cruiser.

One person was reported arrested for carrying a concealed weapon and public drunkenness. He was found drunk in an area outside the shooting, and was carrying a loaded shotgun and pistol.

Bulletin Issued On Missing Man

Mrs. Maxine Evans, 308 Layton St., said her husband Don R. Evans, 29, was last seen walking in the 600 block of Arkansas street.

She told City Police that her attempts to locate him had proven futile. According to Mrs. Evans her husband may have gone to Shreveport, Alexandria, or Dallas Tex., as he had been seeking emplomyent in all three places.

When last seen Evans was wearing a dark brown suit, a maroon shirt, but carried no luggage, the woman said. She described her husband as being 5-feet 11-inches tall, weighing 165 pounds, and having a visible scar on the left jaw.

TWICE AND OUT

BELLAIRE, Mich. — (UP) — Luck finally ran out for an eight-point buck killed near here by Thane Reiley of Flint. Reiley found a .22 caliber bullet imbedded in fat about a quarter of an inch from the buck's heart where he apparently was hit during the 1956 deer season.

No Prejudice In Discipline, Claims Central

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 18 (AP)—School officials have acted fairly and have shown no racial prejudice in disciplining pupils who took part in integration incidents at Central High School, the Little Rock School Board said today.

In a midterm review of integration at Central High, where nine Negroes attend classes with some 2,000 white pupils, the board also said the behavior of most pupils was beyond reproach.

Since Sept. 25, when the six Negro girls and three boys began going to school regularly under the protection of federal troops, several minor clashes between whites and Negroes have been reported.

The latest incident occurred Thursday when a white boy allegedly threw soup on a Negro girl in the school cafeteria.

Both Negro and white pupils have been suspended at various times during the past few months as a result of racial incidents.

"Because of integration, there has been more tension in our school system than usual," the statement said. "Therefore our staff has moved slowly and with restrained mildness in handling all children."

Russia Commits More Aid Funds Than U.S. Does

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP) — Russia is reported to have promised half a billion dollars more in economic and financial aid to key countries in the Middle East and Asia than the United States has committed in the last 30 months.

Officials who came up with this figure today said the Soviets had concentrated on nations with some strategic importance in either political or military terms.

The United States, by contrast, has tried to extend aid to any friendly country which sought to keep its independence.

The figures prepared for study in the State Department and other government agencies showed that total Soviet tid in the period, July 1, 1955, through Dec. 31, 1957, for 11 countries amounted to $1,885,000,000 of which approximately 400 million dollars was military assistance going primarily to Egypt and Syria.

U. S. Under

For the same countries, the official study showed, the United States provided assistance in the form of outright aid, funds for economic development, loans or surplus food supplies with a total value in the 30-month period of 899 million dollars.

Here is a country-by-country comparison as compiled by government officials, calculated in millions of dollars, with U.S. aid first, Soviet second:

Afghanistan, 48, 145; Burma, 43, 000; Cambodia, 96, 22; Ceylon, 11, 20; Egypt, 16, 480; India 419, 270; Indonesia, 124, 110; Syria, 000, 280; Yugoslavia, 135, 465; Nepal 7, 13; Hemen, 000 10. Totals: U.S., 899; Soviet Union, 1,885.

The figures for Egypt and Syria include the military aid supplied by Russia to those countries.

In the case of Burma, officials said there has been an exchange of gifts between Burma and the Soviet Union and that the value of the gifts on each side probably cancel out although the goods supplied to Burma by Russia were considered or practical value to that country.

The United States' newest agency to counter Russia's economic offensive, the Development Loan Fund, reported it already has received foreign loan applications totaling a billion dollars.

The fund, with 300 million dollars now available and 625 million more on request, expects to approve loan projects totaling around 200 million dollars by June 30, officials said today.

They added that approximately half a billion dollars in applications have come in during the past two or three weeks, mostly from the under-developed nations of the Middle and Far East, Asia and Latin America.

The fund, approved by Congress last year, is intended to be additional source of financing for economic development in other countries. It will make loans of a type not available from other financial institutions.

Its basic philosophy, officials said, will be to help other countries and not just to favor U.S. exports. The loan recipients, they added, may purchase materials anywhere in the world.

Loans will be of two types:

1—To finance normally nonprofit-making projects such as roads, dams, or schools. Such loans will carry an interest rate of 3½ per cent and up.

2—To finance profit-making enterprises, either private or governmental. These loans will pay interest of 5½ to 5¾ per cent — basically the same as those charged by the Export-Import Bank.

Check Charge Place Against Couple Here

Donald E. Burgess, 22, and Rowena J. Burgess, 17, both gave Long Beach, Calif., as their address and were held in the parish jail. Their two daughters, aged two and one, were temporarily placed in custody of the state receiving home at Bosco.

The pair admitted passing checks in Florida, Montgomery, Alt., and Monroe, authorities said.

Officals said the woman posed as a bona fide resident using a local name, had cashed two $20 checks and attempted to pass a third, all drawn on her husband. The same mode of operation was used in Alabama and Florida, officials were told. A number of prepared checks were taken in the arrests, police said.

Police were notified by a local businessman who was acquainted with the local woman, whose name the Burgess woman allegedly used. Downtown merchants were alerted by authorities, resulting in the pair's apprehension.

Tenn. Attorney Will Address Jaycee Group

A Memphis attorney, Bill Wolfe, will be the guest speaker at the annual distinguished service award-boss night banquet set for tomorrow night by the Monroe and West Monroe Junior Chambers of Commerce.

Time of the event, planned for the Virginia Hotel, will be 7:30 p.m.

Wolfe, active in Jaycee work for several years, was elected one of the 10 national vice presidents at the Atlanta, Ga., convention in 1955.

After completing his term, he returned to his law practice in Memphis. He has spoken here before, and also appeared as a speaker at the Shreveport convention in 1956, both during his term as vice president.

Highlighting the banquet will be announcement of the Outstanding Young Man of 1957 for the Twin Cities. He has been selected on the basis of contribution to the community, leadership ability and personal accomplishments.

Four Judges

Four judges, Mayor W. L. "Jack" Howard, Mayor J. Allan Norris, Harvey McDonald and Lee Vanderpool, were selected by the Jaycees to screen the letters submitted and to choose the winner of the award.

John Kelso announced that his committee, composed of Joe Rabun, Bill Hargiss, John Lolley, Dick LsBaun and Caroline Masur has completed arrangements for a good program.

Garland Shell will be master of ceremonies for the event and will lead the reading of the Jaycee Creed, after which each member will introduce his boss. The bosses will be special guests and will get a first-hand chance to view plans for future projects of the Jaycees.

Bob Aymond will outline plans for the Monroe chapter, while Walter Frank will give details of future projects of the West Monroe group.

JAYCEE WEEK—Gov. Earl K. Long (right), signs the proclamation making Jaycee Week official as Bob G. Fallin of Ruston (seated), state Jaycee president, and John Kavanaugh, Ruston, state chairman of the week and state Jaycee editor, look on.

HERE TODAY

Jaycees To Launch Special Observance

Launching national Junior Chamber of Commerce Week in Monroe will be a 30-minute presentation over a local TV station today at 1 p.m.

Billy Hargiss, president of the Monroe Jaycees, and B. F. Cummings, president of the West Monroe group will appear on the program, along with 10 or 12 other Jaycees representing chapters in El Dorado, Ark., Vicksburg, Miss., Bastrop, Lake Providence, Farmerville and Ruston, as well as the Twin Cities.

Hargiss and Cummings pointed out that each year the Jaycees devote one week, set this year for Jan. 19-26, to acquainting the people of the Twin Cities with the Jaycee program of work and accomplishments.

Projects Told

Jaycees in the Twin Cities have carried on varied projects including the Voice of Democracy, Outstanding Young Farmer, Outstanding Young Man of the Year, Junior Golf and Junior Tennis activities and have participated in all National Jaycee programs.

In addition they cooperated in the local Goodfellows drive and Audrey disaster drive.

Officials noted that this program will be the first time for Jaycees in the Ark.-La.-Miss. area to appear on TV in Monroe.

Moderator

Jake Ussery of Monroe, immediate past president of the Louisiana Jaycees, will moderate the program, and Harry Crosby, president of the Lake Charles Jaycees, will discuss the Cameron Parish library fund drive which is being handled by the Lake Charles group.

David C. "Doc" Colvin of Ruston executive vice president of the state group, will introduce Crosby. John Kavanaugh of Ruston, state chairman of Jaycee Week and state Jaycee editor, will outline the functionn of Jaycees during this week each year.

In over 3,200 Jaycee chapters throughout America, community services similar to those of the Jaycees in the Twin Cities are familiar to the areas they represent. Nearly 200,000 Jaycees work together under their creed, "Service to Humanity is the Best Work of Life."

Purchase Of Land Starts In Ruston

RUSTON (Special) — Agents representing Moses R. Carter, head of the Right-of-Way Department for the publicized coast-to-coast super U. S. Highway have begun buying land in the Ruston area.

The four are buying rights-of-way in fee title only in rural areas, except where land is under mineral lease at which time they will secure an easement.

Markets prices are being paid for the clearances, based on the appraisal of property by two licensed real estate brokers.

Buying in the Ruston area is currently centered between Ruston and Choudrant, the section that is to be constructed first, according to plans of authorities.

Ruston Dairyman Nemed To Serve On Committee

RUSTON — Joe Blondin, local dairyman, has been named to serve on the nominating committee when the annual American Dairy Association of Louisiana meeting begins in Alexandria Jan. 30.

Blondin, whose wife works with the Agriculture Extension Service out of Ruston, has been outstanding in local dairy-farming for many years.

All area dairy farmers, milk distributors and others interested have been invited to attend the convention which will be held at Effie's Restaurant.

$370,000 PROJECT

Jonesboro Post Office Bids Set

JONESBORO (Special) — Bids for $370,000 Post Office building to be constructed in Jonesboro will be opened on Feb. 27. The General Services Administration in Washington decided yesterday to reopen bids on the lease-purchase federal building project in February.

James B. Fain, Jonesboro postmaster, revealed that nearly six years were consumed from the time the land was purchased for the building until bidding for construction was finally approved.

"Rep. Otto E. Passman worked hard to get approval for the building. The approval came through more than three years ago, and since then we could only wait for the General Services Administration to give us the nod to go ahead with it," Fain stated.

The proposed structure will be a two-story building, with more than double the floor space occupied by the present post office. Fain expects that it will be brick and completely air conditioned.

"We just reached first class status at the end of 1957, but it will not be official until the start of the next fiscal year, July 1. During the last three years we have been in the upper part of the second class post offices," Fain commented.

More Space Needed

"Regulations for first class offices will almost necessitate one additional helper. In our present building there is not enough space, but I hope to be able to add one more employee when we get into the new post office," he added.

The Jonesboro Post Office, which serves 7,500 persons including those on three rural routes and 529 P. O. boxes, is now staffed by the postmaster, assistant postmaster, three regular clerks and one substitute, two city carriers and one substitute, three rural route carriers, with one substitute for each route.

Fain said that federal offices now housed in the courthouse would be in the new post office. The U. S. Geological Survey, Agricultural agencies, including the Agricultural Stabilization an dConservation County committee, the Federal Housing Administration, and the Selective Service system will move into the building.

Reviewing the procedures which he has followed for six years, Fain said that the lot for a new building was purchased in March 1952. After approval for the structure was obtained, the government considered building it on a lease.

"Last February, I was informed that the lease idea had been dropped temporarily. In September, engineers conducted 50 test drills on the entire lot, to determine the kind of foundation which would be necessary in that subsoil, and said that it was all "good soil" he continued.

The only time the building had come close to the "blue-print stage" was 18 months ago, when representatives of a Baton Rouge architectural firm looked over the lot and said they would contact Postmaster Fain later about plans. He added that he has filled out every type of questionnaire possible on water, lighting and sewerage, and the amount which would be furnished by the city and by the federal government.

Other projects scheduled for financial bidding in February, with the date of bid opening with financing required are: Feb. 25, Lake Charles Post Office and Courthouse, $1,870,000; Feb. 26, Greenville, Miss., Post Office and Courthouse, $1,120,000; Feb. 27, Laurel, Miss., Post Office, $770,000.

The G. S. A. accepted bids received during the week for financing a lease-purchase federal building project, by Kansas City Life Insurance, Kansas City, Mo., for the Biloxi, Miss. Post Office and Courthouse Financing requirement will be $1,070,000 at 4.78 per cent interest.

Tech Teacher Pens Article In Quarterly

RUSTON (Special) — Robert Toombs of Georgia, an old Rebel warrior who was never "reconstructed" with the rest of the South, blamed the fall of the Confederacy on forced conscription.

That is pointed out in an article written for the Georgia Historical Quarterly by Dr. William Y. Thompson, assistant professor of history at Louisiana Tech.

The article is entitled "The Toombs Legend." Toombs was a prominent political figure of the Civil War.

The old Southerner, who refused loudly to accept amnesty after the war, said that conscription "dragged a man away from home, put him in a strange regiment with strange officers, made a prisoner rather than a soldier out of him."

Criticizes Davis

The Georgia politician added that the draft was the result of President Jeff Davis' desire to appoint officers. "He was crazy over his West Point martinets." Toombs was quoted as saying in the article.

Dr. Thompson drew much of his material for the article from newspapers of the day that continually quoted and publicized the outspoken Georgian.

In one of the papers Toombs said of the Confederate President Davis, "The trouble with him was and is that he has an exalted idea of his own importance."

Dr. Thompson plans to incorporate the "Toombs Legend" into a full-length book.

The fund, with 300 million dollars now available and 625 million more on request, expects to approve loan projects totaling around 200 million dollars by June 30, officials said today.

They added that approximately half a billion dollars in applications have come in during the past two or three weeks, mostly from the under-developed nations of the Middle and Far East, Asia and Latin America.

The fund, approved by Congress last year, is intended to be additional source of financing for economic development in other countries. It will make loans of a type not available from other financial institutions.

Its basic philosophy, officials said, will be to help other countries and not just to favor U.S. exports. The loan recipients, they added, may purchase materials anywhere in the world.

Loans will be of two types:

1—To finance normally nonprofit-making projects such as roads, dams, or schools. Such loans will carry an interest rate of 3½ per cent and up.

2—To finance profit-making enterprises, either private or governmental. These loans will pay interest of 5½ to 5¾ per cent — basically the same as those charged by the Export-Import Bank.

Check Charge Place Against Couple Here

Donald E. Burgess, 22, and Rowena J. Burgess, 17, both gave Long Beach, Calif., as their address and were held in the parish jail. Their two daughters, aged two and one, were temporarily placed in custody of the state receiving home at Bosco.

The pair admitted passing checks in Florida, Montgomery, Alt., and Monroe, authorities said.

Officals said the woman posed as a bona fide resident using a local name, had cashed two $20 checks and attempted to pass a third, all drawn on her husband. The same mode of operation was used in Alabama and Florida, officials were told. A number of prepared checks were taken in the arrests, police said.

Police were notified by a local businessman who was acquainted with the local woman, whose name the Burgess woman allegedly used. Downtown merchants were alerted by authorities, resulting in the pair's apprehension.

Tenn. Attorney Will Address Jaycee Group

A Memphis attorney, Bill Wolfe, will be the guest speaker at the annual distinguished service award-boss night banquet set for tomorrow night by the Monroe and West Monroe Junior Chambers of Commerce.

Time of the event, planned for the Virginia Hotel, will be 7:30 p.m.

Wolfe, active in Jaycee work for several years, was elected one of the 10 national vice presidents at the Atlanta, Ga., convention in 1955.

After completing his term, he returned to his law practice in Memphis. He has spoken here before, and also appeared as a speaker at the Shreveport convention in 1956, both during his term as vice president.

Highlighting the banquet will be announcement of the Outstanding Young Man of 1957 for the Twin Cities. He has been selected on the basis of contribution to the community, leadership ability and personal accomplishments.

Four Judges

Four judges, Mayor W. L. "Jack" Howard, Mayor J. Allan Norris, Harvey McDonald and Lee Vanderpool, were selected by the Jaycees to screen the letters submitted and to choose the winner of the award.

John Kelso announced that his committee, composed of Joe Rabun, Bill Hargiss, John Lolley, Dick LsBaun and Caroline Masur has completed arrangements for a good program.

Garland Shell will be master of ceremonies for the event and will lead the reading of the Jaycee Creed, after which each member will introduce his boss. The bosses will be special guests and will get a first-hand chance to view plans for future projects of the Jaycees.

Bob Aymond will outline plans for the Monroe chapter, while Walter Frank will give details of future projects of the West Monrroe group.

Ruston Dairyman Nemed To Serve On Committee

RUSTON — Joe Blondin, local dairyman, has been named to serve on the nominating committee when the annual American Dairy Association of Louisiana meeting begins in Alexandria Jan. 30.

Blondin, whose wife works with the Agriculture Extension Service out of Ruston, has been outstanding in local dairy - farming for many years.

All area dairy farmers, milk distributors and others interested have been invited to attend the convention which will be held at Effie's Restaurant.

JAYCEE WEEK—Gov. Earl K. Long (right), signs the proclamation making Jaycee Week official as Bob G. Fallin of Ruston (seated), state Jaycee president, and John Kavanaugh, Ruston, state chairman of the week and state Jaycee editor, look on.

Jaycees To Launch Special Observance

Launching national Junior Chamber of Commerce Week in Monroe will be a 30-minute presentation over a local TV station today at 1 p.m.

Billy Hargiss, president of the Monroe Jaycees, and B. F. Cummings, president of the West Monroe group will appear on the program, along with 10 or 12 other Jaycees representing chapters in El Dorado, Ark., Vicksburg, Miss., Bastrop, Lake Providence, Farmerville and Ruston, as well as the Twin Cities.

Hargiss and Cummings pointed out that each year the Jaycees devote one week, set this year for Jan. 19-26, to acquainting the people of the Twin Cities with the Jaycee program of work and accomplishments.

Projects Told

Jaycees in the Twin Cities have carried on varied projects including the Voice of Democracy, Outstanding Young Farmer, Outstanding Young Man of the Year, Junior Golf and Junior Tennis activities and have participated in all National Jaycee programs.

In addition they cooperated in the local Goodfellows drive and Audrey disaster drive.

Officials noted that this program will be the first time for Jaycees in the Ark.-La.-Miss. area to appear on TV in Monroe.

Moderator

Jake Ussery of Monroe, immediate past president of tne Louisiana Jaycees, will moderate the program, and Harry Crosby, president of the Lake Charles Jaycees, will discuss the Cameron Parish library fund drive which is being handled by the Lake Charles group.

David C. "Doc" Colvin of Ruston executive vice president of the state group, will introduce Crosby. John Kavanaugh of Ruston, state chairman of Jaycee Week and state Jaycee editor, will outline the functionn of Jaycees during this week each year.

In over 3,200 Jaycee chapters throughout America, community services similar to those of the Jaycees in the Twin Cities are familiar to the areas they represent. Nearly 200,000 Jaycees work together under their creed. "Service to Humanity is the Best Work of Life."

Purchase Of Land Starts In Ruston

RUSTON (Special) — Agents representing Moses R. Carter, head of the Right - of - Way Department for the publicized coast-to-coast super U. S. Highway have begun buying land in the Ruston area.

The four are buying rights-of-way in fee title only in rural areas, except where land is under mineral lease at which time they will secure an easement.

Markets prices are being paid for the clearances, based on the appraisal of property by two licensed real estate brokers.

Buying in the Ruston area is currently centered between Ruston and Choudrant, the section that is to be constructed first, according to plans of authorities.

$370,000 PROJECT

Jonesboro Post Office Bids Set

JONESBORO (Special) — Bids for $370,000 Post Office building to be constructed in Jonesboro will be opened on Feb. 27. The General Services Administration in Washington decided yesterday to reopen bids on the lease-purchase federal building project in February.

James B. Fain, Jonesboro postmaster, revealed that nearly six years were consumed from the time the land was purchased for the building until bidding for construction was finally approved.

"Rep. Otto E. Passman worked hard to get approval for the building. The approval came through more than three years ago, and since then we could only wait for the General Services Administration to give us the nod to go ahead with it," Fain stated.

The proposed structure will be a two - story building, with more than double the floor space occupied by the present post office. Fain expects that it will be brick and completely air conditioned.

"We just reached first class status at the end of 1957, but it will not be official until the start of the next fiscal year, July 1. During the last three years we have been in the upper part of the second class post offices," Fain commented.

More Space Needed

"Regulations for first class offices will almost necessitate one additional helper. In our present building there is not enough space, but I hope to be able to add one more employee when we get into the new post office," he added.

The Jonesboro Post Office, which serves 7,500 persons including those on three rural routes and 529 P. O. boxes, is now staffed by the postmaster, assistant postmaster, three regular clerks and one substitute, two city carriers and one substitute, three rural route carriers, with one substitute for each route.

Fain said that federal offices now housed in the courthouse would be in the new post office. The U. S. Geological Survey, Agricultural agencies, including the Agricultural Stabilization an dConservation County committee, the Federal Housing Administration, and the Selective Service system will move into the building.

Reviewing the procedures which he has followed for six years, Fain said that the lot for a new building was purchased in March 1952. After approval for the structure was obtained, the government considered building it on a lease.

"Last February, I was informed that the lease idea had been dropped temporarily. In September, engineers conducted 50 test drills on the entire lot, to determine the kind of foundation which would be necessary in that subsoil, and said that it was all "good soil" he continued.

The only time the building had come close to the "blue - print stage" was 18 months ago, when representatives of a Baton Rouge architectural firm looked over the lot and said they would contact Postmaster Fain later about plans. He added that he has filled out every type of questionnaire possible on water, lighting and sewerage, and the amount which would be furnished by the city and by the federal government.

Other projects scheduled for financial bidding in February, with the date of bid opening with financing required are: Feb. 25, Lake Charles Post Office and Courthouse, $1,870,000; Feb. 26, Greenville, Miss., Post Office and Courthouse, $1,120,000; Feb. 27, Laurel, Miss., Post Office, $770,000.

The G. S. A. accepted bids received during the week for financing a lease - purchase federal building project, by Kansas City Life Insurance, Kansas City, Mo., for the Biloxi, Miss. Post Office and Courthouse Financing requirement will be $1,070,000 at 4.78 per cent interest.

Tech Teacher Pens Article In Quarterly

RUSTON (Special) — Robert Toombs of Georgia, an old Rebel warrior who was never "reconstructed" with the rest of the South, blamed the fall of the Confederacy on forced conscription.

That is pointed out in an article written for the Georgia Historical Quarterly by Dr. William Y. Thompson, assistant professor of history at Louisiana Tech.

The article is entitled "The Toombs Legend." Toombs was a prominent political figure of the Civil War.

The old Southerner, who refused loudly to accept amnesty after the war, said that conscription "dragged a man away from home, put him in a strange regiment with strange officers, made a prisoner rather than a soldier out of him."

Criticizes Davis

The Georgia politician added that the draft was the result of President Jeff Davis' desire to appoint officers. "He was crazy over his West Point martinets." Toombs was quoted as saying in the article.

Dr. Thompson drew much of his material for the article from newspapers of the day that continually quoted and publicized the outspoken Georgian.

In one of the papers Toombs said of the Confederate President Davis, "The trouble with him was and is that he has an exalted idea of his own importance."

Dr. Thompson plans to incorporate the "Toombs Legend" into a full - length book.

Man Offers Aid To Son's Benefactor

CHICAGO, Jan. 18 (AP)—A father whose soldier son was saved from a battle death in the Burma jungle 14 years ago, said yesterday he wants to help the war hero rescuer—now jailed in California.

The man he seeks to help is Melvin Russell Blair, who retired from the Army as a lieutenant colonel, and facing trial on a charge of attempting to steal the $40,000 receipts of the Bing Crosby golf tournament at gunpoint.

Blair holds two Distinguished Crosses and the Silver Star.

The story goes back to June 12, 1944, when a Japanese sniper fired on a patrol of the 209th Combat Engineers near the Ledo road. Pvt. Paul D. Rogers, his left eye pierced by a bullet, was left for dead on the trail.

Blair, then a lieutenant and Rogers' commanding officer, had a hunch after hearing descriptions of the wound that Rogers was not dead.

He returned to the ambush scene, and under covering fire of his men, crawled 250 yards to Rogers, by then conscious. He helped Rogers to safety.

Recently, Edward Rogers o' suburban Evanston, father of tl soldier, saw a newspaper pictu of Blair—jailed at Pebble Beac' Calif., on the theft charge.

The elder Rogers said today h wants to pay the costs of Blair's defense, and he has asked his son to appear at the trial as a character witness.

Paul Rogers, now a 35-year-old sign draftsman for Minneapolis-oneywell Corp. at Minneapolis, aid he'll do whatever he can for lair, to the extent his job permits.

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

With professional baseball just about departed from the Louisiana scenery - - - only New Orleans of the Southern Association is left in the state and that club is having its woes - - - there may be little interest in baseball around here at the moment. But the lapse is seasonal as far as interest goes. Things will be picking up in another month or so as the majors start training plans and the big leagues launch their new era, the invasion of the west coast.

But all things, to be really successful, have to be planned well in advance, and it's not too late to begin planning for next season here at the Little League level.

Seems the Little Leaguers on the northside of Monroe are anxious to have a park built at the scene of their diamond in Forsythe Park. Hopes of expanding recreational facilities through passage of a bond election recently failed, ending all expectations of help through this means.

If the kids of Monroe want another park they're going to have to get it the same way they got Lions Field, the Little League plant in south Monroe—depend on donations from their well-wishers.

The idea of building a Little League park in the north section of the city has already been studied by Jack Hesketh, director of the Monroe Recreation department, and discussed with the parents of members of the Northside Little League teams.

They feel the park can be built for $4,000 without the inclusion of a roof such as is at Lions Field. They fix this figure on expectations of getting donations in building materials like lumber, iron pipe, plumbing fixtures, paint, nails, cement, and other building supplies. Cash donations, too, don't forget!

Actual cost of Lions Field was $8,600 despite donation of all fence equipment and lighting. Raymond Masling, now a Farmerville contractor, was in business here at the time and donated his contractor's fee to build the park. And lumber then was costing the Little League $100 a thousand regardless of whether is was two-by-four's, two-by-sixes, or what not.

By omitting the roof and using bleachers already owned by the recreation department, it is felt that a park can be built at Forsythe that will include a cyclone fence, dugouts for the players, rest rooms and other necessries.

The utilities commission of Monroe has already agreed to furnish poles and wiring for field lighting, Hesketh has reported.

The planning is at the stage now where any further advance depends on how the general public reacts to the appeal. Northside people helped build the Little League plant at Bernstein Park, so they can rightly expect the southside folks to help them build at Forsythe. Of course you can't forget the Lions Club of Monroe. That organization, after seeing what a struggle was being experienced to raise funds to build the present park, came throught with a $3,000 donation that really put that project over. So the name Lions Field is reasonable.

These Little Leaguers are going to begin stirring about in a couple of months. By the middle of May they'll begin playing, building to help Monroe preserve its state championship. The kids would be mighty thankful for that park all their own.

Anybody with money, materials, or even just plain time to help bring in the necessaries will be welcome to contact Director Hesketh. He'll be glad to tell you what to do or where to send your donations.

AT CENTRAL

'Fort' Boys, Host Girls Win Titles

DELHI, La. (Special) — Central's girls and Fort Necessity's boys, the tournament favorites, came through as expected by winning the championships in the Central Invitational Tournament last night.

Fort Necessity defeated Ouachita, 65-58, in the boys finals and Central whipped Winnsboro, 51-40, in the girls finals. Both of the winners have been defeated only once this year, "Fort" by Centerville and Central by Neville.

Margaret Loftin scored 23 points to pace Central's win but Winnsboro's Claudine Watson was the game's top scorer with 27 points. A. J. Berlew poured in 24 points for Fort Necessity and Lanny Johnson was tops for Ouachita with 21.

Forest girls and Enterprise boys won third place in their divisions with consolation victories. Forest beat Delhi, 38-30, with Virginia Crowe leading the winners with 23 points and Joyce Patrick getting 13 for Delhi. Enerprise eked out a 49-47 win over Forest boys with Fuller Cassels getting 17 for the winners and Glen Kelly scoring 23 for Forest.

Fort Necessity reached the finals with a 59-41 triumph over Forest in the semi-finals as Berlew scored 23 for "Fort" and Kelly got 21 for Forest. Lanny Johnson led Ouachita over Enterprise in the semi-finals, 58-49, by scoring 27 points and Charlie Cassels got 18 for the losers.

Central girls beat Delhi, 49-34, in the semis as Janis Pepper got 23 points and Robbins scored 15 for Delhi. Winnsboro beat Forest in a close semi-final contest, 50-47, with Miss Watson again leading the way with 30 points and Virginia Crowe getting 27 for Forest.

The Most Valuable Player in the girls division was Katherine Tucker of Crowville and the Most Valuable Boy was Milton Lender of Fort Necessity. Sportsmanship trophies were awarded to the Fort Necessity girls team and the Forest boys.

Mossi, McLish, 2 Others Sign Indian Contracts

CLEVELAND, Jan. 18 (AP)—Four more Cleveland Indians, including pitchers Cal McLish and Don Mossi, have returned their signed contracts, the Indians' front office announced today.

Infielder Clarence Moore and outfielder - pitcher Gary Geiger were the other two. They bring to 15 the number of Indians who have returned signed contracts.

Mossi, a relief ace who was pressed into duty as a starter last may after Bob Lemon and Herb Score were sidelined, wound up with an 11-10 record and an earned run average of 4.13. McLish had an earned run mark of 2.74, best on the club, and a 9-7 record.

Moore, a native of Panama, batted .298 in 140 games with Louisville last summer. Geiger was acquired by the Indians from Omaha in the major league draft last month.

Wehmeier Signs Cardinal Pact For 1958 Season

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 18 (AP)—Pitcher Herman Wehmeier and four other St. Louis Cardinals came to terms today, leaving only seven players unsigned for the coming baseball season.

Wehmeier, 31-year-old righthander, won 10 and dropped 7 last season and had a 4.31 ERA.

The other four signed up by General Manager Bing Devine were infielders Dick Schofield and Benny Valenzuela, outfielder Jim Frey and pitcher Morris Martin.

Only Martin and Schofield played on the parent club last year. Martin, 35, appeared in four late season games.

Schofield, one-time bonus baby, appeared in 65 games mostly as a pinch runner or utility infielder.

Leach Sparks Demon Quint In GSC Game

NATCHITOCHES, La., Jan. 18 (AP)—Jimmy Leach sank 27 points to lead Northwestern State to its first Gulf States Conference victory of the season tonight by dumping Northeast 69-54.

Leach, who was the game's high scorer, had 11 straight points in the first half which ended with HSC ahead 28-20.

Northeast never was able to close the gap. With 12 minutes to go, NSC was in front by 12 points and had a 14 point margin with three minutes left.

The victory left NSC with an overall record of 11-5 and 1-0 in the GSC. It evened Northeast's season to 7-7 and 0-3 in the conference.

Move To Secure Bigger Stadium For Texas Tech

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UP)— Backers of the Texas Tech stadium expansion program have scheduled a campaign rally dinner on the campus Monday, Jan. 27, and will have sportscaster Kern Tips as the main speaker.

The event is intended as a rally for the more than 400 Lubbock men already working on solicitation and campaign leaders from most communities in West Texas and eastern New Mexico, where the backers hope to raise $1,700,000 for enlargement of the stadium to seat 46,000.

Approximately $700,000 already has been raised through sale of seat options for the stadium, which is due to be completed by the time Tech starts competing in the Southwest Conference football race in 1960.

MONTREAL (UP) — Willie O'Ree, a 22-year-old Maritimer who Saturday night became the first Negro ever to play in the National Hockey League, said "this is the greatest thrill of my life."

"It's a day I'll never forget as long as I live," said the left winger, an emergency replacement for Boston's ailing Leo Labine. O'Ree, a native of Fredericton, N.B., was called up Friday from the Quebec Aces of the Quebec Hockey League to play in the two weekend games against the powerful Montreal Canadiens.

Stars Of Cage, Baseball Make St. Louis Show

ST. LOUIS (UP)—Current basketball stars and old-time baseball stars headline a spicy sports menu in St. Louis next week centered around the 8th annual NBA All-Star game Tuesday night.

Red Auerbach of the Boston Celtics and Alex Hannum of the host St. Louis Hawks will coach the opposing stars from the Eastern and Western divisions of the National Basketball Association.

Bo Wininger Shatters Par To Retain Tijuana Margain

By BOB MYERS

TIJUANA, Mexico, Jan. 18 (AP)—Bo Wininger lost a small decision to a Mexican motorcycle policeman today but handed par another beating and took an undisputed lead at the halfway mark of the $15,000 Tijuana Open Golf Tournament.

The 35-year-old pro, who plays out of Odessa, Tex., sliced three strokes off par with a 69. He had a first round 65 and goes into the third round tomorrw with a 36-hole score of 134—three strokes better than his nearest challenger.

Bob Rosburg of Napl, Calif., with whom Wininger shared the first round lead, had a 72 this bright and breezy day, and was tied with Jerry Barber of Los Angeles, who had a 69, for second place. Bot d tol scores of place. Both had total scores of 137.

Play is over the Tijuana Country Club's 7,400-yard course with par 36-36-72.

Tonight the field was cut to the low 60 players with scores of 147 and under.

Four strokes off Wininger's pace was Stan Leonard of Canada, with 68-70—138. Lionel Herbert, Lafayette, La., the U. S. PGA champion, had a 70 for 139.

Paul Harney of Worcester, Mass., with 73-76—149, took the cut for the first time in almost a year, and Ar Wall Jr., wih 78-70—148, for about the same length of time.

Mike Souchak, who won this event two years ago, trailed with 73-72—145.

Wininger was stopped by a Tijuana officer en route to the course for driving 30 m.p.h in a 25-mile zone. It cost him $10.

The officer at first wanted Bo to proceed to the station house but when Wininger explained he was a contestant and had to get to the club, the officer escorted him the few miles to go.

"So," said Bo, "here I go pinched for 30 miles and I followed that guy 60 miles an hour in Tijuana traffic. Scared me to death."

It didn't scare Wininger out of a 69, however. He birdied two holes on the front nine. And when he bogeyed the 11th, he came right back and birdied the next two holes. He went one over on the 15th, but go another birdie on the 16th.

With 36 holes to go, Wininger faced such threats as Canadt's Al Balding, Arnold Palmer, George Bayer, or Bill Johnston, all tied at 140, or J. C. Goosie, Tommy Bolt, Young Dave Ragan or Fred Hawkins at 141.

McNeese Downs Techsters, 66-57

Led by the scoring of Stan Kernan who racked up 22 points, the Cowboys pulled away from a 13-13 tie on Jerry Clark's field goal ten minutes before halftime and the visitors were never again behind.

However, the Tech Bulldogs, aided by 34 points dumped in by freshman center Jack Moreland, stayed just a step behind until the last six minutes of he game. At intermission it was McNeese 31, Tech 29.

McNeese led by only three points, 43-40, with 11 minutes left in the contest. At that point the Cowboys began to slow down the action and when Tech attempted to press, the Bulldogs committed costly fouls. In the last half, the visitors dropped in 23 out of 27 free throws.

Moreland's 34 markers took high point honors for the battle. The high-scoring Bulldog made good on eight field goals and 18 out of 23 free throws in the game. Charles Frye, with 12 points, was the only other Techster to hit in the double figures. William Breen and Don Trouman each racked up 14 points for McNeese.

The victory left McNeese with a 4-0 Gulf States record and 11-3 for the season. Tech now has a 0-2 GSC mark and 11-4 over the season.

The public spirited sportsman who knows just what outdoors project deserves his all - out support during the coming year and who wonders sometimes just why he and his millions of colleagues don't get more action can find out by asking the first 50 similar souls he meets.

Here's a prediction of his conclusion: The 50 public spirited sportsmen have pledged their all out support to 49 different things.

This is a familiar sort of confusion in the outdoor world, and most familiar to the conservation professionals who are faced practically every day with a mandate from the people to do something else first.

Seldom indeed does an ermgeency arise that can unite, for instance, bird watcher and bird hunter, trout fisherman and ice fisherman, quail expert with goose expert or dry fly purist with anybody.

Let each man reflect upon his private record, and face the fact: It's a heck of a lot easier to divide outdoorsmen on any given topic than to unite them.

A group of conservation professionals and semi - pros kicked this notion around in finromal debate recently and came up with an interesting list of projects which in their opinions should have been done yesterday on a national scale:

Elimination of pollution in public waters by municipal, industrial and miscellaneous sources. Some states have made a good start against some kinds of pollution. Others have not even begun. Hardly any have done anything about pollution of underground waters. Because fishermen raised the first howl about this, in a great many places they carry the burden alone.

Wetland analysis and zoning. A national inventory of wetlands was carried out a couple of years ago and by now probably is out of date. But as to analysis and zoning — well, duck hunters worried about this first, so isn't it their problem?

Vanishing species. Anyone who isn't familiar with individual species can see that this is a conspicuously disorganized group. People are trying not only to save such inoffensive creatures as the prairie chicken and the whooping crane, but the timber worlf and the grizzly bear. The state of affairs can be judged pretty well by the grizzly's presence on the unprotected list in some of the two or three places where there still are a few, and the wolf on the bounty list in places where there haven't been any in 50 years.

Herbicides and pesticides. This is another area distinguished by a wide variety in efforts. For instance, in some states indignant crusaders have out before the public proposed statutes so stringent that a gardener would need a permit before closing with a tomato worm. In others objectors are shushed for complaining about mass pesticide spraying projects that can wipe out fowl and fish life with the effectiveness of a forest fire, or herbicides that wipe clean the rural roadsides which nowadays form most — yes, most — of the available habitat for small birds and animals in many well developed agricultural and suburban areas.

Human habitat. This one finds ecologists on one side and a substantial majority of the population on the other. The cliffdweller in the city feels himself a long way removed from the wild community. The science of game management has produced some poet scientists who like John Donne could sing convincingly of things approximating a vlaedictory: of your name in a watershed.

But it hasn't produced anyone who can make it popular.

Dick Dagampat Elected Navy's Football Captain

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 18 (AP)—Dick Dagampat, the little Filipino Hawaiian fullback who was lost to the Navy football team with an injury at midseason, has been named team captain for 1958.

Dagampat's selection by his teammates was announced by academy athletic officials today.

The 22-year-old junior from Los Angeles, who stands only 5-8 and weighs 168, was the star as a sophomore of Navy's 7-7 tie with Army.

He was a three-sport star at Belmost High School in Los Angeles and served two and one-half years in the marine corps before coming to the Naval Academy.

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

With professional baseball just about departed from the Louisiana scenery - - - only New Orleans of the Southern Association is left in the state and that club is having its woes - - - there may be little interest in baseball around here at the moment. But the lapse is seasonal as far as interest goes. Things will be picking up in another month or so as the majors start training plans and the big leagues launch their new era, the invasion of the west coast.

But all things, to be really successful, have to be planned well in advance, and it's not too late to begin planning for next season here at the Little League level.

Seems the Little Leaguers on the northside of Monroe are anxious to have a park built at the scene of their diamond in Forsythe Park. Hopes of expanding recreational facilities through passage of a bond election recently failed, ending all expectations of help through this means.

If the kids of Monroe want another park they're going to have to get it the same way they got Lions Field, the Little League plant in south Monroe—depend on donations from their well-wishers.

The idea of building a Little League park in the north section of the city has already been studied by Jack Hesketh, director of the Monroe Recreation department, and discussed with the parents of members of the Northside Little League teams.

They feel the park can be built for $4,000 without the inclusion of a roof such as is at Lions Field. They fix this figure on expectations of getting donations in building materials like lumber, iron pipe, plumbing fixtures, paint, nails, cement, and other building supplies. Cash donations, too, don't forget!

Actual cost of Lions Field was $8,600 despite donation of all fence equipment and lighting. Raymond Masling, now a Farmerville contractor, was in business here at the time and donated his contractor's fee to build the park. And lumber then was costing the Little League $100 a thousand regardless of whether is was two-by-four's, two-by-sixes, or what not.

By omitting the roof and using bleachers already owned by the recreation department, it is felt that a park can be built at Forsythe that will include a cyclone fence, dugouts for the players, rest rooms and other necessries.

The utilities commission of Monroe has already agreed to furnish poles and wiring for field lighting, Hesketh has reported.

The planning is at the stage now where any further advance depends on how the general public reacts to the appeal. Northside people helped build the Little League plant at Bernstein Park, so they can rightly expect the southside folks to help them build at Forsythe. Of course you can't forget the Lions Club of Monroe. That organization, after seeing what a struggle was being experienced to raise funds to build the present park, came throught with a $3,000 donation that really put that project over. So the name Lions Field is reasonable.

These Little Leaguers are going to begin stirring about in a couple of months. By the middle of May they'll begin playing, building to help Monroe preserve its state championship. The kids would be mighty thankful for that park all their own.

Anybody with money, materials, or even just plain time to help bring in the necessaries will be welcome to contact Director Hesketh. He'll be glad to tell you what to do or where to send your donations.

Leach Sparks Demon Quint In GSC Game

NATCHITOCHES, La., Jan. 18 (AP)—Jimmy Leach sank 27 points to lead Northwestern State to its first Gulf States Conference victory of the season tonight by dumping Northeast 69-54.

Leach, who was the game's high scorer, had 11 straight points in the first half which ended with HSC ahead 28-20.

Northeast never was able to close the gap. With 12 minutes to go, NSC was in front by 12 points and had a 14 point margin with three minutes left.

The victory left NSC with an overall record of 11-5 and 1-0 in the GSC. It evened Northeast's season to 7-7 and 0-3 in the conference.

Dick Dagampat Elected Navy's Football Captain

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 18 (AP)—Dick Dagampat, the little Filipino Hawaiian fullback who was lost to the Navy football team with an injury at midseason, has been named team captain for 1958.

Dagampat's selection by his teammates was announced by academy athletic officials today.

The 22-year-old junior from Los Angeles, who stands only 5-8 and weighs 168, was the star as a sophomore of Navy's 7-7 tie with Army.

He was a three-sport star at Belmost High School in Los Angeles and served two and one-half years in the marine corps before coming to the Naval Academy.

Move To Secure Bigger Stadium For Texas Tech

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UP)— Backers of the Texas Tech stadium expansion program have scheduled a campaign rally dinner on the campus Monday, Jan. 27, and will have sportscaster Kern Tips as the main speaker.

The event is intended as a rally for the more than 400 Lubbock men already working on solicitation and campaign leaders from most communities in West Texas and eastern New Mexico, where the backers hope to raise $1,700,000 for enlargement of the stadium to seat 46,000.

Approximately $700,000 already has been raised through sale of seat options for the stadium, which is due to be completed by the time Tech starts competing in the Southwest Conference football race in 1960.

Bo Wininger Shatters Par To Retain Tijuana Margain

By BOB MYERS

TIJUANA, Mexico, Jan. 18 (AP)—Bo Wininger lost a small decision to a Mexican motorcycle policeman today but handed par another beating and took an undisputed lead at the halfway mark of the $15,000 Tijuana Open Golf Tournament.

The 35-year-old pro, who plays out of Odessa, Tex., sliced three strokes off par with a 69. He had a first round 65 and goes into the third round tomorrw with a 36-hole score of 134—three strokes better than his nearest challenger.

Bob Rosburg of Napt, Calif., with whom Wininger shared the first round lead, had a 72 this bright and breezy day, and was tied with Jerry Barber of Los Angeles, who had a 69, for second place. Bot d tol scores of place. Both had total scores of 137.

Play is over the Tijuana Country Club's 7,400-yard course with par 36-36-72.

Tonight the field was cut to the low 60 players with scores of 147 and under.

Four strokes off Wininger's pace was Stan Leonard of Canada, with 68-70—138. Lionel Herbert, La. fayette, La., the U. S. PGA champion, had a 70 for 139.

Paul Harney of Worcester, Mass., with 73-76—149, took the cut for the first time in almost a year, and Ar Wall Jr., wih 78-70—148, for about the same length of time.

Mike Souchak, who won this event two years ago, trailed with 73-72—145.

Wininger was stopped by a Tijuana officer en route to the course for driving 30 m.p.h in a 25-mile zone. It cost him $10.

The officer at first wanted Bo to proceed to the station house but when Wininger explained he was a contestant and had to get to the club, the officer escorted him the few miles to go.

"So," said Bo, "here I go pinched for 30 miles and I followed that guy 60 miles an hour in Tijuana traffic. Scared me to death."

It didn't scare Wininger out of a 69, however. He birdied two holes on the front nine. And when he bogeyed the 11th, he came right back and birdied the next two holes. He went one over on the 15th, but go another birdie on the 16th.

With 36 holes to go, Wininger faced such threats as Canadt's Al Balding, Arnold Palmer, George Bayer, or Bill Johnston, all tied at 140, or J. C. Goosie, Tommy Bolt, Young Dave Ragan or Fred Hawkins at 141.

McNeese Downs Techsters, 66-57

Led by the scoring of Stan Kernan who racked up 22 points, the Cowboys pulled away from a 13-13 tie on Jerry Clark's field goal ten minutes before halftime and the visitors were never again behind.

However, the Tech Bulldogs, aided by 34 points dumped in by freshman center Jack Moreland, stayed just a step behind until the last six minutes of he game. At intermission it was McNeese 31, Tech 29.

McNeese led by only three points, 43-40, with 11 minutes left in the contest. At that point the Cowboys began to slow down the action and when Tech attempted to press, the Bulldogs committed costly fouls. In the last half, the visitors dropped in 23 out of 27 free throws.

Moreland's 34 markers took high point honors for the battle. The high-scoring Bulldog made good on eight field goals and 18 out of 23 free throws in the game. Charles Frye, with 12 points, was the only other Techster to hit in the double figures. William Breen and Don Trouman each racked up 14 points for McNeese.

The victory left McNeese with a 4-0 Gulf States record and 11-3 for the season. Tech now has a 0-2 GSC mark and 11-4 over the season.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 18 (AP)—The U. S. Lawn Tennis Association today lifted its suspension against Hugh Stewart of Los Angeles. Stewart was suspended for failure to observe a USLTA rule requiring American players to return to this country from Europe following the Wimbledon championship in July.

Negro Becomes First Of Race To Play In NHL

MONTREAL (UP) — Willie O'Ree, a 22-year-old Maritimer who Saturday night became the first Negro ever to play in the National Hockey League, said "this is the greatest thrill of my life."

"It's a day I'll never forget as long as I live," said the left winger, an emergency replacement for Boston's ailing Leo Labine. O'Ree, a native of Fredericton, N.B., was called up Friday from the Quebec Aces of the Quebec Hockey League to play in the two weekend games against the powerful Montreal Canadiens.

Stars Of Cage, Baseball Make St. Louis Show

ST. LOUIS (UP)—Current basketball stars and old-time baseball stars headline a spicy sports menu in St. Louis next week centered around the 8th annual NBA All-Star game Tuesday night.

Red Auerbach of the Boston Celtics and Alex Hannum of the host St. Louis Hawks will coach the opposing stars from the Eastern and Western divisions of the National Basketball Association.

AT CENTRAL

'Fort' Boys, Host Girls Win Titles

DELHI, La. (Special) — Central's girls and Fort Necessity's boys, the tournament favorites, came through as expected by winning the championships in the Central Invitational Tournament last night.

Fort Necessity defeated Ouachita, 65-58, in the boys finals and Central whipped Winnsboro, 51-40, in the girls finals. Both of the winners have been defeated only once this year, "Fort" by Centerville and Central by Neville.

Margaret Loftin scored 23 points to pace Central's win but Winnsboro's Claudine Watson was the game's top scorer with 27 points. A. J. Berlew poured in 24 points for Fort Necessity and Lanny Johnson was tops for Ouachita with 21.

Forest girls and Enterprise boys won third place in their divisions with consolation victories. Forest beat Delhi, 38-30, with Virginia Crowe leading the winners with 23 points and Joyce Patrick getting 13 for Delhi. Enerprise eked out a 49-47 win over Forest boys with Fuller Cassels getting 17 for the winners and Glen Kelly scoring 23 for Forest.

Fort Necessity reached the finals with a 59-41 triumph over Forest in the semi-finals as Berlew scored 23 for "Fort" and Kelly got 21 for Forest. Lanny Johnson led Ouachita over Enterprise in the semi-finals, 58-49, by scoring 27 points and Charlie Cassels got 18 for the losers.

Central girls beat Delhi, 49-34, in the semis as Janis Pepper got 23 points and Robbins scored 15 for Delhi. Winnsboro beat Forest in a close semi-final contest, 50-47, with Miss Watson again leading the way with 30 points and Virginia Crowe getting 27 for Forest.

The Most Valuable Player in the girls division was Katherine Tucker of Crowville and the Most Valuable Boy was Milton Lender of Fort Necessity. Sportsmanship trophies were awarded to the Fort Necessity girls team and the Forest boys.

Mossi, McLish, 2 Others Sign Indian Contracts

CLEVELAND, Jan. 18 (AP)—Four more Cleveland Indians, including pitchers Cal McLish and Don Mossi, have returned their signed contracts, the Indians' front office announced today.

Infielder Clarence Moore and outfielder - pitcher Gary Geiger were the other two. They bring to 15 the number of Indians who have returned signed contracts.

Mossi, a relief ace who was pressed into duty as a starter last may after Bob Lemon and Herb Score were sidelined, wound up with an 11-10 record and an earned run average of 4.13. McLish had an earned run mark of 2.74, best on the club, and a 9-7 record.

Moore, a native of Panama, batted .298 in 140 games with Louisville last summer. Geiger was acquired by the Indians from Omaha in the major league draft last month.

Wehmeier Signs Cardinal Pact For 1958 Season

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 18 (AP)—Pitcher Herman Wehmeier and four other St. Louis Cardinals came to terms today, leaving only seven players unsigned for the coming baseball season.

Wehmeier, 31-year-old righthander, won 10 and dropped 7 last season and had a 4.31 ERA.

The other four signed up by General Manager Bing Devine were infielders Dick Schofield and Benny Valenzuela, outfielder Jim Frey and pitcher Morris Martin.

Only Martin and Schofield played on the parent club last year. Martin, 35, appeared in four late season games.

Schofield, one-time bonus baby, appeared in 65 games mostly as a pinch runner or utility infielder.

AT FARMERVILLE

Marion, Downsville Win In Union Meet

FARMERVILLE, La. (Special) —Favored Marion boys beat Junction City, 57-51, and Downsville girls upset favored Farmerville, 48-37, to win the championships in the Union Parish Basketball Tournament here last night.

Andrews led Marion to its title with 30 points while Cater topped the losers with 19. Lockwood of Downsville scored 19 points to lead her team to victory and Wade paced Farmerville with 21 markers.

Downsville reached the finals of the tournament with a 44-35 semi-final decision over Bernice with Hamilton setting the pace with 24 points and Heard topping Bernice with 14. Farmerville girls beat Linville, 45-32, in their semi-final clash as Wade got 23 for the host team and Ford had 22 for Linville.

Marion defeated Spearsville, 54-49, in the boys semi-finals as Andrews put in 22 points for the losers. Junction City routed Farmerville for its semi-final win, 80-57, with Cater getting 26 points and Eiland scoring 20 for Farmerville.

The girls all-tournament team had Wade of Farmerville, Ford of Linville, and Hamilton of Downsville at the forwards and Traylor of Farmerville, Roach of Downsville and Heard of Bernice at the guards.

The boys all-tourney squad included Eiland of Farmerville, Cater of Junction City, Elkins of Spearsville, and Andrews and Gilmore of Marion.

GRAND SLAM KING

Gil Hodges Inks Dodger Contract

By UNITED PRESS

Baseball's grand slam homer king of the National League, first baseman Gil Hodges, Saturday signed his 1958 contract with the Los Angeles Dodgers, Vice President E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi announced.

Hodges, all-time first baseman of the Dodgers, was the 22nd player to sign with the transplanted Dodgers, Bavasi said.

The big first baseman became the first man in National League history to hit 13 grand slam homers last Aug. 1 when he rapped one of the offerings of Chicago's Dick Littlefield out of the park with the bases loaded.

Elsewhere the Chicago White Sox announced the signing of three more players, bringing the total to nine of the 39-man roster.

The least to agree to terms were first baseman Walt Dropo, outfielder Ted Beard and catcher Chuck Lindstrom, son of former New York Giant third baseman Fred Lindstrom.

Right-hander Billy Loes, a 12-game winner for the Baltimore Orioles last season, signed a 1958 contract calling for approximately $16,000, about $4,000 more than he received last year.

Loes, who came to the Orioles on waivers from the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1956, had 11 victories by Aug. 4 last season but developed a sore arm, pitched infrequently thereafter and wound up with a 12-7 record.

Only seven St. Louis Cardinals remain unsigned for the 1958 season after General Manager Bing Devine announced five more players came to terms.

11 Ex-Champs Seniors Golf In National

DUNEDIN, Fla. (UP)—Eleven former champions, including 1957 titlist Al Watrous, Birmingham, Mich., are scheduled to be in a field of about 250 elder golfers competing Tuesday through Sunday here in the National Seniors golf championship.

Competition in the $10,000 event, limited to players 50 years of age or older, has been boosted this year to 72 holes.

But play has been spread out to save the wear and tear on the contestants. Players 55 and over will shoot their first rounds Tuesday and second on Thursday, while those 50 to 54 will play first rounds Wednesday and second rounds Friday. The low 100 and ties from both groups will play in the third round Saturday and fourth round Sunday.

Watrous, who won the crown in 1950 and '51 before taking it again last year, is one of two triple champions entered. The other is Eddie Williams, Louisville, Ky., winner in 1942, 1945, and 1946. Other former champions entered are Fred McLeod, Chevy Chase, Md., Otto Hackbarth, Cincinnati, Charles McKenna, Pittsford, N.Y., Marshall Crichton, Rockford, Mich., Ernest Newham, Portland, Me., Harry Schwab, Dayton, Ohio, Gene Sarazen, Germantown, N.Y., Mortie Dutra, Rialto, Calif., and Pete Burke, Cold Spring Harbor, N.Y.

Pettit Shoots Winning Goal For St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (UP) — Clutch-points by Bob Pettit and Jack Coleman in the final minute and a half of play Saturday enabled the St. Louis Hawks to edge the Detroit Pistons, 105 - 103 before 5,119 fans and a national television audience.

The victory ended a three-game losing streak for St. Louis which leads the Western Division of the National Basketball Association.

After Detroit had fought back to take a 103-101 lead on Harry Gallatin's basket with 1:49 to play, Coleman knotted the score at 103-103 with a jump shot that came with 1:31 on the clock.

Pettit clicked from the side on a short jumper, the game's final points with 42 seconds left.

Detroit had one final opportunity to tie the score in the fintl 25 seconds. The Pisons' Nat Clifton and St. Louis' Jack McMahon had a jump ball situation on the Detroit offensive court. Clifton controlled the tip, but Slater Martin stole the ball from Gene Shue.

Martin was fouled by Joe Holup with three seconds left. He missed both shots, but the Hawks controlled the rebound as time ran out.

Pettit and Detroit's George Yardley, among the top five scorers in the league, both turned in sterling performances. Pettit, who finished with 40 points, scored 22 of them in the third quarter, a new Kiel Auditorium record. Yardley, who played the entire game, finished with 36 markers.

TV KEGLER

King Quit 'Work' Made Bowling Pay

By JIM KENSIL

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (AP)—Johnny King's hobbies are fishing, golf and smoking jumbo cigars. He bowls for business.

Work? He gave that up more than 2½ years ago when he decided there wasn't much of a future in being a $100-a-week machine operator.

He preferred the manual operation of a bowling ball, and last year he turned into a money-making machine good for an estimated $25,000 from prizes won on televised bowling shows. That sum, based on figures compiled by Bowling Magazine, was $8,000 more than the amount won by any other bowler.

Johnny, currently the defending champion on ABC's weekly filmed series, "Bowling Stars," will be working tomorrow afternoon (3 p.m., CST) when he meets the challenge of Joe Bolek.

It wouldn't be fair to disclose the result, but if bowling fans or those interested in cold, hard cash would like to see how Johnny ran up 25 grand, there won't be a better day to take a TV look.

As long as the result is unannounced, the filming of the weekly shows detracts not at all from the suspense, and it insures weekly entertainment. For instance, Johnny, who travels at least a mile for every dollar he makes, has been in Minneapolis all week competing in the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America All-Star Tournament.

ABC will carry the finals, both men's and women's, of that tournament live tomorrow night (8-9 p.m., CST) when eight surviving men and four women roll for the better part of $36,000 in prize money.

Why. that's more money than Johnny King makes in a year!

Not really. In addition to the TV loot, he picks up more in non-televised tournaments, exhibitions commercial fees, etc.

"It's been great," Johnny says, "but I just knock on wood and keep practicing. I figure there is only enough prize money around to support 20 men without a regular job on the side. Without television, not more than 10 bowlers could live off the sport."

Johnny, who now resides in Chicago, was working in his native Cleveland when he decided to devote all his time to bowling. He told how he had made the tournament circuit for about eight years before he quit his job.

"I wasn't bowling bad," Johnny said, "but I wasn't good enough to make much money. I knew I needed plenty of time to practice if I ever wanted to hit the big time. Now I try to bowl at least once a day, and it has paid off. When I quit working, I gave myself two years to make good. If I had failed, I would have gone back to my machine. Anybody who wants to be a good bowler must practice often."

Johnny kids about not working, but he lets you know bowling for a living is no cinch. Travel plus drawn-out tournaments in which he must bowl several times a day all but eliminate any possibility of a regular living routine. A 170-pounder, he lost nine pounds in a recent four-day grind.

One thing he does manage to do faithfully is amoke 16 or 17 big cigars a day. As TV fans might remember, he puffs away at several during a match.

He's big - time now, but he hasn't forgotten how rough it was right after World War II (he was wounded in France) when he tried to break into the tournaments.

"There was a 20-dollar entry fee, and I had only three dollars in my pocket. I found a backer who put up the rest, but then unknown to me, he sold six more shares in my stake. When it was over, and I won $1,200 I found seven guys with their hands out."

Ever since then the 36-year-old TV bowling King has been paying his own entry fees.

LOCKE WINNER

JOHANNESBURG, Jan. 18 (AP)—Bobby Locke, former British Open golf champion, today won the Transvaal Open championship with a 72-hole score of 276. Defending champion Harold Henning finished with a late burst for a total of 279, shoving Gary Player into third place with 280.

LAST STERNWHEELER

4,000 Ag Students Pulling For Myers

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UP)—Joe Tindel, editor of the Texas A&M student newspaper "The Battalion," said Saturday a 10,000-word telegram, signed by 4,000 students, was being sent to Iowa State Coach Jim Myers urging him to become head coach and athletic director at A&M.

Tindel said the telegram was the combined effort of the sports editor of "The Battalion," Gary Rollins, and also included the names of many members of the cadet corps and of civilian students.

Tindel also said the telegram will contain an apology to Myers for the treatment he has received from Texas A&M representatives.

The 36-year-old Myers conferred with Texas A&M athletic officials in Dallas about two weeks ago and was considered at that time to be almost certain of the job.

But he was told that the Texas A&M board of directors would have to pass on his candidacy. In the meantime, Navy Coach Eddie Erdelatz visited the A&M campus. Myers finally withdrew his name and Erdelatz announced that he was remaining at Navy.

Tindel said the Aggie football team, as a whole, was in favor of Myers from the beginning.

All-America John David Crow said: "If we could get Jim Myers, I think it would be the best thing that could ever happen. He's supposed to be a lot like Coach (Paul) Bryant. All the players were looking forward to Coach Myers in the first place. We owe him something and I think the boys will play extra hard for him because of what he has been through already for Texas A&M."

Tackle Charles Krueger, a co-captain of the Aggie team this year with Crow and a senior like Crow, said: "He's most of the guys choice. If only we could get him."

HONOR GRIDDERS

Tech's Football Banquet Tuesday

RUSTON, Jan. 18 (Special) — Louisiana Tech's Gulf States Conference co-championship football team of 1957 will be honored Tuesday evening at a banquet sponsored by the Ruston Rotary Club.

Speaker for the program will be Faize Mahfouz, head coach at Eunice High School.

Attending the banquet, to be held at Tech's Adams Cafeteria at 7 p.m., will be members of the Bulldog squad and coaching staff, a number of special guests, and members of the Rotary Club. The banquet is an annual project of the Ruston Rotary Club.

A highlight of the program will be the presentation of a number of awards to outstanidng players on the Tech team of 1957 that shared the conference title along with Northwestern Louisiana and McNeese State.

Joe Aillet, Tech athletic director and head coach, reports that there will be awards made to the most valuable senior lineman, most valuable senior back, most valuable freshman lineman, most valuable freshman back, most improved lineman and most improved back. There will also be a scholastic award given as well as two awards to Techsters who made an exceptional contribution to the team during the season.

The Billy Moss Memorial Trophy is to be given again this year. It was presented last year in honor of a former Bulldog player who was killed in an accident in 1956.

A certificate from the Williamson Football Rating System will be presented to Tommy Hinton, Ruston senior tackle and team co-captain last season, who was named by the Williamson System for its All-American team. Hinton was selected to the first team tackle spot on Williamson's 1957 Mid - Bracket All - American balanced poll team.

Coach Mahfouz, head mentor at Eunice since 1939, is called "dean of southwest Louisiana high school coaches." A featured speaker at both state and out-of-state coaching clinics, he is famous for his dry wit and expert choice of words.

Named "Coach of the Year" in district 4-AA last season, Coach Mahfouz's gridders went to the semi-finals in the state playoffs. His teams at Eunice High School have won over 75 per cent of their contests since he became coach there in 1939.

Coach Mahfouz saw prep duty at Bolton High School and played the quarterback position at Northwestern State College for three seasons. His first coaching position was at St. Mary's in Natchitoches.

NSC Aquatic Team Captures 3-Sided Event

NATCHITOCHES, La., Jan. 18 (AP)—Northwestern State won its own triangular swim meet today with 63 points to Shreveport Swim Club's 56 and Little Rock Boys Club's 26.

In girls competition, the Shreveport club won with 44 points, the Little Rock club took second with 40 and NSC third with 16.

Dean Clark of the Shreveport group set a record for the meet at 1:05.6 in the 100-yard butterfly stroke. Charles La Bourgeois of New Orleans set the old mark at 1:06.7 in 1955.

Other first place winners were:

440-yard free style—Pernique, 5:09.9

50-yard free style—Clark, 26:0

100-yard free style—John Holladay, NSC, :59.6

200-yard back stroke — Harris McClamroch, Shreveport, 2:42.3

Diving—Benny Wise, NSC.

Jena Tourney Opens Friday For 2-Day Run

JENA, La., (Special) — Fourteen games are on tap for the annual two-day invitational basketball tournament at Jena High School Friday and Saturday, matching some of the outstanding boys and girls high school basketball teams in central Louisiana.

Nine boys teams and seven girls teams are slated to enter competition, with play getting under way at 2 p.m. Friday, and continuing through the final games Saturday night.

Buckeye, Colfax, Jena and Georgetown make up the boys upper bracket, with Dry Prong, Pineville, Pollock, LaSalle of Olla and Columbia slated to see action in the lower bracket in boys competition.

In the girls division Buckeye, Columbia and Jena will fight it out for a final berth and Pollock, LaSalle of Olla, Colfax and Winnfield are slated for action in the lower bracket of the girls division.

Coach W. D. Tullos of Jena High School stressed that "We believe we have one of the strongest lineups of competitors of any tournament to be played in this area."

LaSalle of Olla and Columbia will battle in the opening game of the tournament Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock "and this should produce a top boys' contest," Coach Tullos predicted. "Columbia is rated a dark horse contender and could be the team that will surprise a lot of people in central and northeast Louisiana before the season is completed. LaSalle is always a tough tournament team and with Jackie McAdams and Everett Brooks hitting with regularity, they could be real tough."

Alhambra 1st In Hibiscus; Hubcap Next

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 18 (AP)—Alabama-born Alhambra sped to a half-length victory in the $24,775 Hibiscus Stakes today in a preview of promising Kentucky Derby candidates at Hialeah Park.

Alhambra, strapping brown son of Olympia owned by Fred W. Hooper, took the lead a few yards from the finish and won by half a length in a driving duel with Elkcam stable's Hubcap, speedy Florida-bred.

Third in the field of 10 three-year-olds was Mrs. L. Birr's Belleau Chief, 2½ lengths behind Hubcap and two in front of R. D. Prewitt's Terra Frima. Others in order of finish were Bolero U., Yemen, Nisht Amool, Talent Show Arnold H., and Jimmer.

Time for the six furlongs over a fast track was 1:10 1-5 compared with the record of 1:09.

Jimmer stumbled leaving the gate and unseated his jockey, Eric Guerin. The rider was not injured and walked away from the starting gate.

Talent Show was first out of the gate but Hubcap, under the veteran Ted Akinson, quickly moved in front and stayed there well into the stretch where Alhambra, moving up fast from second, caught the fleet Florida - bred to give Hooper, a Coral Gables, Fla., contractor, first money of $17,350 net.

Alhambra, sharing top weight of 122 pounds with five others, was post-time favorite under Jockey Howard Grant and returned $6.50, $3.50 and $2.90. Hubcap paid $4.60, and $3.90, while Belleau Chief was $13.40 to show.

Grammar Cagers Share Twin Bill

Ouachita Parish Grammar School cagers divided with Crosley of West Monroe, the O.P.G.S. girls winning 17-14, and the Crosley boys winning, 19-8, in their Friday contests.

Konrads Betters Two Swim Marks

SYDNEY, Australia (UP)—Jon Konrads, 15, climaxed one of the most amazing individual exploits in swimming history Saturday night when he bettered his fifth and sixth world record at the New South Wales championships while winning the men's 220-yard freestyle in 2 minutes, 04.8 seconds.

The clocking in the 55-yard Sydney Olympic pool also set a new world standard for 200 meters (about 215 yards).

Konrads opened the men's division of the meet last Saturday night by bettering the world freestyle marks for 400 meters and 440 yards with a time of 2 minutes, 25.9 seconds. Wednesday night he broke the world records for 800 meters and 880 yards freestyle with a time of 9:17.7.

In the women's division of the championships, Jon's 13-year-old sister, Ilsa, bettered the world records for 800 meters and 880 yards freestyle with a clocking of 10:17.7, Jan. 9.

Jon's come-from-behind victory Saturday night boosted to eignt the world marks he and his sister shattered here in a warm-up for next month's Australian national championships at Melbourne. The Konrads kids are "new" Australian citizens whose parents immigrated here from Latvia after World War II.

Jon's feats in the New South Wales championships have stamped him as Australia's top hope in men's swimming for the 1960 Olympics in Rome. On Christmas Eve of 1951, Jon was struck by polio in a migrant center 350 miles south of Sydney and five years ago he could barely keep himself afloat in the water.

Gary Chapman, who led Konrads Saturday night until the final 10 yards, also bettered the listed world mark for 220 yards by finishing second in 2:05.2. Chapman set the previous mark of 2:05.8 Feb. 18, 1956, at Sydney.

Konrads' time for 220-yards also surpassed the time of 2:05.2 which the International Swimming Federation set as a world standard for 200 meters last May. At that time, the federation ruled that henceforth all times, to be considered for recognition as world marks, must be set in pools of 50 meters or 55 yeards in length.

Before the federation set its new standards, Jack Wardrop, a Scot attending the University of Michigan, held the world mark of 2:03.4 for 200 meters and 220 yards freestyle. Wardrop produced this clocking during the Big Ten championships at Ohio State, March 4, 1955.

GRAND SLAM KING

Gil Hodges Inks Dodger Contract

By UNITED PRESS

Baseball's grand slam homer king of the National League, first baseman Gil Hodges, Saturday signed his 1958 contract with the Los Angeles Dodgers, Vice President E. J. (Buzzie) Bavasi announced.

Hodges, all-time first baseman of the Dodgers, was the 22nd player to sign with the transplanted Dodgers, Bavasi said.

The big first baseman became the first man in National League history to hit 13 grand slam homers last Aug. 1 when he rapped one of the offerings of Chicago's Dick Littlefield out of the park with the bases loaded.

Elsewhere the Chicago White Sox announced the signing of three more players, bringing the total to nine of the 39-man roster.

The least to agree to terms were first baseman Walt Dropo, outfielder Ted Beard and catcher Chuck Lindstrom, son of former New York Giant third baseman Fred Lindstrom.

Right-hander Billy Loes, a 12-game winner for the Baltimore Orioles last season, signed a 1958 contract calling for approximately $16,000, about $4,000 more than he received last year.

Loes, who came to the Orioles on waivers from the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1956, had 11 victories by Aug. 4 last season but developed a sore arm, pitched infrequently thereafter and wound up with a 12-7 record.

Only seven St. Louis Cardinals remain unsigned for the 1958 season after General Manager Bing Devine announced five more players came to terms.

11 Ex-Champs Seniors Golf In National

DUNEDIN, Fla. (UP)—Eleven former champions, including 1957 titlist Al Watrous, Birmingham, Mich., are scheduled to be in a field of about 250 elder golfers competing Tuesday through Sunday here in the National Seniors golf championship.

Competition in the $10,000 event, limited to players 50 years of age or older, has been boosted this year to 72 holes.

But play has been spread out to save the wear and tear on the contestants. Players 55 and over will shoot their first rounds Tuesday and second on Thursday, while those 50 to 54 will play first rounds Wednesday and second rounds Friday. The low 100 and ties from both groups will play in the third round Saturday and fourth round Sunday.

Watrous, who won the crown in 1950 and '51 before taking it again last year, is one of two triple champions entered. The other is Eddie Williams, Louisville, Ky., winner in 1942, 1945, and 1946. Other former champions entered are Fred McLeod, Chevy Chase, Md., Otto Hackbarth, Cincinnati, Charles McKenna, Pittsford, N.Y., Marshall Crichton, Rockford, Mich., Ernest Newham, Portland, Me., Harry Schwab, Dayton, Ohio, Gene Sarazen, Germantown, N.Y., Mortie Dutra, Rialto, Calif., and Pete Burke, Cold Spring Harbor, N.Y.

Pettit Shoots Winning Goal For St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (UP) — Clutch-points by Bob Pettit and Jack Coleman in the final minute and a half of play Saturday enabled the St. Louis Hawks to edge the Detroit Pistons, 105 - 103 before 5,119 fans and a national television audience.

The victory ended a three-game losing streak for St. Louis which leads the Western Division of the National Basketball Association.

After Detroit had fought back to take a 103-101 lead on Harry Gallatin's basket with 1:49 to play, Coleman knotted the score at 103-103 with a jump shot that came with 1:31 on the clock.

Pettit clicked from the side on a short jumper, the game's final points with 42 seconds left.

Detroit had one final opportunity to tie the score in the fintl 25 seconds. The Pisons' Nat Clifton and St. Louis' Jack McMahon had a jump ball situation on the Detroit offensive court. Clifton controlled the tip, but Slater Martin stole the ball from Gene Shue.

Martin was fouled by Joe Holup with three seconds left. He missed both shots, but the Hawks controlled the rebound as time ran out.

Pettit and Detroit's George Yardley, among the top five scorers in the league, both turned in sterling performances. Pettit, who finished with 40 points, scored 22 of them in the third quarter, a new Kiel Auditorium record. Yardley, who played the entire game, finished with 36 markers.

The Hawks led at half time 50-41.

King Quit 'Work' Made Bowling Pay

By JIM KENSIL

Work? He gave that up more than 2½ years ago when he decided there wasn't much of a future in being a $100-a-week machine operator.

He preferred the manual operation of a bowling ball, and last year he turned into a money-making machine good for an estimated $25,000 from prizes won on televised bowling shows. That sum, based on figures compiled by Bowling Magazine, was $8,000 more than the amount won by any other bowler.

Johnny, currently the defending champion on ABC's weekly filmed series, "Bowling Stars," will be working tomorrow afternoon (3 p.m., CST) when he meets the challenge of Joe Bolek.

It wouldn't be fair to disclose the result, but if bowling fans or those interested in cold, hard cash would like to see how Johnny ran up 25 grand, there won't be a better day to take a TV look.

As long as the result is unannounced, the filming of the weekly shows detracts not at all from the suspense, and it insures weekly entertainment. For instance, Johnny, who travels at least a mile for every dollar he makes, has been in Minneapolis all week competing in the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America All-Star Tournament.

ABC will carry the finals, both men's and women's, of that tournament live tomorrow night (8-9 p.m., CST) when eight surviving men and four women roll for the better part of $36,000 in prize money.

Why. that's more money than Johnny King makes in a year!

Not really. In addition to the TV loot, he picks up more in non-televised tournaments, exhibitions commercial fees, etc.

"It's been great," Johnny says, "but I just knock on wood and keep practicing. I figure there is only enough prize money around to support 20 men without a regular job on the side. Without television, not more than 10 bowlers could live off the sport."

Johnny, who now resides in Chicago, was working in his native Cleveland when he decided to devote all his time to bowling. He told how he had made the tournament circuit for about eight years before he quit his job.

"I wasn't bowling bad," Johnny said, "but I wasn't good enough to make much money. I knew I needed plenty of time to practice if I ever wanted to hit the big time. Now I try to bowl at least once a day, and it has paid off. When I quit working, I gave myself two years to make good. If I had failed, I would have gone back to my machine. Anybody who wants to be a good bowler must practice often."

Johnny kids about not working, but he lets you know bowling for a living is no cinch. Travel plus drawn-out tournaments in which he must bowl several times a day all but eliminate any possibility of a regular living routine. A 170-pounder, he lost nine pounds in a recent four-day grind.

One thing he does manage to do faithfully is amoke 16 or 17 big cigars a day. As TV fans might remember, he puffs away at several during a match.

He's big - time now, but he hasn't forgotten how rough it was right after World War II (he was wounded in France) when he tried to break into the tournaments.

"There was a 20-dollar entry fee, and I had only three dollars in my pocket. I found a backer who put up the rest, but then unknown to me, he sold six more shares in my stake. When it was over, and I won $1,200 I found seven guys with their hands out."

Ever since then the 36-year-old TV bowling King has been paying his own entry fees.

LOCKE WINNER

JOHANNESBURG, Jan. 18 (AP)—Bobby Locke, former British Open golf champion, today won the Transvaal Open championship with a 72-hole score of 276. Defending champion Harold Henning finished with a late burst for a total of 279, shoving Gary Player into third place with 280.

LAST STERNWHEELER

4,000 Ag Students Pulling For Myers

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UP)—Joe Tindel, editor of the Texas A&M student newspaper "The Battalion," said Saturday a 10,000-word telegram, signed by 4,000 students, was being sent to Iowa State Coach Jim Myers urging him to become head coach and athletic director at A&M.

Tindel said the telegram was the combined effort of the sports editor of "The Battalion," Gary Rollins, and also included the names of many members of the cadet corps and of civilian students.

Tindel also said the telegram will contain an apology to Myers for the treatment he has received from Texas A&M representatives.

The 36-year-old Myers conferred with Texas A&M athletic officials in Dallas about two weeks ago and was considered at that time to be almost certain of the job.

But he was told that the Texas A&M board of directors would have to pass on his candidacy. In the meantime, Navy Coach Eddie Erdelatz visited the A&M campus. Myers finally withdrew his name and Erdelatz announced that he was remaining at Navy.

Tindel said the Aggie football team, as a whole, was in favor of Myers from the beginning.

All-America John David Crow said: "If we could get Jim Myers, I think it would be the best thing that could ever happen. He's supposed to be a lot like Coach (Paul) Bryant. All the players were looking forward to Coach Myers in the first place. We owe him something and I think the boys will play extra hard for him because of what he has been through already for Texas A&M."

Tackle Charles Krueger, a co-captain of the Aggie team this year with Crow and a senior like Crow, said: "He's most of the guys choice. If only we could get him."

Konrads Betters Two Swim Marks

SYDNEY, Australia (UP)—Jon Konrads, 15, climaxed one of the most amazing individual exploits in swimming history Saturday night when he bettered his fifth and sixth world record at the New South Wales championships while winning the men's 220-yard freestyle in 2 minutes, 04.8 seconds.

The clocking in the 55-yard Sydney Olympic pool also set a new world standard for 200 meters (about 215 yards).

Konrads opened the men's division of the meet last Saturday night by bettering the world freestyle marks for 400 meters and 440 yards with a time of 2 minutes, 25.9 seconds. Wednesday night he broke the world records for 800 meters and 880 yards freestyle with a time of 9:17.7.

In the women's division of the championships, Jon's 13-year-old sister, Ilsa, bettered the world records for 800 meters and 880 yards freestyle with a clocking of 10:17.7, Jan. 9.

Jon's come-from-behind victory Saturday night boosted to eignt the world marks he and his sister shattered here in a warm-up for next month's Australian national championships at Melbourne. The Konrads kids are "new" Australian citizens whose parents immigrated here from Latvia after World War II.

Jon's feats in the New South Wales championships have stamped him as Australia's top hope in men's swimming for the 1960 Olympics in Rome. On Christmas Eve of 1951, Jon was struck by polio in a migrant center 350 miles south of Sydney and five years ago he could barely keep himself afloat in the water.

Gary Chapman, who led Konrads Saturday night until the final 10 yards, also bettered the listed world mark for 220 yards by finishing second in 2:05.2. Chapman set the previous mark of 2:05.8 Feb. 18, 1956, at Sydney.

Konrads' time for 220-yards also surpassed the time of 2:05.2 which the International Swimming Federation set as a world standard for 200 meters last May. At that time, the federation ruled that henceforth all times, to be considered for recognition as world marks, must be set in pools of 50 meters or 55 yearlds in length.

Before the federation set its new standards, Jack Wardrop, a Scot attending the University of Michigan, held the world mark of 2:03.4 for 200 meters and 220 yards freestyle. Wardrop produced this clocking during the Big Ten championships at Ohio State, March 4, 1955.

HONOR GRIDDERS

Tech's Football Banquet Tuesday

RUSTON, Jan. 18 (Special) — Louisiana Tech's Gulf States Conference co-championship football team of 1957 will be honored Tuesday evening at a banquet sponsored by the Ruston Rotary Club.

Attending the banquet, to be held at Tech's Adams Cafeteria at 7 p.m., will be members of the Bulldog squad and coaching staff, a number of special guests, and members of the Rotary Club. The banquet is an annual project of the Ruston Rotary Club.

A highlight of the program will be the presentation of a number of awards to outstanidng players on the Tech team of 1957 that shared the conference title along with Northwestern Louisiana and McNeese State.

Joe Aillet, Tech athletic director and head coach, reports that there will be awards made to the most valuable senior lineman, most valuable senior back, most valuable freshman lineman, most valuable freshman back, most improved lineman and most improved back. There will also be a scholastic award given as well as two awards to Techsters who made an exceptional contribution to the team during the season.

The Billy Moss Memorial Trophy is to be given again this year. It was presented last year in honor of a former Bulldog player who was killed in an accident in 1956.

A certificate from the Williamson Football Rating System will be presented to Tommy Hinton, Ruston senior tackle and team co-captain last season, who was named by the Williamson System for its All-American team. Hinton was selected to the first team tackle spot on Williamson's 1957 Mid - Bracket All - American balanced poll team.

Coach Mahfouz, head mentor at Eunice since 1939, is called "dean of southwest Louisiana high school coaches." A featured speaker at both state and out-of-state coaching clinics, he is famous for his dry wit and expert choice of words.

Named "Coach of the Year" in district 4-AA last season, Coach Mahfouz's gridders went to the semi-finals in the state playoffs. His teams at Eunice High School have won over 75 per cent of their contests since he became coach there in 1939.

Coach Mahfouz saw prep duty at Bolton High School and played the quarterback position at Northwestern State College for three seasons. His first coaching position was at St. Mary's in Natchitoches.

NSC Aquatic Team Captures 3-Sided Event

NATCHITOCHES, La., Jan. 18 (AP)—Northwestern State won its own triangular swim meet today with 63 points to Shreveport Swim Club's 56 and Little Rock Boys Club's 26.

In girls competition, the Shreveport club won with 44 points, the Little Rock club took second with 40 and NSC third with 16.

Dean Clark of the Shreveport group set a record for the meet at 1:05.6 in the 100-yard butterfly stroke. Charles La Bourgeois of New Orleans set the old mark at 1:06.7 in 1955.

Other first place winners were:

440-yard free style—Pernique, 5:09.9

50-yard free style—Clark, 26:0

100-yard free style—John Holladay, NSC, :59.6

Diving—Benny Wise, NSC.

Jena Tourney Opens Friday For 2-Day Run

JENA, La., (Special) — Fourteen games are on tap for the annual two-day invitational basketball tournament at Jena High School Friday and Saturday, matching some of the outstanding boys and girls high school basketball teams in central Louisiana.

Nine boys teams and seven girls teams are slated to enter competition, with play getting under way at 2 p.m. Friday, and continuing through the final games Saturday night.

Buckeye, Colfax, Jena and Georgetown make up the boys upper bracket, with Dry Prong, Pineville, Pollock, LaSalle of Olla and Columbia slated to see action in the lower bracket in boys competition.

In the girls division Buckeye, Columbia and Jena will fight it out for a final berth and Pollock, LaSalle of Olla, Colfax and Winnfield are slated for action in the lower bracket of the girls division.

Coach W. D. Tullos of Jena High School stressed that "We believe we have one of the strongest lineups of competitors of any tournament to be played in this area."

LaSalle of Olla and Columbia will battle in the opening game of the tournament Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock "and this should produce a top boys' contest," Coach Tullos predicted. "Columbia is rated a dark horse contender and could be the team that will surprise a lot of people in central and northeast Louisiana before the season is completed. LaSalle is always a tough tournament team and with Jackie McAdams and Everett Brooks hitting with regularity, they could be real tough."

Alhambra 1st In Hibiscus; Hubcap Next

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 18 (AP)—Alabama-born Alhambra sped to a half-length victory in the $24,775 Hibiscus Stakes today in a preview of promising Kentucky Derby candidates at Hialeah Park.

Alhambra, strapping brown son of Olympia owned by Fred W. Hooper, took the lead a few yards from the finish and won by half a length in a driving duel with Elkcam stable's Hubcap, speedy Florida-bred.

Third in the field of 10 three-year-olds was Mrs. L. Birr's Belleau Chief, 2½ lengths behind Hubcap and two in front of R. D. Prewitt's Terra Frima. Others in order of finish were Bolero U., Yemen, Nisht Amool, Talent Show Arnold H., and Jimmer.

Time for the six furlongs over a fast track was 1:10 1-5 compared with the record of 1:09.

Jimmer stumbled leaving the gate and unseated his jockey, Eric Guerin. The rider was not injured and walked away from the starting gate.

Talent Show was first out of the gate but Hubcap, under the veteran Ted Akinson, quickly moved in front and stayed there well into the stretch where Alhambra, moving up fast from second, caught the fleet Florida - bred to give Hooper, a Coral Gables, Fla., contractor, first money of $17,350 net.

Alhambra, sharing top weight of 122 pounds with five others, was post-time favorite under Jockey Howard Grant and returned $6.50, $3.50 and $2.90. Hubcap paid $4.60, and $3.90, while Belleau Chief was $13.40 to show.

Grammar Cagers Share Twin Bill

Ouachita Parish Grammar School cagers divided with Crosley of West Monroe, the O.P.G.S. girls winning 17-14, and the Crosley boys winning, 19-8, in their Friday contests.

Barabtra Kennedy's 10 points led the unbeaten Ouacyhita girls, winners of five.

BOWLING

With Tommy Higgins

A fast advancing kegler, Billy Duke, and dependable Daisy Creighton are my selections for bowlers of the week.

Bowling in the Pioneer League for Tom Spatafora's Grocery, Billy set a new high individual game and series. His terrific games were 223-246-193. The 246 game set a new high for the league and the 662 series was not only high for the Pioneer League but was the second highest thrown all season for all leagues here.

BILLY DUKE

Billy has been bowling only two years but in this short time has become one of Monroe's top keglers. A member of the men's "600" Club, a real good sport and team man plus the ability to give his team a high average and the big game makes Billy Duke our bowler of the week.

Congratulations are in order for Daisy Creighton. Bowling for Fields in the Business Women's League, Daisy came up with a real honey of a game and series.

Daisy registered a big 234 game which was a new seasonal high for the ladies and she had a fat 582 series that shattered the old mark for the Business League.

An excellent captain, Daisy piloted her teams to championships the past two years. Silverstein's won the Ladies crown last season, and John Spatafora's copped the Summer Scratch League title.

My hat is off to Daisy Creighton—lady bowler of the week.

The Husband and Wife Tournament kicked off here last night and continues through today at Monroe Bowling Center. Entries from all over the state are participating in the two-day family affair.

Teams are permitted to enter up to three times. Trophies and other prizes are to be awarded at the conclusion. The public is invited to attend.

Entries close tonight for the annual Men's City Tournament. Fifty or more teams are expected to participate in the tourney. Troy and Nichols is defending champion.

Don had games of 206-202-205 for a nice 613. Red put together 213-189-210 for 612, and Luke registered 199-230-179 to bowl himself a 608 series.

Royal Feed and Seed took over the lead in the Major League Monday night for the first time. The Forge, after setting the pace most of the season, slipped to second, one point behind. Sonny Durham was the big gun in Royal's attack, firing a 236 game and a 652 series.

Proof that a bowler in singles or doubles competition maintains greate consistency than in a five-man team effort is shown by the 300 games rolled in American Bowling Congress tournaments.

Of the 14 perfect games bowled in ABC tourneys, eight were rolled in individual events, and six in the doubles.

The reason? Experts say in the team event, which progresses at a slower pace, that a prospective 300 bowler is more apt to become a victim of mounting pressure.

Terrang Shows Way For Santa Catalina Nags

ARCADIA, Calif., Jan. 18 (AP)—Collaring pace setter Blen Host at the head of the stretch, Terrang won the $27,450 Santa Catalina Handicap today at Santa Anita. His time for the mile and one eighth was 1:49-1-5.

A half length behind was Like Magic, with Eddie Schmidt third. Blen Host finished fourth.

Today's supporting feature, the $23,000 Santa Monica Handicap at seven furlongs, went to Mrs. Connie Ring's Market Basket, who ran the distance in 1:22 4-5, defeating Ballet Khal by three parts of a length.

Market Basket paid $5.50, $3.10 and $2.10; Ballet Khal $2.90 and $2.50, and Cold Hands at third was $4.20. Triple Jay was fourth.

Terrang paid $5.10, $3.20 and $2.10. Like Magic returned $3.80 and $2.20 and Eddie Schmidt paid $2.10.

Meaux Rides Bernburgoo To Marriage Win

By ED TUNSTALL

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 18 (AP) — Jockey Clarence Meaux pushed W. Hal Bishop'n Bernburgoo through on the outside down the stretch today to win the $10,000 Marriage Handicap at the Fair Grounds with a three-length spread over stablemate Bryn.

Meaux, scoring his fourth victory of the day, brought the 5-year-old son of Bernborough from fifth at the head of the stretch and he won with Meaux looking over his shoulder. Bryn had a nose margin over Speed Rouser from the Milwaukee stable of Dr. S. G. Babbitz.

The Bishop entry was the even money choice of the crowd of 15,542 that turned out in spring-like weather to celebrate Texas Day. The race was named for C. L. Dupuy's Marriage, twice winner of the New Orleans Handicap and holder of the track's mile and one-eighth record.

Bernburgoo returned $4, 4.20 and 3.20 with Bryn paying the same for place and show. Speed Rouser, who charged through on the rail during the last quarter mile of the mile and one-eighth run, returned $3.40.

Bernburgoo toured the distance in 1:52 2-5, almost three full seconds off Marriage's record.

The other Meaux winners were Espino Gold Jr. ($11) in the first, Bishop's Kerrville ($11) in the fourth and Trico ($10.20), also from the Bishop stable, in the seventh.

Betting on the nine race card was the best of the season, amounting to $807,512.

MCKOIN-BOUDREAUX

Kallio Adds Supporting Bouts For Monday Fight

Promoter Gus Kallio last night announced the completion of his supporting card for Monday night's state welterweight championship match between Westwego's Al Boudreaux and Bastrop's Irish Johnny McKoin.

Columbus Marshall of Shreveport and Henry Burton of Monroe, colored middleweights, tangle in the night's semi-final fray, a six-rounder. Marshall and Burton met here in one of the four-round preliminaries on the Clarence Cook-Jimmy Leach card late last year and turned in the best fight on the program. Burton won the decision.

Monroe's Jesse Goins and another Shreveporter, Gene Singleton, meet in a four-rounder. Goins is expected to weigh in at 142 pounds and Singleton at 139.

Two more middleweights, Robert Williams and Lester Gillyard, are scheduled for a four-rounder. Williams is from Monroe and Gillyard from Bossier City.

Monroe won't be represented in the program's heavyweight match which pairs Charley Scott of Shreveport and Fair Black of Bossier City. Scott weighs 185 and Black 190.

The main event is scheduled for ten rounds. Boudreaux has been in town for a week training while McKoin is working out at Bastrop. The two have split in a pair of previous meetings, Boudreaux winning a bloody bout at Beaumont a couple of years ago on a TKO in the second round.

McKoin took his victory here a year and a half ago in the local ball park with a hotly disputed decision over Boudreaux in a semi-final bout on the Cook-Martinez card.

Kallio's usual Monday night wrestling program will be dropped in favor of the fight but will be back next Monday night.

Advanced sale of tickets for the fistic event are still going on. Ducats can be purchased at Kallio's residence office at 1101 Jackson. Seats are going for $2.50 in the first three ringside rows, $1.50 for all other adult seats in the house, and 50 cents for children under 12 years of age except in the first three ringsides.

AT HIS BEST—Irish Johnny McKoin, above, Bastrop welterweight, declared yesterday he will be at his best tomorrow night when he meets Al Boudreaux of Westwego for the Louisiana state welterweight championship at Gus Kallio's Arena here. The match is the ten-round main event of the card.

Kentucky Tips Tennessee Foe By 77-68 Edge

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 18 (AP)—Kentucky, helped along by a 30-point outburst by Johnny Cox outlasted Tennessee, 77-68, tonight to take undisputed possession of first place in the Southeastern Conference basketball race.

Tennessee, taking its first setback in four conference starts, outdueled Kentucky in the last five minutes to close the gap after the Wildcats had held a comfortable margin since the middle of the first half. Kentucky's league record now stands at 5-0.

Leon Ammerman topped Tennessee scoring with 18 points and sophomore Dalen Showalter added 12. Tormohlen, the Vols' leading scorer this season, got only seven points, six of them in the last half.

The 30 by Cox is the best by a Kentucky player this season. Vernon Hatton was next with 14.

Swimming Star Denies Parents Fear Kidnapping

SYDNEY, Australia (UP)—Jon Konrads, Australia's 15-year-old swimming star, Saturday night denied a story in the Sydney Herald which said his parents feared he and his sister Ilsa might be kidnapped by the Russians if they go to the 1958 British Empire Games and 1960 Olympics.

"I definitely will go to the Empire games in Wales and also to the Olympics in Rome," Jon said.

"That is, I'll go if I'm selected," he added with a grin.

Jon and his sister, Ilsa , 13, broke eight world records during the New South Wales championships which ended Saturday night. Their parents immigrated to Australia from Lativa, leaving their homeland in the closing years of World War II when the Russian army crashed through northern Europe in pursuit of the Germans.

Calumet Trainer In Good Shape After Operation

The 75-year-old Jones, who has handled six Kentucky Derby winners, underwent surgery Friday after entering the hospital for a checkup. The major operation was reported a complete success and at 4-all. ably.

Fireballer Loes Comes To Terms With Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Jan. 18 (AP)—Billy Loes, the unpredictable fireballer who made a strong comeback with the Baltimore Orioles last year, has signed his 1958 contract, the club announced today. He was the eighth Oriole to come to terms.

After winning only two games in 1956, Loes came back last year to win 12 while losing 7. Three of his victories were shutouts.

Loes' contract was purchased from the Brooklyn Dodgers in May, 1956, after he developed arm trouble. Manager Paul Richards has brought him along slowly, and Loes says his arm is back in shape.

'PRETTY SEVERLY'

Dodgers' Slate Will Be Shifted

LOS ANGELES (UP) — Los Angeles Dodger President Walter O'Malley said Saturday the club's tentative schedule probably would have to be changed "pretty severely" in order to avoid conflicts in dates with other users of Memorial Coliseum.

However, he said there appeared no insurmountable problems for the Dodgers now that they have been granted the use of the huge stadium as a temporary home.

O'Malley said he hoped it was "only dates an dnot teams' 'that would have to be changed.

Other users of the Coliseum besides the Los Angeles Rams and USC and UCLA include the American Legion which stages an annual July 4 fireworks show and the Sheriff's Relief Assn. which holds a rodeo.

O'Malley reviewed some of the Dodger problems at a press conference following Friday's unanimous Coliseum Commission vote granting the club use of the 101,000-seat stadium.

He said the club might play more night games in mid-season than if it had to use Wrigley Field. In April, it might play more afternoon games than had been intended.

The club expects to play its first game here April 18 against the San Francisco Giants.

O'Malley will leave Sunday or Monday for New York where he will attend the National League meeting Jan. 25. He said he would tell league officials of plans to convert the Coliseum for Dodger use. He will have to seek approval of the league on schedule changes.

The Dodger boss reiterated that there would be no televised games this year and he has no plans for TV at thi. time, although the radio setup will be announced shortly.

Previously, O'Malley said that if the Dodgers did not have the use of local pay-TV, they would not have TV.

The issue as to whether two firms will be allowed to start closed-circuit, pay-TV in Los Angeles remains to be decided.

STENGEL IS FOURTH

Senor Lopez Boasts Best Pilot Average

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (AP)—There may or may not be better big league baseball managers than Al Lopez. But the veteran Chicago White Sox' pilot has at least one factor in his favor.

He has the highest lifetime won-lost percentage among current major league mentors.

Covering six seasons with the Cleveland Indians and the last one with the White Sox, Lopez' clubs have won 660 regular season games and lost only 418 for a .612 mark. Al led Cleveland to the American League pennant in 1954. In every other year his teams finished in second place behind Casey Stengel's New York Yankees.

Stengel, of course, has put together a noteworthy record with the American League champs. Since joining them in 1949, Casey has won 881 times and lost 502 for .637. He has collected eight pennants in nine years.

But Stengel's so-so tenure with the Boston Braves and the Brooklyn Dodgers in the 1930s reduces his overall managerial average to .539 — good for only fourth place in the lifetime rankings. Casey managed the Dodgers for three seasons and the Braves for six and had a combined National League record of 602-767 (.440).

Walter Alston, who has spent four years with the Dodgers, ranks right behind Lopez with a .597 mark. His clubs have recorded 367 victories and 248 setbacks while winning two pennants and picking up one second place and one third.

In three campaigns with the Boston Red Sox, during which they have finished fourth twice and third with the other time, Pinky Higgins has compiled a 250-212 mark for .541. He is in the No. 3 position followed by Stengel and Birdie Tebbetts of the Cincinnati Redlegs.

Tebbetts, who was voted the National League's manager of the year in 1956, has won 320 games and lost 296 for a .519 mark in four seasons.

The only other managers over .500 are Paul Richards of the Baltimore Orioles and Jack Tighe of the Detroit Tigers. Danny Murtaugh, who took the Pittsburgh reigns last Aug. 3, led the Pirates to a 26-26 mark for the remainder of the campaign.

Richards, the Orioles' skipper since 1955 when he left the White Sox, has seven years of major league managerial experience. His record is 544-523 for .510. Tighe has been with Detroit one year, guiding the Tigers into fourth place in 1957 with a 78-76 (.506).

Next comes Mayor Smith of the Philadelphia Phillies with .487 followed by Harry Craft, the Kansas City skipper since last Aug. 6, with .460, Fred Hutchinson of the St. Louis Cards, .456, and Bill Rigney of the Giants,' .441.

Fred Haney has answered some of his critics by leading Milwaukee's Braves into a second place windup in 1956 and to the pennant last season. However, he spent three years with the Pittsburgh Pirates and 2½ with the defunct St. Louis Browns.

Except for the Braves, Haney never had a club in the first division. So his lifetime record stands at .416 with 448 victories and 628 setbacks.

Bob Scheffing of the Chicago Cubs, Bobby Bragan of Cleveland and Cookie Lavagetto of Washington hold down the last three places. Scheffing's percentage is .403, Bragan's .398 and Lavagetto's .381.

Named Assistant At Wichita U.

WICHITA, Kan. (UP) — Bill Austin, former All-National Football League New York Giant, Saturday wts named an assistant football coach at Wichita University.

Austin, 29, was graduated from Oregon State in 1949 and has been an offensive guard with the Giants the past five years. He succeeds Don Frambrough who left Wichita a few weeks ago to join the University of Kansas staff.

JUNIOR PRODUCTION

22 Teams For South Monroe Cage Event

The first annual South Monroe Junior High Basketball Tournament will be held here Thursday, Friday, and Saturday with 22 teams participating, Coach Clyde Perkins announced yesterday.

First, second, and third place trophies will be awarded winners in each of the boys and girls divisions. All - tournament teams will also be selected by the game officials — Jack Neal and Johnny Maroney of Monroe.

Teams entered in the girls' division have been listed as Logtown, Ouachita, Bastrop, South Monroe, Woodlawn, North Monroe, Start, Fiske Union, and St. Matthew's. In the boys' division are Ruston, Bastrop, Swartz, Farmerville, Woodlawn, Logtown, Ouachita, Rayville, South Monroe, Holly Ridge, North Monroe, St. Matthew's, and Beekman.

Swartz and Bastrop are favored in the boys' division, and Fiske Union and Bastrop appear strong in the girls' bracket, but tournament officials said "any one of the teams entered could easily upset the favorites."

Tickets for the complete tournament are on sale at South Monroe for $1 for adults and 75 cents for students. Admission at each session will be 15 cents for students and 35 cents for adults.

Ron Holmberg Has Operation In Australia

SYDNEY, Australia (UP) — Barry Mackay and Mike Green won their opening matches Saturday in the Australian tennis championships but Ron Holmberg, the other young United States Davis Cup player who entered the tournament, underwent an emergency appendectomy.

Holmberg, 19, was reported in "quite satisfactory" condition at St. Vincent's Hospital. The Brooklyn, N.Y., youth had complained of pains in his side this week and underwent the operation only a few hours before his scheduled first-round match with Australia's Graham Lovett.

A hospital spokesman said Holmberg probably would be released in about a week. The operation will cost him his chance to play in the national championships the main reason he, Mackay and Green remained in this country after the U.S. lost to Australia in the Davis Cup challenge round last month.

Mackay, the six-foot, four-inch American intercollegiate champion from Dayton, Ohio, and the University of Michigan, easily gained the second round. The 22-year-old Yank opened his bid for the men's title by defeating Wayne Reid of Melbourne, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2. Reid couldn't handle Mackay's booming serves.

Green, 20-year-old Miami, Fla., player, ousted Wayne's brother, Doug, 6-3, 7-5, 6-4. Doug threatened only in the second set when he broke Green's serve to pull even at 4all.

TAKES COACHING JOB

WICHITA, Kan., Jan. 18 (AP) — Guard Bill Austin of the National Football League New York Giants has been appointed an assistant football coach at the University of Wichita. Wichita Coach Woody Woodard said Austin, 29, will join his staff within the next 10 days.

Ned Garver Inks Kansas City Pact

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 18 (AP)—Pitcher Ned Garver sent back his signed contract today to the Kansas City Athletics.

The Ney, Ohio, hurler is the fifth player to get on the 1958 roster.

Garver, who pitched only 18 innings in the 1956 season because of an ailing arm, won six games and lost 13 last season.

BOWLING

With Tommy Higgins

A fast advancing kegler, Billy Duke, and dependable Daisy Creighton are my selections for bowlers of the week.

Bowling in the Pioneer League for Tom Spatafora's Grocery, Billy set a new high individual game and series. His terrific games were 223-246-193. The 246 game set a new high for the league and the 662 series was not only high for the Pioneer League but was the second highest thrown all season for all leagues here.

BILLY DUKE

Billy has been bowling only two years but in this short time has become one of Monroe's top keglers. A member of the men's "600" Club, a real good sport and team man plus the ability to give his team a high average and the big game makes Billy Duke our bowler of the week.

Congratulations are in order for Daisy Creighton. Bowling for Fields in the Business Women's League, Daisy came up with a real honey of a game and series.

Daisy registered a big 234 game which was a new seasonal high for the ladies and she had a fat 582 series that shattered the old mark for the Business League.

An excellent captain, Daisy piloted her teams to championships the past two years. Silverstein's won the Ladies crown last season, and John Spatafora's copped the Summer Scratch League title.

My hat is off to Daisy Creighton—lady bowler of the week.

The Husband and Wife Tournament kicked off here last night and continues through today at Monroe Bowling Center. Entries from all over the state are participating in the two-day family affair.

Teams are permitted to enter up to three times. Trophies and other prizes are to be awarded at the conclusion. The public is invited to attend.

Entries close tonight for the annual Men's City Tournament. Fifty or more teams are expected to participate in the tourney. Troy and Nichols is defending champion.

Don had games of 206-202-205 for a nice 613. Red put together 213-189-210 for 612, and Luke registered 199-230-179 to bowl himself a 608 series.

Royal Feed and Seed took over the lead in the Major League Monday night for the first time. The Forge, after setting the pace most of the season, slipped to second, one point behind. Sonny Durham was the big gun in Royal's attack, firing a 236 game and a 652 series.

Proof that a bowler in singles or doubles competition maintains greate consistency than in a five-man team effort is shown by the 300 games rolled in American Bowling Congress tournaments.

Of the 14 perfect games bowled in ABC tourneys, eight were rolled in individual events, and six in the doubles.

The reason? Experts say in the team event, which progresses at a slower pace, that a prospective 300 bowler is more apt to become a victim of mounting pressure.

Fireballer Loes Comes To Terms With Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Jan. 18 (AP)—Billy Loes, the unpredictable fireballer who made a strong comeback with the Baltimore Orioles last year, has signed his 1958 contract, the club announced today. He was the eighth Oriole to come to terms.

After winning only two games in 1956, Loes came back last year to win 12 while losing 7. Three of his victories were shutouts.

Loes' contract was purchased from the Brooklyn Dodgers in May, 1956, after he developed arm trouble. Manager Paul Richards has brought him along slowly, and Loes says his arm is back in shape.

Terrang Shows Way For Santa Catalina Nags

ARCADIA, Calif., Jan. 18 (AP)—Collaring pace setter Blen Host at the head of the stretch, Terrang won the $27,450 Santa Catalina Handicap today at Santa Anita. His time for the mile and one eighth was 1:49-1-5.

A half length behind was Like Magic, with Eddie Schmidt third. Blen Host finished fourth.

Today's supporting feature, the $23,000 Santa Monica Handicap at seven furlongs, went to Mrs. Connie Ring's Market Basket, who ran the distance in 1:22 4-5, defeating Ballet Khal by three parts of a length.

Market Basket paid $5.50, $3.10 and $2.10; Ballet Khal $2.90 and $2.50, and Cold Hands at third was $4.20. Triple Jay was fourth.

Terrang paid $5.10, $3.20 and $2.10. Like Magic returned $3.80 and $2.20 and Eddie Schmidt paid $2.10.

Meaux Rides Bernburgoo To Marriage Win

By ED TUNSTALL

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 18 (AP) — Jockey Clarence Meaux pushed W. Hal Bishop'n Bernburgoo through on the outside down the stretch today to win the $10,000 Marriage Handicap at the Fair Grounds with a three-length spread over stablemate Bryn.

Meaux, scoring his fourth victory of the day, brought the 5-year-old son of Bernborough from fifth at the head of the stretch and he won with Meaux looking over his shoulder. Bryn had a nose margin over Speed Rouser from the Milwaukee stable of Dr. S. G. Babbitz.

The Bishop entry was the even money choice of the crowd of 15,542 that turned out in spring-like weather to celebrate Texas Day. The race was named for C. L. Dupuy's Marriage, twice winner of the New Orleans Handicap and holder of the track's mile and one-eighth record.

Bernburgoo returned $4, 4.20 and 3.20 with Bryn paying the same for place and show. Speed Rouser, who charged through on the rail during the last quarter mile of the mile and one-eighth run, returned $3.40.

Bernburgoo toured the distance in 1:52 2-5, almost three full seconds off Marriage's record.

The other Meaux winners were Espino Gold Jr. ($11) in the first, Bishop's Kerrville ($11) in the fourth and Trico ($10.20), also from the Bishop stable, in the seventh.

Betting on the nine race card was the best of the season, amounting to $807,512.

Swimming Star Denies Parents Fear Kidnapping

SYDNEY, Australia (UP)—Jon Konrads, Australia's 15-year-old swimming star, Saturday night denied a story in the Sydney Herald which said his parents feared he and his sister Ilsa might be kidnapped by the Russians if they go to the 1958 British Empire Games and 1960 Olympics.

"I definitely will go to the Empire games in Wales and also to the Olympics in Rome," Jon said.

"That is, I'll go if I'm selected," he added with a grin.

Jon and his sister, Ilsa , 13, broke eight world records during the New South Wales championships which ended Saturday night. Their parents immigrated to Australia from Lativa, leaving their homeland in the closing years of World War II when the Russian army crashed through northern Europe in pursuit of the Germans.

MCKOIN-BOUDREAUX

Kallio Adds Supporting Bouts For Monday Fight

Promoter Gus Kallio last night announced the completion of his supporting card for Monday night's state welterweight championship match between Westwego's Al Boudreaux and Bastrop's Irish Johnny McKoin.

Columbus Marshall of Shreveport and Henry Burton of Monroe, colored middleweights, tangle in the night's semi-final fray, a six-rounder. Marshall and Burton met here in one of the four-round preliminaries on the Clarence Cook-Jimmy Leach card late last year and turned in the best fight on the program. Burton won the decision.

Monroe's Jesse Goins and another Shreveporter, Gene Singleton, meet in a four-rounder. Goins is expected to weigh in at 142 pounds and Singleton at 139.

Two more middleweights, Robert Williams and Lester Gillyard, are scheduled for a four-rounder. Williams is from Monroe and Gillyard from Bossier City.

Monroe won't be represented in the program's heavyweight match which pairs Charley Scott of Shreveport and Fair Black of Bossier City. Scott weighs 185 and Black 190.

The main event is scheduled for ten rounds. Boudreaux has been in town for a week training while McKoin is working out at Bastrop. The two have split in a pair of previous meetings, Boudreaux winning a bloody bout at Beaumont a couple of years ago on a TKO in the second round.

McKoin took his victory here a year and a half ago in the local ball park with a hotly disputed decision over Boudreaux in a semi-final bout on the Cook-Martinez card.

Kallio's usual Monday night wrestling program will be dropped in favor of the fight but will be back next Monday night.

Advanced sale of tickets for the fistic event are still going on. Ducats can be purchased at Kallio's residence office at 1101 Jackson. Seats are going for $2.50 in the first three ringside rows, $1.50 for all other adult seats in the house, and 50 cents for children under 12 years of age except in the first three ringsides.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 18 (AP)—Kentucky, helped along by a 30-point outburst by Johnny Cox outlasted Tennessee, 77-68, tonight to take undisputed possession of first place in the Southeastern Conference basketball race.

Tennessee, taking its first setback in four conference starts, outdueled Kentucky in the last five minutes to close the gap after the Wildcats had held a comfortable margin since the middle of the first half. Kentucky's league record now stands at 5-0.

Leon Ammerman topped Tennessee scoring with 18 points and sophomore Dalen Showalter added 12. Tormohlen, the Vols' leading scorer this season, got only seven points, six of them in the last half.

The 30 by Cox is the best by a Kentucky player this season. Vernon Hatton was next with 14.

Calumet Trainer In Good Shape After Operation

The 75-year-old Jones, who has handled six Kentucky Derby winners, underwent surgery Friday after entering the hospital for a checkup. The major operation was reported a complete success and at 4-all.

'PRETTY SEVERLY'

Dodgers' Slate Will Be Shifted

LOS ANGELES (UP) — Los Angeles Dodger President Walter O'Malley said Saturday the club's tentative schedule probably would have to be changed "pretty severely" in order to avoid conflicts in dates with other users of Memorial Coliseum.

However, he said there appeared no insurmountable problems for the Dodgers now that they have been granted the use of the huge stadium as a temporary home.

O'Malley said he hoped it was "only dates an dnot teams' 'that would have to be changed.

Other users of the Coliseum besides the Los Angeles Rams and USC and UCLA include the American Legion which stages an annual July 4 fireworks show and the Sheriff's Relief Assn. which holds a rodeo.

O'Malley reviewed some of the Dodger problems at a press conference following Friday's unanimous Coliseum Commission vote granting the club use of the 101,000-seat stadium.

He said the club might play more night games in mid-season than if it had to use Wrigley Field. In April, it might play more afternoon games than had been intended.

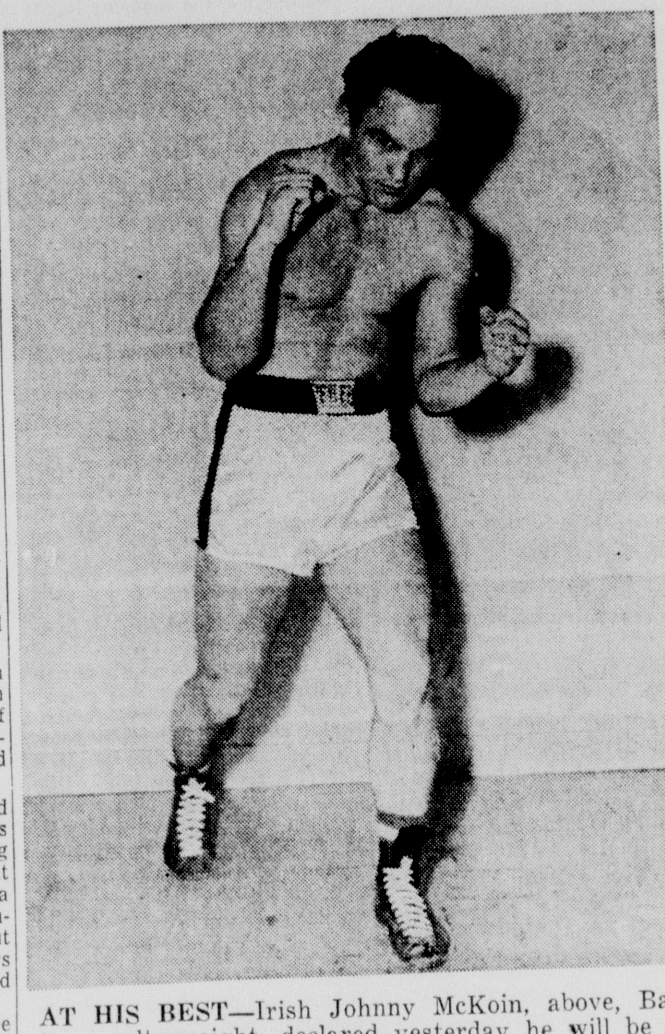
The club expects to play its first game here April 18 against the San Francisco Giants.

O'Malley will leave Sunday or Monday for New York where he will attend the National League meeting Jan. 25. He said he would tell league officials of plans to convert the Coliseum for Dodger use. He will have to seek approval of the league on schedule changes.

The Dodger boss reiterated that there would be no televised games this year and he has no plans for TV at thi. time, although the radio setup will be announced shortly.

Previously, O'Malley said that if the Dodgers did not have the use of local pay-TV, they would not have TV.

The issue as to whether two firms will be allowed to start closed-circuit, pay-TV in Los Angeles remains to be decided.



AT HIS BEST—Irish Johnny McKoin, above, Bastrop welterweight, declared yesterday he will be at his best tomorrow night when he meets Al Boudreaux of Westwego for the Louisiana state welterweight championship at Gus Kallio's Arena here. The match is the ten-round main event of the card.

STENGEL IS FOURTH

Senor Lopez Boasts Best Pilot Average

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (AP)—There may or may not be better big league baseball managers than Al Lopez. But the veteran Chicago White Sox' pilot has at least one factor in his favor.

He has the highest lifetime won-lost percentage among current major league mentors.

Covering six seasons with the Cleveland Indians and the last one with the White Sox, Lopez' clubs have won 660 regular season games and lost only 418 for a .612 mark. Al led Cleveland to the American League pennant in 1954. In every other year his teams finished in second place behind Casey Stengel's New York Yankees.

Stengel, of course, has put together a noteworthy record with the American League champs. Since joining them in 1949, Casey has won 881 times and lost 502 for .637. He has collected eight pennants in nine years.

But Stengel's so-so tenure with the Boston Braves and the Brooklyn Dodgers in the 1930s reduces his overall managerial average to .539 — good for only fourth place in the lifetime rankings. Casey managed the Dodgers for three seasons and the Braves for six and had a combined National League record of 602-767 (.440).

Walter Alston, who has spent four years with the Dodgers, ranks right behind Lopez with a .597 mark. His clubs have recorded 367 victories and 248 setbacks while winning two pennants and picking up one second place and one third.

In three campaigns with the Boston Red Sox, during which they have finished fourth twice and third with the other time, Pinky Higgins has compiled a 250-212 mark for .541. He is in the No. 3 position followed by Stengel and Birdie Tebbetts of the Cincinnati Redlegs.

Tebbetts, who was voted the National League's manager of the year in 1956, has won 320 games and lost 296 for a .519 mark in four seasons.

The only other managers over .500 are Paul Richards of the Baltimore Orioles and Jack Tighe of the Detroit Tigers. Danny Murtaugh, who took the Pittsburgh reigns last Aug. 3, led the Pirates to a 26-26 mark for the remainder of the campaign.

Richards, the Orioles' skipper since 1955 when he left the White Sox, has seven years of major league managerial experience. His record is 544-523 for .510. Tighe has been with Detroit one year, guiding the Tigers into fourth place in 1957 with a 78-76 (.506).

Next comes Mayor Smith of the Philadelphia Phillies with .487 followed by Harry Craft, the Kansas City skipper since last Aug. 6, with .460, Fred Hutchinson of the St. Louis Cards, .456, and Bill Rigney of the Giants, .441.

Fred Haney has answered some of his critics by leading Milwaukee's Braves into a second place windup in 1956 and to the pennant last season. However, he spent three years with the Pittsburgh Pirates and 2½ with the defunct St. Louis Browns.

Except for the Braves, Haney never had a club in the first division. So his lifetime record stands at .416 with 448 victories and 628 setbacks.

Bob Scheffing of the Chicago Cubs, Bobby Bragan of Cleveland and Cookie Lavagetto of Washington hold down the last three places. Scheffing's percentage is .403, Bragan's .398 and Lavagetto's .381.

WORD 'MILD' DROPPED

Degree Of 'Recession' Depends On Individual

By WILLIAM FERRIS

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (AP)—The dull statistics which record a business recession, but cannot mirror its human drama, rolled out again this week as a subtle change came over the phraseology of economists and government leaders commenting on it.

It was called a recession. The word "mild", which had prefixed previous descriptions, was being dropped. So was the phrase "breathing spell." Obviously, a recession, and its mildness depends upon how it affects you.

It isn't mild to the railroad industry. A steel industry with more than one third of its capacity standing idle isn't suffering from mildness. Nor is the situation mild to workers laid off in auto, aircraft and other industries.

Evidence of a capital goods recession was everywhere, although it remained an interesting point that nondurable goods industries were doing quite well. Department store sales in the latest week rose one per cent above last year.

However, freight carloadings ran 18 per cent under a year ago, steel operations proceeded at around 60 per cent of capacity, auto output was off around 40,000 cars from 1957, and coal production at 8,705,000 tons compared with 10,250,000 tons a year ago.

Heavy construction contracts awarded so far this year run 37 per cent under the same period last year. The three biggest producers again cut the price of copper, which is now at its lowest level in nearly five years.

Various monthly statistics also emphasize the existence of a recession.

Unemployment in December was the highest for that month since 1945 and the highest for any month in three years. Both industrial output, as measured by the Federal Reserve Board, and personal income, reported by the Commerce Department, dropped in December for the fourth straight month.

The prospect is that unemployment will rise further this month. Only scattered layoffs actually attain public notice. Those which did this week included such companies as Chrysler, Elgin Watch, Aluminum Co. of America and Ford.

Against this background President Eisenhower submitted to Congress his budget for the fiscal year starting July 1. It called for record peace time spending with an increase in defense expenditures and a cut-back in some non-defense items.

MEMPHIS CASE

Decision Upsets U.S. Pipeline Executives

By CHARLES HASLET

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP) — Pipeline companies and financial houses are reported greatly concerned over a court decision in a case involving rates for gas supplied to Memphis, Tenn.

Jerome K. Kuykendall, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, has said that if the decision stands, pipeline companies with pending rate cases will have to refund more than 200 million dollars.

The decision by the Circuit Court of Appeals here held that rates could not be increased without consent of the purchaser. The Power Commission has appealed to the Supreme Court.

The case involves a proposed rate increase filed with the commission by United Gas Pipeline Co., which sells natural gas to Texas Gas Transmission Co., which in turn sells to the Memphis municipal utility.

The city asked rejection of the proposed increase, citing a 1956 ruling by the Supreme Court that a contract change could not be made by one of the parties only.

The commission turned down the Memphis motion, holding that the Supreme Court decision did not apply in the Memphis situation in which, the commission said, an agreement allowed for rate changes.

Memphis appealed, and the Court of Appeals held that the commission was in error and that a pipeline could not change rates without consent of the purchasers.

A commission spokesman said that if the court ruling is upheld, pipelines will have to have consent of purchasers before filing rate increase proposals.

Under the procedure followed by the commission for many years, a pipeline seeking an increase files its proposal. If a commission decision is not made within five months after it has suspended the increase pending a hearing, the pipeline may start collecting the increase subject to refund of any part of it the commission may disallow in its decision.

That procedure still is being followed pending action of the Supreme Court, but the commission now is requiring the filing of bonds by applicants for rate increases.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Don Fletcher has been named staff manager in Monroe by the Life and Casualty Insurance Company of Tennessee.

The announcement was made by R. P. McKay, district manager, who explained that Fletcher han been with the company about two years, and his appointment comes as recognition of an outstanding record.

Findings In Hotel Fire To Be Presented

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 18 (AP)—Police said today findings of an investigation into the death of a Mobile, Ala., man in a hotel fire here will be turned over to the district attorney's office Monday.

Capt. William J. Dowie, commander of the police homicide division, refused to comment on the results of a lie detector test given Paul Niles, being held for investigation into the death of William W. Harrington.

The 59-year-old Harrington was pulled from a smoking room at a swanky French Quarter hotel Tuesday. He died at Charity Hospital next day with burns over 75 per cent of his body.

Niles told officers yesterday he had nothing to do with Harrington's death. He admitted he had registered at the hotel with Harrington. He checked out about an hour before a maid spotted the fire.

Dr. Nicholas Chetta, Orleans Parish coroner, said an examination also showed that Harrington had a blood clot on the brain and blood was found in the abdomen indicating he may have been struck in the stomach.

272 Wells Finaled In Texas For Week

AUSTIN, Jan. 18 (AP)—The Railroad Commission today reported 232 oil and 40 gas wells were completed in the past week in Texas.

The year's total of oil well completions increased to 979 and gas wells to 126. There were 155 dry holes.

In unproved territory, three oil and no gas wells were completed. So far this year, 24 oil wildcats and seven gas wells have been drilled. There were 94 dry holes in unproved territory, upping the year's mark to 370.

The commission said the total average calendar day oil allowable today was 3,036,332 barrels daily, an increase of 10,906 barrels over last Saturday's average.

CONSERVATION REPORT

Two Abandonments, 4 Area Completions

Four completions of wells and two abandonments were listed for the Monroe area over the past week by the Department of Conservation.

Completions Concordia Parish

Lake St. John Field — W. W. Heard Jr. & A. O. Gauthier Jr.: W. E. Persons et al No. 1, Sec. 23-9-10E, completed Jan. 7, testing 67 barrels of 40-gravity oil from a 16-64 inch choke from perforations at 4327-4339 feet. Tubing pressure 50 pounds and a gas-oil ratio of 150 to 1. Total depth 5500 feet.

Franklin Parish

Lamar Field — Breuer & Currant Oil Co. et al: I. M. McIntyre et al No. 2, Sec. 32-16-9E, completed Jan. 11, testing 120 barrels of 42.5 gravity oil on an 8-64 inch choke from perforations at 4758-4761 feet. Tubing pressure of 620 pounds and a gas-oil ratio of 717 to 1. Total depth 4955.

Tensas Parish

Killens Ferry Field — Amer. Petr. Inc.: A. Thr. Co. Inc. No. B-2, Sec. 36-14-9E, completed Jan. 9, testing 97 barrels of 41.6 gravity oil from perforations at 6910-6920 feet. Tubing pressure of 200 pounds and a gas-oil ratio of 598-1. Total depth 7042 feet.

Killens Ferry Field — Robt. F. Roberts et al: A. Thr. Co. Inc. No. B-1, Sec. 25-14-10E, completed Jan. 7, testing 147 barrels of 42-gravity oil from perforations at 6972-6980 feet, 3-64 inch choke. Tubing pressure of 1050 pounds and a gas-oil ratio of 600-1. Total depth 7055 feet.

NO COMMENT

By JAMES W. DOUTHAT

WASHINGTON (Special) — Members of the economy forces in Congress pledge themselves to cooperate with President Eisenhower in eliminating non - essential government activities to help pay for increased defense spending.

While advocating whatever amount of spending that is essential fcr national safety, they still think that total government expenditures are too high and should be trimmed.

They do not support all of Eisenhower's spending requests (far from it), yet they are encouraged by several aspects of the administration's fiscal program.

One of the Eisenhower statements they applaud is that "it is necessary that every possible economy be effected in other defense activities to help offset the increased costs of the high priority programs."

Cheered On Others

Eisenhower also was cheered for abandoning or postponing some domestic programs (such as federal aid for school construction), curtailing expansion of others, and recommending the transfer of greater responsibility from the Federal Government to state and local governments or to private individuals or enterprises.

While members of the economy bloc were pleased by these developments, it must be added that they think considerable more progress could and should be made in this direction. They urg a continuance of the grass - roots rebellion against waste and extravagance in government spending that started a year ago after submission to Congress of the administration's $71.8 billion spending budget for the present fiscal year nding next June 30.

The budget presented to Congress for the fiscal year starting next July 1 — calls for net expenditures of $73.9 billion, with defense spending up $4 billion over the current year, and a reduction in some other areas.

This increase in defense spending requires a real campaign for savings, in the opinion of members of the congressional economy bloc. And they explain that support from back home is essential if it is to succeed.

Needs Support

They contend Eisenhower needs all the support he can get for his economy moves since a determined effort is being made by some Congressmen to convince the public that the president is a penny-pinching miser in defense spending at a time when (they claim) untold billions of additional spending is required.

The same campaign is being waged with respect to non-defense activities by those whose only solution for almost any type of problem is higher and higher government spending, regardless of need.

This effort is certain to be intensified as the November Congressional elections approach. Therefore, it is contended by the economy group, Eisenhower must have strong support immediately and constantly if he is to resist successfully the campaign for higher spending.

Other aspects of the administration's fiscal program which provide varied degrees of encouragement to conservatives in Congress include:

1. Eisenhower's confidence that expansion of the nation's economy will soon be resumed and that a $500 million budget surplus will result next year.

2. Eisenhower's pledge for "reduction of taxes when possible."

3. Eisenhower's request for a temporary $5 billion increase in the $275 billion debt ceiling — rather than a permanent increase.

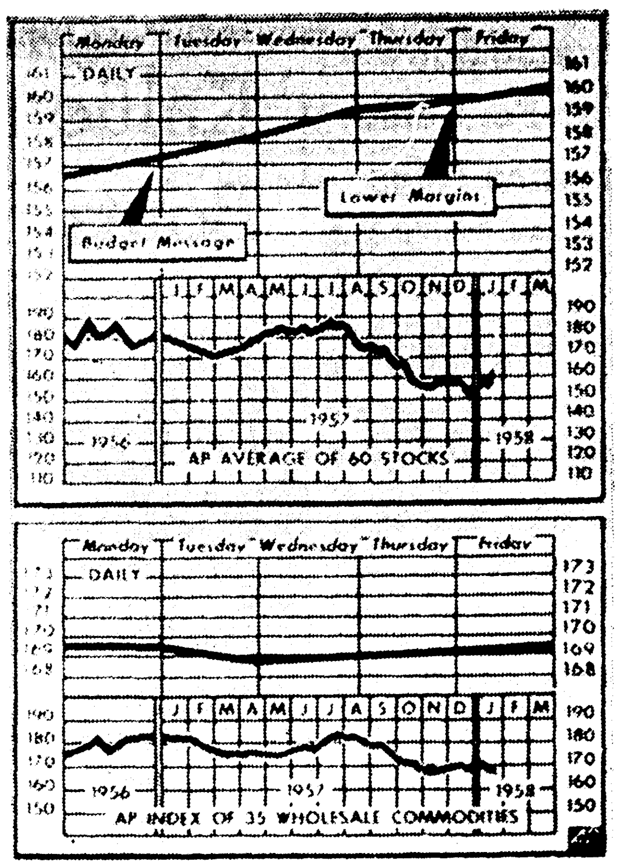
Electronics In Banking At Central

The age of electronics in banking is coming to the Twin Cities ... in its first move to Louisiana. Officials of Central Savings Bank and Trust Company were notified yesterday that the four electronic accounting machines which they ordered several months ago were nearing completion and would be shipped from Dayton, Ohio within three weeks.

According to Charles M. Womack, vice president in charge of operations at Central Bank, this new bookkeeping, which reads and calculates a customer's bank statement with electric "fingers," will increase the operating efficiency of a bank's checking department and will provide quicker and more satisfactory nervice to the customer.

"There is no doubt that this electronic equipment, known as post-tronics, will streamline our operation," Womack said. "Not only will they produce the customer's records with an unprecedented degree of speed and efficiency, but they will also bring satisfaction to our employees by removing drudgery from a day's work." "Even though the equipment will operate with the speed of electronics, the bank will preserve all the time-tested advantages of standard printed records," Womack said.

It was announced that the equipment will be on demonstration in the Central Bank's main office lobby within the next few weeks.



STOCK AVERAGE UP—The Associated Pres average of 60 stocks pushed ahead substantially to 160.3 from 156.7 a week ago. Led by lower copper prices in the non-ferrous component, the commodity index declined for the second week in a row, closing at 169.3 from 169.5 in the preceding period. (AP Wirephoto)

DESPITE RECESSION

Stocks Plug Ahead In Good Price Rise

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (AP)—Stocks plugged ahead this week for a good gain despite a continuation of drab economic news.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up $3.60 to $160.30 in a continuation of its irregular rise since the close of 1957.

The badly-abused railroad section was mainly responsible for this advance. The plight of the rails was aired this week at hearings in Washington, but instead of depressing their shares this may have been of considerable help to them.

Apparently there is considerable hope in investment circles that some aid will be forthcoming for the industry.

The big news of the week for the market was the lowering of margin requirements for stock purchases. After the close Wednesday, the Federal Reserve Board cut margin requirements to 50 per cent from 70 per cent. It was the first cut since 1949.

Increasing the amount of stock that may be bought on credit was a considerable boon to the trading element. But for the rest of the stock-buying public it was regarded as more of a psychological boost.

The move led to excitement on Wall Street and a 3,950,000-share day Thursday. Broad advances were made early in the session, but these melted away to a great extent as profit-taking took over.

President Eisenhower's budget message, calling for record peace-time spending, emphasis on missiles and an increase in the debt ceiling was credited for moderate advances Monday and Tuesday.

The President's statement Wednesday that he would prefer a reasonable amount of deficit spending rather than a tax increase also gave the market a bit of a lift. Oils were benefitted that day by favorable statistics from their industry. And after the close came the news about lower margins.

On Friday the market was declining sluggishly until the rails came to life late in the session.

Fundamental economic news remained depressing, however. Industrial production was reported ts declining in December for the fourth straight month. Auto production was scheduled lower. Unemployment in mid-December was announced as the highest in three years.

But all signs from Washington indicated the administration was determined to take measures to end the recession.

The five most active issues this week were. American Telephone, up 1¾ at 170¾; Standard Oil (New Jersey), up ⅝ at 49⅞; General Motors, up ½ at 35⅝; Bethlehem Steel, up 1¾ at 38½, and Royal Dutch, up ¾ at 38¾.

Allowable Same

BATON ROUGE, Jan. 17 (AP)—A State Conservation Department spokesman said today Louisiana'n February daily oil production allowables will remain at about the January level of 799,657 barrels.

Any increase, he said, will be to allow for new production.

The allowables will be announced officially next Wednesday.

New Field Located In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 18 (AP)—A new oil field in Lincoln County appeared assured as Shell Oil Co.'s wildcat Lemann No. 1 tested 3,000 feet of 37 gravity oil in the Tuscaloosa formation this week.

Oil men set production casing to 10,790 feet.

The well is two miles south of the Sweetwater oil field which is productive in the Tuscaloosa formation.

Operators said it flowed 125 barrels of oil daily from a sand at 5,419-22 feet.

Four oilers were completed in known fields this week. They were:

At Martinville in Simpson County, Central Oil and Southern said their John D. Smith No. 1 flowed 312 barrels of oil daily from a sand at 12,425-45 feet.

Gulf Oil Corp's Sullivan No. 2 flowed 301 barrels of 41 gravity oil from a sand at 11,794-868 feet.

In Wayne County's Diamond field, Larco Drilling and Durbin Bond completed two dual ventures: The Gray Estate No. 2 which flowed 170 barrels of oil from a sand at 9,355-67 feet and 116 barrels from a sand at 9,166-85 feet; and the Lee Beard Estate No. 1 which flowed 112 barrels from a sand at 9,234-50 feet.

Other oil activity this week:

Carter Oil Co. completed the Clarke County wildcat Carmichael-Thompson No. 1 and said it flowed 50 barrels of 17 gravity oil daily from a Eutaw sand at 3,747-55 feet.

The well also flowed 160 barrels of salt water with the oil.

The Clarke County discovery has been named the Junction City field.

Shell Oil Co. was testing its Jarrett No. 1 wildcat in Clay County. Operators have perforated a zone at 8,648-50 feet and set production casing to 8,769 feet.

In Monroe County, Shell was testing its Dalrymple No. 1 after perforating casing at 3,659-64 feet.

In Jasper County's Soso field, Gulf Oil Corp. was below 15,600 feet in the Soso unit tract 28-7 No. 1. The venture has logged Cotton Valley formation oil sand at 15,220-53 feet.

Grains Record Little Change

CHICAGO, Jan. 18 (AP)—Except for two fairly strong pushes, grain futures traded in a sticky market this week and all closed within two cents of where they began.

At the close of the week, wheat was ⅛ lower to ⅞ higher than a week ago, corn ⅞-1½ lower, oats ⅝ lower to ⅛ higher, rye 1½ lower to ¾ higher, soybeans 1⅜ lower to 1⅛ higher, and lard 15 to 40 cents a hundred pounds lower.

MESSAGE TO SOLONS

Ike's Oil, Gas Plans May Come In Report Monday

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower's economic report to Congress Monday is expected to reveal whether he has any major legislative plans affecting oil and natural gas.

Industry leaders are anxious to hear, for example, what he says about taxes, foreign oil imports, and the pending bill to ease federal controls on natural gas prices. They also hope he will justify his claim that the business slump is temporary.

There was little to worry the industry in the President's State of the Union and budget messages. In the budget message he said the treasury was studying tax loopholes but he said nothing about asking that the 27 1-2 per cent depletion allowance be reduced.

Heavy Civilian Users

He also proposed heavy civilian user taxes on aviation gasoline and jet plane fuel but neither would hurt the industry appreciably. And he was silent on the legal dispute over federal versus state ownership of Gulf Coast tidelands—a dispute in which he frankly sympathizes with the states.

His economic report could bring new expressions on these subjects.

Among those awaiting the report is the Independent Petroleum Association of America. It has called its executive committee and vice presidents to meet here Monday to review the economic message and canvass the legislative outlook.

General Counsel Russell B. Brown said in advance of the session that producers are deeply concerned over government and congressional policy on imports and the gas bill. He also cited depressed oil demand which has not been helped by the business slowdown.

On House Cdnelaar

Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas has put the gas bill on the House calendar for passage next month. He said at the last session that he would not call it up until he was certain he had the necessary votes.

Mr. Eisenhower is for the bill, as is chairman Jerome K. Kuykendall of the Federal Power Commission. But House passage doesn't mean it will breeze through the Senate. Consumer interests have the backing of a powerful Senate bloc which claims it would cost householders a billion dollars a year.

Kuykendall again will come out for passage in his annual report to Congress next month. The report also will contain other FPC legislative recommendations endorsed by the President.

The treasury has been studying the depletion allowance for years. Senate and House members have tried repeatedly to cut it, to no avail. Mr. Eisenhower has never said he thought it was unfair even though President Truman called it a "billion dollar loophole."

Cotton Future Prices Drop During Week

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (AP)—Cotton declined $1.95 to $2.70 a bale this week, with much of the selling attributed to Washington developments on proposed farm legislation.

The market declined rather sharply early in the week on word that the administration planned to ask Congress for new legislation which would allow lower price supports and an increase in plantings. As prices worked downward, the uncovering of stop-loss orders stepped up the tempo of the decline. Offerings were also furnished through hedge selling against purchases of Commodity Credit Corp. cotton.

The selloff was cushioned by short covering and trade buying, and toward the close of the week some demand came into the market from those who appeared convinced that Congress would vigorously oppose any changes in the price support program, at least at this time.

Domestic consumption of all cotton for last month proved somewhat smaller than expected. The Census Bureau put it at 572,000 bales vs. 656,000 in November and 631,000 in December last season. So far this season mills have used 3,374,000 bales vs. 3,739,000 to approximately the same time last season.

The CCC announced after the close of business Friday it had sold about 383,000 bales of cotton for export against bids opened Jan. 14, bringing total sales under the present export program to 4,812,000 bales. The average price at which the cotton was sold, basis middling inch at average location, was 28.54 cents per pound, up 24 points from the average price at the preceding sale.

HARRIS-O'HARA BILL

Firms Say Aproval Of Act Imperative

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Jan. 18 (AP)—Independent oil operators backing the Harris-O'Hara Natural Gas Bill says passage this year is imperative.

There was some disappointment when President Eisenhower failed this week to endorse the bill in his budget message. Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark) said he has information that the President hopes the House will act on the measure very soon.

Eisenhower a year ago included in his budget message an endorsement of the bill that would free gas producers from utility-type regulation by the Federal Power Commission.

The Harris-O'Hara bill squeezed by the House Interstate Commerce Committee, 15-13. Approval came late in the first session of Congress and Speaker Sam Rayburn decided to postpone House action until the second session that started last week. Rayburn hopes for action by mid-February.

Eisenhower in 1956 vetoed a bill that had much stronger support from the oil and gas industry than does the current measure, a compromise between producers and distributors. Another bill the producers backed strongly was vetoed by former President Truman in 1948.

Russell Brown, general counsel for the Independent Petroleum Assn. of America (IPAA), said this week a new ruling by the Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington and recent rulings by the Power Commission have pointed up dangers to the future supply of natural gas.

The IPAA Executive Committee meets in Washington Monday.

"It is imperative that this measure be approved if the petroleum industry is to continue to progress in keeping with the national economy," Brown said.

Brown said the Power Commission attempted to hamstring the domestic producer with unnecessary and burdensome reporting requirements but later modified its ruling. He said the Memphis case ruling by the appeals court requires a pipeline to seek approval of all its customers before it can plead for a rate increase.

TO FIX CONTRACT PLANS

Auto Workers Slate Meeting

By DWIGHT PITKIN

DETROIT, Jan. 18 (AP)—A special three-day convention of the United Auto Workers, opening in Detroit Wednesday, will hammer out demands to be made on the auto manufacturers in new contract talks this spring.

In his keynote speech, UAW President Walter P. Reuther will ask the 3,000 delegates to ratify a revolutionary new bargaining program for the auto industry. It calls for the Big Three car makers to share profits with workers and customers.

The UAW calls it a "crash" convention to get ready for negotiations on new contracts scheduled to start around April 1. The delegates will be asked to levy special assessments on the union's 1,185,000 dues-paying members to double a strike fund that now has an estimated 24 million dollars. There has been some talk of upping assessments to provide a 100-million-dollar strike fund but union officials say they don't have this in mind at present.

Reuther set the stage for the convention by firing off a salvo Monday that took by surprise not only rank and file union membership but also leaders of the auto industry. He demanded a big cut in the profits pie for 800,000 auto workers. He proposed rebates out of profits for customers.

Reflecting a new strategy in dealing with Reuther, top executives of four of the five auto companies leaped into a red-hot battle of words almost immediately. They rejected the proposal as "unrealistic, foreign to the concept of the American free enterprise system, and inflationary."

Reuther's abandonment of the shorter work week as the top goal in 1958 bargaining stirred some dissension in his own ranks. A minority faction in the convention is expected to insist on restoration of the shorter work week as the best way to solve unemployment in their industry.

Layoffs attributed to the impact of automation and lagging sales have resulted in a drop of more than 140,000 in dues-paying members in the last two years. The union claims a membership of 1½ million, but this includes pensioners and unemployed members exempt from dues payments.

A spirited fight is expected to develop on the convention floor over abandonment of the shorter work week. But Reuther is believed to have sufficient strength to overcome any opposition to hi program.

The quick reaction of the auto companies to Reuther's plan dramatized a change in their public relations policy that first became apparent last year. They have abandoned a "no comment" pose, characteristic of previous struggles with the UAW. No longer are they having "company spokesmen" brush off what they term Reuther's "propaganda broadsides."

George Romney, president of American Motors Corp., one of the two remaining small firs in the automotive field, also got into the fray and denounced the proposal as a "subterfuge."

WORD 'MILD' DROPPED

Degree Of 'Recession' Depends On Individual

By WILLIAM FERRIS

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (AP)—The dull statistics which record a business recession, but cannot mirror its human drama, rolled out again this week as a subtle change came over the phraseology of economists and government leaders commenting on it.

It was called a recession. The word " mild", which had prefixed previous descriptions, was being dropped. So was the phrase "breathing spell." Obviously, a recession, and its mildness depends upon how it affects you.

It isn't mild to the railroad industry. A steel industry with more than one third of its capacity standing idle isn't suffering from mildness. Nor is the situation mild to workers laid off in auto, aircraft and other industries.

Evidence of a capital goods recession was everywhere, although it remained an interesting point that nondurable goods industries were doing quite well. Department store sales in the latest week rose one per cent above last year.

However, freight carloadings ran 16 per cent under a year ago, steel operations proceeded at around 60 per cent of capacity, auto output was off around 40,000 cars from 1957, and coal production at 8,705,000 tons compared with 10,250,000 tons a year ago.

Heavy construction contracts awarded so far this year run 37 per cent under the same period last year. The three biggest producers again cut the price of copper, which is now at its lowest level in nearly five years.

Various monthly statistics also emphasize the existence of a recession.

Unemployment in December was the highest for that month since 1945 and the highest for any month in three years. Both industrial output, as measured by the Federal Reserve Board, and personal income, reported by the Commerce Department, dropped in December for the fourth straight month.

The prospect is that unemployment will rise further this month. Only scattered layoffs actually attain public notice. Those which did this week included such companies as Chrysler, Elgin Watch, Aluminum Co. of America and Ford.

Against this background President Eisenhower submitted to Congress his budget for the fiscal year starting July 1. It called for record peace time spending with an increase in defense expenditures and a cut-back in some non-defense items.

MEMPHIS CASE

Decision Upsets U.S. Pipeline Executives

By CHARLES HASLET

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP) — Pipeline companies and financial houses are reported greatly concerned over a court decision in a case involving rates for gas supplied to Memphis, Tenn.

Jerome K. Kuyendall, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, has said that if the decision stands, pipeline companies with pending rate cases will have to refund more than 200 million dollars.

The decision by the Circuit Court of Appeals here held that rates could not be increased without consent of the purchaser. The Power Commission has appealed to the Supreme Court.

The case involves a proposed rate increase filed with the commission by United Gas Pipeline Co., which sells natural gas to Texas Gas Transmission Co., which in turn sells to the Memphis municipal utility.

The city asked rejection of the proposed increase, citing a 1956 ruling by the Supreme Court that a contract change could not be made by one of the parties only.

The commission turned down the Memphis motion, holding that the Supreme Court decision did not apply in the Memphis situation in which, the commission said, an agreement allowed for rate changes.

Memphis appealed, and the Court of Appeals held that the commission was in error and that a pipeline could not change rates without consent of the purchasers.

A commission spokesman said that if the court ruling is upheld, pipelines will have to have consent of purchasers before filing rate increase proposals.

Under the procedure followed by the commission for many years, a pipeline seeking an increase files its proposal. If a commission decision is not made within five months after it has suspended the increase pending a hearing, the pipeline may start collecting the increase subject to refund of any part of it the commission may disallow in its decision.

That procedure still is being followed pending action of the Supreme Court, but the commission now is requiring the filing of bonds by applicants for rate increases.

The announcement was made by R. P. McKay, district manager, who explained that Fletcher han been with the company about two years, and his appointment comes as recognition of an outstanding record.

Findings In Hotel Fire To Be Presented

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 18 (AP)—Police said today findings of an investigation into the death of a Mobile, Ala., man in a hotel fire here will be turned over to the district attorney's office Monday.

Capt. William J. Dowie, commander of the police homicide division, refused to comment on the results of a lie detector test given Paul Niles, being held for investigation into the death of William W. Harrington.

The 59-year-old Harrington was pulled from a smoking room at a swanky French Quarter hotel Tuesday. He died at Charity Hospital next day with burns over 75 per cent of his body.

Niles told officers yesterday he had nothing to do with Harrington's death. He admitted he had registered at the hotel with Harrington. He checked out about an hour before a maid spotted the fire.

Dr. Nicholas Chetta, Orleans Parish coroner, said an examination also showed that Harrington had a blood clot on the brain and blood was found in the abdomen, indicating he may have been struck in the stomach.

272 Wells Finaled In Texas For Week

AUSTIN, Jan. 18 (AP)—The Railroad Commission today reported 232 oil and 40 gas wells were completed in the past week in Texas.

The year's total of oil well completions increased to 979 and gas wells to 126. There were 155 dry holes.

In unproved territory, three oil and no gas wells were completed. So far this year, 24 oil wildcats and seven gas wells have been drilled. There were 94 dry holes in unproved territory, upping the year's mark to 370.

The commission said the total average calendar day oil allowable today was 3,036,332 barrels daily, an increase of 10,906 barrels over last Saturday's average.

CONSERVATION REPORT

Two Abandonments, 4 Area Completions

Four completions of wells and two abandonments were listed for the Monroe area over the past week by the Department of Conservation.

Completions Concordia Parish

Lake St. John Field — W. W. Heard Jr. & A. O. Gauthier Jr.: W. E. NO COMMENT

By JAMES W. DOUTHAT

WASHINGTON (Special) — Members of the economy forces in Congress pledge themselves to cooperate with President Eisenhower in eliminating non - essential government activities to help pay for increased defense spending.

While advocating whatever amount of spending that is essential for national safety, they still think that total government expenditures are too high and should be trimmed.

They do not support all of Eisenhower's spending requests (far from it), yet they are encouraged by several aspects of the administration's fiscal program.

One of the Eisenhower statements they applaud is that "it is necessary that every possible economy be effected in other defense activities to help offset the increased costs of the high priority programs."

Cheered On Others

Eisenhower also was cheered for abandoning or postponing some domestic programs (such as federal aid for school construction), curtailing expansion of others, and recommending the transfer of greater responsibility from the Federal Government to state and local governments or to private individuals or enterprises.

While members of the economy bloc were pleased by these developments, it must be added that they think considerable more progress could and should be made in this direction. They urg a continuance of the grass - roots rebellion against waste and extravagance in government spending that started a year ago after submission to Congress of the administration's $71.8 billion spending budget for the present fiscal year nding next June 30.

The budget presented to Congress for the fiscal year starting next July 1 — calls for net expenditures of $73.9 billion, with defense spending up $4 billion over the current year, and a reduction in some other areas.

This increase in defense spending requires a real campaign for savings, in the opinion of members of the congressional economy bloc. And they explain that support from back home is essential if it is to succeed.

Needs Support

They contend Eisenhower needs all the support he can get for his economy moves since a determined effort is being made by some Congressmen to convince the public that the president is a penny-pinching miser in defense spending at a time when (they claim) untold billions of additional spending is required.

The same campaign is being waged with respect to non-defense activities by those whose only solution for almost any type of problem is higher and higher government spending, regardless of need.

This effort is certain to be intensified as the November Congressional elections approach. Therefore, it is contended by the economy group, Eisenhower must have strong support immediately and constantly if he is to resist successfully the campaign for higher spending.

Other aspects of the administration's fiscal program which provide varied degrees of encouragement to conservatives in Congress include:

1. Eisenhower's confidence that expansion of the nation's economy will soon be resumed and that a $500 million budget surplus will result next year.
2. Eisenhower's pledge for "reduction of taxes when possible."
3. Eisenhower's request for a temporary $5 billion increase in the $275 billion debt ceiling — rather than a permanent increase.

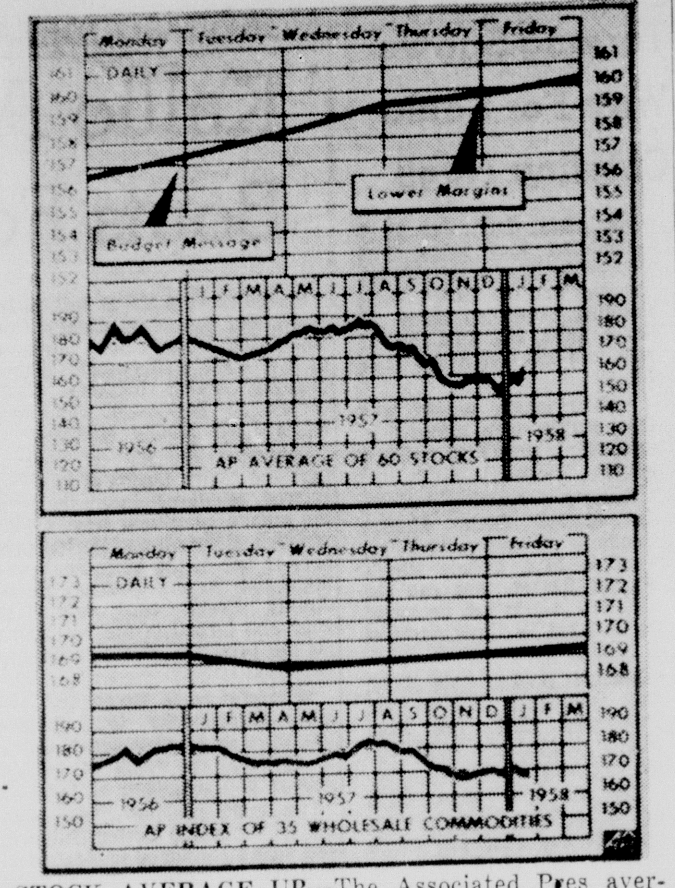
Electronics In Banking At Central

The age of electronics in banking is coming to the Twin Cities ... in its first move to Louisiana. Officials of Central Savings Bank and Trust Company were notified yesterday that the four electronic accounting machines which they ordered several months ago were nearing completion and would be shipped from Dayton, Ohio within three weeks.

According to Charles M. Womack, vice president in charge of operations at Central Bank, this new bookkeeping, which reads and calculates a customer's bank statement with electric "fingers," will increase the operating efficiency of a bank's checking department and will provide quicker and more satisfactory nervice to the customer.

"There is no doubt that this electronic equipment, known as post-tronics, will streamline our operation," Womack said. "Not only will they produce the customer's records with an unprecedented degree of speed and efficiency, but they will also bring satisfaction to our employees by removing drudgery from a day's work." "Even though the equipment will operate with the speed of electronics, the bank will preserve all the time-tested advantages of standard printed records," Womack said.

It was announced that the equipment will be on demonstration in the Central Bank's main office lobby within the next few weeks.



STOCK AVERAGE UP—The Associated Pres average of 60 stocks pushed ahead substantially to 160.3 from 156.7 a week ago. Led by lower copper prices in the non-ferrous component, the commodity index declined for the second week in a row, closing at 169.3 from 169.5 in the preceding period. (AP Wirephoto)

DESPITE RECESSION

Stocks Plug Ahead In Good Price Rise

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (AP)—Stocks plugged ahead this week for a good gain despite a continuation of drab economic news.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up $3.60 to $160.30 in a continuation of its irregular rise since the close of 1957.

The badly-abused railroad section was mainly responsible for this advance. The plight of the rails was aired this week at hearings in Washington, but instead of depressing their shares this may have been of considerable help to them.

Apparently there is considerable hope in investment circles that some aid will be forthcoming for the industry.

The big news of the week for the market was the lowering of margin requirements for stock purchases. After the close Wednesday, the Federal Reserve Board cut margin requirements to 50 per cent from 70 per cent. It was the first cut since 1949.

Increasing the amount of stock that may be bought on credit was a considerable boon to the trading element. But for the rest of the stock-buying public it was regarded as more of a psychological boost.

The move led to excitement on Wall Street and a 3,950,000-share day Thursday. Broad advances were made early in the session, but these melted away to a great extent as profit-taking took over.

President Eisenhower's budget message, calling for record peacetime spending, emphasis on missiles and an increase in the debt ceiling was credited for moderate advances Monday and Tuesday.

The President's statement Wednesday that he would prefer a reasonable amount of deficit spending rather than a tax increase also gave the market a bit of a lift. Oils were benefitted that day by favorable statistics from their industry. And after the close came the news about lower margins.

On Friday the market was declining sluggishly until the rails came to life late in the session.

Fundamental economic news remained depressing, however. Industrial production was reported ts declining in December for the fourth straight month. Auto production was scheduled lower. Unemployment in mid-December was announced as the highest in three years.

But all signs from Washington indicated the administration was determined to take measures to end the recession.

The five most active issues this week were, American Telephone, up 1¾ at 170¾; Standard Oil (New Jersey), up ⅝ at 49⅞; General Motors, up ½ at 35 ⅝; Bethlehem Steel, up 1¾ at 38½, and Royal Dutch, up ¾ at 38¾.

Allowable Same

BATON ROUGE, Jan. 17 (AP)—A State Conservation Department spokesman said today Louisiana'n February daily oil production allowables will remain at about the January level of 799,657 barrels.

Any increase, he said, will be to allow for new production.

The allowables will be announced officially next Wednesday.

New Field Located In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. Jan. 18 (AP)—A new oil field in Lincoln County appeared assured as Shell Oil Co.'s wildcat Lemann No. 1 tested 3,000 feet of 37 gravity oil in the Tuscaloosa formation this week.

Oil men set production casing to 10,790 feet.

The well is two miles south of the Sweetwater oil field which is productive in the Tuscaloosa formation.

Operators said it flowed 125 barrels of oil daily from a sand at 5,419-22 feet.

Four oilers were completed in known fields this week. They were:

At Martinville in Simpson County, Central Oil and Southern said their John D. Smith No. 1 flowed 312 barrels of oil daily from a sand at 12,425-45 feet.

Gulf Oil Corp's Sullivan No. 2 flowed 301 barrels of 41 gravity oil from a sand at 11,794-868 feet.

In Wayne County's Diamond field, Larco Drilling and Durbin Bond completed two dual ventures: The Gray Estate No. 2 which flowed 170 barrels of oil from a sand at 9,355-67 feet and 116 barrels from a sand at 9,166-85 feet; and the Lee Beard Estate No. 1 which flowed 112 barrels from a sand at 9,234-50 feet.

Other oil activity this week:

Carter Oil Co. completed the Clarke County wildcat Carmichael-Thompson No. 1 and said it flowed 50 barrels of 17 gravity oil daily from a Eutaw sand at 3,747-55 feet.

The well also flowed 160 barrels of salt water with the oil.

The Clarke County discovery has been named the Junction City field.

Shell Oil Co. was testing its Jarrett No. 1 wildcat in Clay County. Operators have perforated a zone at 8,648-50 feet and set production casing to 8,769 feet.

In Monroe County, Shell was testing its Dalrymple No. 1 after perforating casing at 3,659-64 feet.

In Jasper County's Soso field, Gulf Oil Corp. was below 15,600 feet in the Soso unit tract 28-7 No. 1. The venture has logged Cotton Valley formation oil sand at 15,220-53 feet.

Grains Record Little Change

CHICAGO, Jan. 18 (AP)—Except for two fairly strong pushes, grain futures traded in a sticky market this week and all closed within two cents of where they began.

At the close of the week, wheat was g lower to ⅞ higher than a week ago, corn ⅞-1½ lower, oats ⅝ lower to ⅛ higher, rye 1½ lower to ¾ higher, soybeans 1⅜ lower to 1⅛ higher, and lard 15 to 40 cents a hundred pounds lower.

MESSAGE TO SOLONS

Ike's Oil, Gas Plans May Come In Report Monday

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower's economic report to Congress Monday is expected to reveal whether he has any major legislative plans affecting oil and natural gas.

Industry leaders are anxious to hear, for example, what he says about taxes, foreign oil imports, and the pending bill to ease federal controls on natural gas prices. They also hope he will justify his claim that the business slump is temporary.

There was little to worry the industry in the President's State of the Union and budget messages. In the budget message he said the treasury was studying tax loopholes but he said nothing about asking that the 27 1-2 per cent depletion allowance be reduced.

Heavy Civilian Users

He also proposed heavy civilian user taxes on aviation gasoline and jet plane fuel but neither would hurt the industry appreciably. And he was silent on the legal dispute over federal versus state ownership of Gulf Coast tidelands—a dispute in which he frankly sympathizes with the states.

His economic report could bring new expressions on these subjects.

Among those awaiting the report is the Independent Petroleum Association of America. It has called its executive committee and vice presidents to meet here Monday to review the economic message and canvass the legislative outlook.

General Counsel Russell B. Brown said in advance of the session that producers are deeply concerned over government and congressional policy on imports and the gas bill. He also cited depressed oil demand which has not been helped by the business slowdown.

On House Cdnelaar

Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas has put the gas bill on the House calendar for passage next month. He said at the last session that he would not call it up until he was certain he had the necessary votes.

Mr. Eisenhower is for the bill, as is chairman Jerome K. Kuykendall of the Federal Power Commission. But House passage doesn't mean it will breeze through the Senate. Consumer interests have the backing of a powerful Senate bloc which claims it would cost householders a billion dollars a year.

Kuykendall again will come out for passage in his annual report to Congress next month. The report also will contain other FPC legislative recommendations endorsed by the President.

The treasury has been studying the depletion allowance for years. Senate and House members have tried repeatedly to cut it, to no avail. Mr. Eisenhower has never said he thought it was unfair even though President Truman called it a "billion dollar loophole."

Cotton Future Prices Drop During Week

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (AP)—Cotton declined $1.95 to $2.70 a bale this week, with much of the selling attributed to Washington developments on proposed farm legislation.

The market declined rather sharply early in the week on word that the administration planned to ask Congress for new legislation which would allow lower price supports and an increase in plantings. As prices worked downward, the uncovering of stop-loss orders stepped up the tempo of the decline. Offerings were also furnished through hedge selling against purchases of Commodity Credit Corp. cotton.

The selloff was cushioned by short covering and trade buying, and toward the close of the week some demand came into the market from those who appeared convinced that Congress would vigorously oppose any changes in the price support program, at least at this time.

Domestic consumption of all cotton for last month proved somewhat smaller than expected. The Census Bureau put it at 572,000 bales vs. 656,000 in November and 631,000 in December last season. So far this season mills have used 3,374,000 bales vs. 3,739,000 to approximately the same time last season.

The CCC announced after the close of business Friday it had sold about 383,000 bales of cotton for export against bids opened Jan. 14, bringing total sales under the present export program to 4,812,000 bales. The average price at which the cotton was sold, basis middling inch at average location, was 28.54 cents per pound, up 24 points from the average price at the preceding sale.

HARRIS-O'HARA BILL

Firms Say Aproval Of Act Imperative

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Jan. 18 (AP)—Independent oil operators backing the Harris-O'Hara Natural Gas Bill says passage this year is imperative.

There was some disappointment when President Eisenhower failed this week to endorse the bill in his budget message. Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark) said he has information that the President hopes the House will act on the measure very soon.

Eisenhower a year ago included in his budget message an endorsement of the bill that would free gas producers from utility-type regulation by the Federal Power Commission.

The Harris-O'Hara bill squeezed by the House Interstate Commerce Committee, 15-13. Approval came late in the first session of Congress and Speaker Sam Rayburn decided to postpone House action until the second session that started last week. Rayburn hopes for action by mid-February.

Eisenhower in 1956 vetoed a bill that had much stronger support from the oil and gas industry than does the current measure, a compromise between producers and distributors. Another bill the producers backed strongly was vetoed by former President Truman in 1948.

Russell Brown, general counsel for the Independent Petroleum Assn. of America (IPAA), said this week a new ruling by the Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington and recent rulings by the Power Commission have pointed up dangers to the future supply of natural gas.

The IPAA Executive Committee meets in Washington Monday.

"It is imperative that this measure be approved if the petroleum industry is to continue to progress in keeping with the national economy," Brown said.

Brown said the Power Commission attempted to hamstring the domestic producer with unnecessary and burdensome reporting requirements but later modified its ruling. He said the Memphis case ruling by the appeals court requires a pipeline to seek approval of all its customers before it can plead for a rate increase.

TO FIX CONTRACT PLANS

Auto Workers Slate Meeting

By DWIGHT PITKIN

DETROIT, Jan. 18 (AP)—A special three-day convention of the United Auto Workers, opening in Detroit Wednesday, will hammer out demands to be made on the auto manufacturers in new contract talks this spring.

In his keynote speech, UAW President Walter P. Reuther will ask the 3,000 delegates to ratify a revolutionary new bargaining program for the auto industry. It calls for the Big Three car makers to share profits with workers and customers.

The UAW calls it a "crash" convention to get ready for negotiations on new contracts scheduled to start around April 1. The delegates will be asked to levy special assessments on the union's 1,185,000 dues-paying members to double a strike fund that now has an estimated 24 million dollars. There has been some talk of upping assessments to provide a 100-million-dollar strike fund but union officials say they don't have this in mind at present.

Reuther set the stage for the convention by firing off a salvo Monday that took by surprise not only rank and file union membership but also leaders of the auto industry. He demanded a big cut in the profits pie for 800,000 auto workers. He proposed rebates out of profits for customers.

Reflecting a new strategy in dealing with Reuther, top executives of four of the five auto companies leaped into a red-hot battle of words almost immediately. They rejected the proposal as "unrealistic, foreign to the concept of the American free enterprise system, and inflationary."

Reuther's abandonment of the shorter work week as the top goal in 1958 bargaining stirred some dissension in his own ranks. A minority faction in the convention is expected to insist on restoration of the shorter work week as the best way to solve unemployment in their industry.

Layoffs attributed to the impact of automation and lagging sales have resulted in a drop of more than 140,000 in dues-paying members in the last two years. The union claims a membership of 1½ million, but this includes pensioners and unemployed members exempt from dues payments.

A spirited fight is expected to develop on the convention floor over abandonment of the shorter work week. But Reuther is believed to have sufficient strength to overcome any opposition to his program.

The quick reaction of the auto companies to Reuther's plan dramatized a change in their public relations policy that first became apparent last year. They have abandoned a "no comment" pose, characteristic of previous struggles with the UAW. No longer are they having "company spokesmen" brush off what they term Reuther's "propaganda broadsides."

George Romney, president of American Motors Corp., one of the two remaining small firs in the automotive field, also got into the fray and denounced the proposal as a "subterfuge."

Rev. RUSSELL STELLWAGON

R. Stellwagon To Tell About Work In Japan

Rev. Russell Stellwagon, returned missionary from Japan, will be the guest speaker at the Southside Methodist Church Sunday night, January 19, at 7:00 p. m. His sermon topic will be "Japan Needs Jesus."

Rev. Stellwagon is a local boy, having been reared in West Monroe by his grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. Roe Henry. He became burdened with the need of the gospel in Japan while in service during World War II. He returned to the states and received his training at Bob Jones University and Northwestern College in Minneapolis. He returned to Japan under the Evangelical Alliance Mission in 1951, and spent 5½ years in the missionary work in Japan. While on furlough, Rev. Stellwagon has spoken in several Bible camps and about 50 churches in five states in an effort to share his burden for Japan with the Christians of America.

Rev. Stellwagon is a member of the Ridge Ave. Baptist Church of West Monroe, and resides with his grandmother and aunt at 301 Ludwig in West Monroe.

Rev. HAROLD BORCHERT

Jap Mission Laborer Will Speak Sunday

The Rev. Harold Borchert, United States Presbyterian missionary assigned to Kochi, Japan in 1954 when he and his wife were made responsible with three other mission workers to bring the gospel to 900,000 people. Now back on his first furlough in this country, he will speak to three local groups here today. At 9:45 a.m. he will speak in the Monroe First Presbyterian church; at Memorial Presbyterian Church in West Monroe at 11 a.m. and in Covenant Presbyterian Church, Monroe to young adults and others at a dinner meeting at 6 p.m. Then at 7:30 p.m., he will preach at the Sunday night meeting.

Mr. Borchert reports that the Presbyterian Mission Station in Kochi now has a force of eight, and several Japanese pastors to help them. But he says that more are still needed desperately to meet the challenge. The fact that his furlough year means some Bible classes will stop, children will have Sunday school only once or twice a month, and some groups will gather only seven or eight times a year, greatly beclouds his happiness at having the opportunities of this year's furlough. The other missionaries have taken over as many of his duties as possible, but already had more than they could handle before the Borcherts left.

Mr. Borchert, a native of Holland, Mich., received his training at Wofford College, Louisiana College, and Columbia Theological Seminary. He is married to the former Lois Aleen Wilson of Pineville and Alexandria, La.

The Borcherts have three children, Sue, six years, Lois, three, and Sarah, one.

They expect to go back to Japan in the summer of 1958.

Before going to the mission field, Mr. Borchert served five years in the U. S. Army, was for three and a half years an optician, and served as supply pastor of Palmer Presbyterian Church in Alexandria, La., for two years. During the time he was in Seminary, he served for three years as pastor of the Ingleside Presbyterian Church in Scottdale,Ga. He is a member of the Presbytery of Louisiana.

Dr. T. M. Lowry Jr. To Speak Here

Southwestern College, located in Memphis, will hold its annual southwestern conference at the First Presbyterian Church, Wednesday evening, January 22. Dr. R. P. Richardson, vice - president of Southwestern, will be one of the speakers.

The main address will be given by Dr. Thomas M. Lowry, Jr., professor of political science at Southwestern. His topic will be "Your Supreme Court." Those interested in the decisions of the supreme court and how it functions are cordially invited to attend.

The conference will last from 7:00 p. m. to 8:00 p. m. and will be held in the fellowship hall of the First Presbyterian Church.

Rt. Rev. R. H. GOODEN

Panama Canal Bishop Guest Grace Church

The Rt. Rev. Reginald Heber Gooden, STD, bishop of the missionary district of the Panama Canal Zone for the Episcopal Church, will be the special preacher at a missionary service of witness at Grace Episcopal Church, Fourth and Glenmar streets, at evening prayer on Sunday, at 5:30 p. m. today. The public is cordially invited to hear this outstanding Christian leader who is serving the church in the increasingly important area of Central America.

Bishop Gooden's visit to Grace Church in Monroe is of particular historical interest. As bishop of the Canal Zone, he is a successor to the late and much beloved Rt. Rev. James Craik Morris, the fifth bishop of Louisiana and prior to that missionary bishop in the Canal Zone. An even more significant historical tie that Grace Church has with the Canal Zone is in the fact that the Rt. Rev. Harry Roberts Carson, who was rector of Grace-Church, Monroe, from 1904 until 1910, went from this area to be rector of St. Paul's Church, Panama, in the jurisdiction that Bishop Gooden now serves and was later to become bishop of the missionary district of Haiti.

Bishop Gooden has been invited to Louisiana to be the special preacher at the Diocesan Convention to be held in New Orleans on Wednesday of next week. Because of the historical interest and tie of the Episcopal Church in northeast Louisiana with the church's work in Central America, it was arranged for him to visit in this field. He will make a visitation to St. David's Church in Rayville on Sunday morning. He is to meet with the Episcopal clergy of this area for Sunday luncheon and by the preacher at the missionary service in Grace Church late Sunday afternoon.

The Rt. Rev. Iveson B. Noland, D. D., suffragan bishop of Louisiana, will also be present as will the Episcopal clergy from the adjoining parishes and missions.

Bishop Gooden was born in Long Beach, California, March 22, 1910, the son of the Rt. Rev. Robert G. Gooden, retired suffragan bishop of the diocese of Los Angeles. He holds a bachelor of arts degree from Stanford University and a bachelor of divinity and doctor of sacred theology degrees from the Berkeley Divinity School of the Episcopal Church. He has also been a graduate student of the University of Madrid in Spain where he did graduate work in the Spanish language. Prior to being consecrated bishop of the missionary district of Panama Canal Zone in 1945 he served as honorary chaplain at the British embassy church in Madrid. He was priest - in - charge of St. Paul's Church, Comaguey, Cuba and from 1939 until 1945 was dean of Holy Trinity Cathedral in Havana. He has served as a member of the commission to translate the Prayer Book into Spanish.

Immediately after the service Bishop Gooden and the other clergy will be the supper guests of the young churchmen of Grace Church at their regular Sunday evening meeting.

RAYVILLE SERVICES

"As Was His Custom!" will be the sermon subject of the Reverend W. D. Boddie at the 11:00 a. m. service at the Rayville Methodist Church. W. L. Calhoun, Jr. will direct the chancel choir in a special anthem. Mrs. W. L. Calhoun, Sr. will be the organist. The altar prayer time will be again a feature of the 7:00 p. m. service when the pastor's sermon subject will be "Your God and Mine!" Miss Billie Jo Hanchey will be the pianist and Miss Charlotte Ann Stodghill will be the organist.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: I am a Christian but it seems to me that so many of us lack something the early disciples of Christ had. Have we lost something? D. F. S.

ANSWER: In many cases I fear it is because we have never had the experience of personal conversion which these people had. The disciples who went out to preach the Gospel and to turn the then-known world upside down had known the Christ about whom they preached. They had seen His miracles; they had heard Him talk; they had seen Him crucified and then a few days later they had seen Him with conclusive proofs that He was alive again, that He was not a resurrected and living Christ. Then, a few weeks later they saw Him ascend to Heaven. Soon after this the Holy Spirit came on them and filled their hearts and these fearful men, lacking in education and in material advantages, went out and preached with a power and a conviction which was the result of a personal experience and of the presence of the Holy Spirit in their hearts. God has not changed and He wants those of us who believe in Him to bear the same effective witness today. One thing lacking in many today is strong convictions about the person and determined by the time of life at work of Jesus Christ. When we know Him for Who He is and experience in our own hearts and have an effective witness which lives His transforming power, we otherwise is impossible. The same Holy Spirit wants to fill us and work in and through us today. When the Holy Spirit works, the same results are to be expected now as then.

Church Women's Duties For Study

In line with trends in the life of the church, and in response to repeated requests from the women, the National Executive Board of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal church, has been undertaking a restudy of the goals of woman's work in the church.

The program is in the nature of a consultation conference, taken to diocesan boards by a team made up of members of the board and staff. It is based on the conception that the auxiliary is designed as an instrument to help the parish carry out its true function as a "spirit filled community proclaiming the gospel to the whole world."

In the consultation the diocesan board is helped to get a picture of itself and its work, to picture objectives clearly, to review its function, and to evaluate its work. The team assigned to Louisiana will include Mrs. Robert Vance of southern Ohio and Mrs. John R. Newcomer of Arizona, members of the national executive board, and Miss Avis Harvey, member of the staff.

The diocesan executive board will be the guests of the team at the Bentley Hotel in Alexandria January 21 through 23.

SCHOOL OF MISSIONS

The School of Missions of the First Christian Church will start Sunday January 19. Refreshments will be served at 6 p. m. in fellowship hall. At 6:25 Robert Gayle will offer the invocation. Classes will be started promptly at 6:30 followed by assembly in the sanctuary at 7:15 where a film entitled "Where The New Day Dawns" will be shown after which worship service will be conducted by Rev. R. T. Watson.

A good attendance is expected since a lively interest has been shown in the study of "Japan."

White To Seek Atomic Plants In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 18 (AP)— Former Gov. Hugh White today urged Mississippi to prepare for the nuclear age through education and a competitive tax structure designed to induce atomic plants to locate here.

Addressing a civic club, White repeated his plea for a one million-dollar appropriation for the Agricultural and Industrial Board during the next two years.

"I think it will be almost criminal for us to fail in the next two years to keep stride with the rest of the nation in industrial development," said the A&I Board vice chairman.

"Let us participate in the profits and secure employment and new tax sources."

The former governor said Mississippi must step up its science courses in schools to train students toward careers in nuclear operations.

More money, he said, would permit the A&I Board to carry out explorations and learn of every intended expansion of plants in the nation.

"With this information," he continued, "we can be among the first to offer competition. Now, we are often too late and other states learn of intended expansion before we do and grab off the best plants."

He also urged a tax structure for industry that would put Mississippi in direct competition with other states for new plants.

MOPPING ADDS MOISTURE

When the floor of a kitchen, 8 feet by 10 feet, is washed with soapy water and rinsed with clear water, 2.4 pounds of water vapor are released in the home. The amount of moisture given off by house plants is nearly equal in volume to the amount of water required to water the plants.

Minstrel Show Sets Appearance In West Monroe

The first professional all-white minstrel company to tour the country in more than 20 years will appear at the West Monroe High School auditorium Thursday for two performances, one at 3:30 p.m. and the other at 8:15 p.m.

Sponsoring the appearance of the group, the Honey Boy Minstrels, is the Stonewall Lodge of the Knights of Pythias.

Principal comedian and producer of the show is Happy Kellams. He has revamped the almost-lost art of the minstrel to bring before the public a program that has lost none of its old-time flavor, and that has been spiced up with the addition of rock and roll music.

The two - hour production will carry its own scenery, lighting and orchestra. Included in the cast are Possum Gill, Cleo Plunkett, the Clipper Comedy Four, Deacon "Slim" Williams and Claude West.

Rev. RUSSELL STELLWAGON

R. Stellwagon To Tell About Work In Japan

Rev. Russell Stellwagon, returned missionary from Japan, will be the guest speaker at the Southside Methodist Church Sunday night, January 19, at 7:00 p. m. His sermon topic will be "Japan Needs Jesus."

Rev. Stellwagon is a local boy, having been reared in West Monroe by his grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. Roe Henry. He became burdened with the need of the gospel in Japan while in service during World War II. He returned to the states and received his training at Bob Jones University and Northwestern College in Minneapolis. He returned to Japan under the Evangelical Alliance Mission in 1951, and spent 5½ years in the missionary work in Japan. While on furlough, Rev. Stellwagon has spoken in several Bible camps and about 50 churches in five states in an effort to share his burden for Japan with the Christians of America.

Rev. Stellwagon is a member of the Ridge Ave. Baptist Church of West Monroe, and resides with his grandmother and aunt at 301 Ludwig in West Monroe.

Nomads To Elect Officers Monday

The first Darbar of Swami Santha No. 102, Nomads of Avrudaka is set for Monday at 8 p.m. at Castle Hall.

Officials urge all nomads to attend, as officers for 1958 will be elected and plans for their installation will be made.

Nomads are asked to wear their fez. Refreshments will be served after the meeting.

Rev. HAROLD BORCHERT

Jap Mission Laborer Will Speak Sunday

The Rev. Harold Borchert, United States Presbyterian missionary assigned to Kochi, Japan in 1954 when he and his wife were made responsible with three other mission workers to bring the gospel to 900,000 people. Now back on his first furlough in this country, he will speak to three local groups here today. At 9:45 a.m. he will speak in the Monroe First Presbyterian church; at Memorial Presbyterian Church in West Monroe at 11 a.m. and in Covenant Presbyterian Church, Monroe to young adults and others at a dinner meeting at 6 p.m. Then at 7:30 p.m., he will preach at the Sunday night meeting.

Mr. Borchert reports that the Presbyterian Mission Station in Kochi now has a force of eight, and several Japanese pastors to help them. But he says that more are still needed desperately to meet the challenge. The fact that his furlough year means some Bible classes will stop, children will have Sunday school only once or twice a month, and some groups will gather only seven or eight times a year, greatly beclouds his happiness at having the opportunities of this year's furlough. The other missionaries have taken over as many of his duties as possible, but already had more than they could handle before the Borcherts left.

Mr. Borchert, a native of Holland, Mich., received his training at Wofford College, Louisiana College, and Columbia Theological Seminary. He is married to the former Lois Aleen Wilson of Pineville and Alexandria, La.

The Borcherts have three children, Sue, six years, Lois, three, and Sarah, one.

They expect to go back to Japan in the summer of 1958.

Before going to the mission field, Mr. Borchert served five years in the U. S. Army, was for three and a half years an optician, and served as supply pastor of Palmer Presbyterian Church in Alexandria, La., for two years. During the time he was in Seminary, he served for three years as pastor of the Ingleside Presbyterian Church in Scottdale,Ga. He is a member of the Presbytery of Louisiana.

Dr. T. M. Lowry Jr. To Speak Here

Southwestern College, located in Memphis, will hold its annual southwestern conference at the First Presbyterian Church, Wednesday evening, January 22. Dr. R. P. Richardson, vice - president of Southwestern, will be one of the speakers.

The main address will be given by Dr. Thomas M. Lowry, Jr., professor of political science at Southwestern. His topic will be "Your Supreme Court." Those interested in the decisions of the supreme court and how it functions are cordially invited to attend.

The conference will last from 7:00 p. m. to 8:00 p. m. and will be held in the fellowship hall of the First Presbyterian Church.

Rt. Rev. R. H. GOODEN

Panama Canal Bishop Guest Grace Church

The Rt. Rev. Reginald Heber Gooden, STD, bishop of the missionary district of the Panama Canal Zone for the Episcopal Church, will be the special preacher at a missionary service of witness at Grace Episcopal Church, Fourth and Glenmar streets, at evening prayer on Sunday, at 5:30 p. m. today. The public is cordially invited to hear this outstanding Christian leader who is serving the church in the increasingly important area of Central America.

Bishop Gooden's visit to Grace Church in Monroe is of particular historical interest. As bishop of the Canal Zone, he is a successor to the late and much beloved Rt. Rev. James Craik Morris, the fifth bishop of Louisiana and prior to that missionary bishop in the Canal Zone. An even more significant historical tie that Grace Church has with the Canal Zone is in the fact that the Rt. Rev. Harry Roberts Carson, who was rector of Grace-Church, Monroe, from 1904 until 1910, went from this area to be rector of St. Paul's Church, Panama, in the jurisdiction that Bishop Gooden now serves and was later to become bishop of the missionary district of Haiti.

Bishop Gooden has been invited to Louisiana to be the special preacher at the Diocesan Convention to be held in New Orleans on Wednesday of next week. Because of the historical interest and tie of the Episcopal Church in northeast Louisiana with the church's work in Central America, it was arranged for him to visit in this field. He will make a visitation to St. David's Church in Rayville on Sunday morning. He is to meet with the Episcopal clergy of this area for Sunday luncheon and by the preacher at the missionary service in Grace Church late Sunday afternoon.

The Rt. Rev. Iveson B. Noland, D. D., suffragan bishop of Louisiana, will also be present as will the Episcopal clergy from the adjoining parishes and missions.

Bishop Gooden was born in Long Beach, California, March 22, 1910, the son of the Rt. Rev. Robert G. Gooden, retired suffragan bishop of the diocese of Los Angeles. He holds a bachelor of arts degree from Stanford University and a bachelor of divinity and doctor of sacred theology degrees from the Berkeley Divinity School of the Episcopal Church. He has also been a graduate student of the University of Madrid in Spain where he did graduate work in the Spanish language. Prior to being consecrated bishop of the missionary district of Panama Canal Zone in 1945 he served as honorary chaplain at the British embassy church in Madrid. He was priest - in - charge of St. Paul's Church, Comaguey, Cuba and from 1939 until 1945 was dean of Holy Trinity Cathedral in Havana. He has served as a member of the commission to translate the Prayer Book into Spanish.

Immediately after the service Bishop Gooden and the other clergy will be the supper guests of the young churchmen of Grace Church at their regular Sunday evening meeting.

RAYVILLE SERVICES

"As Was His Custom!" will be the sermon subject of the Reverend W. D. Boddie at the 11:00 a. m. service at the Rayville Methodist Church. W. L. Calhoun, Jr. will direct the chancel choir in a special anthem. Mrs. W. L. Calhoun, Sr. will be the organist. The altar prayer time will be again a feature of the 7:00 p. m. service when the pastor's sermon subject will be "Your God and Mine!" Miss Billie Jo Hanchey will be the pianist and Miss Charlotte Ann Stodghill will be the organist.

David N. Smith, 204 Filhoil; William D. Hoover, 3400 Franklin; Ben Queens, 3400 Gordon Ave.; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Huckabay. Son Broax, 4012 DeSiard; Billy E. Barton, 807½ N. 7th; and J. McMillan, 4206 DeSiard.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: I am a Christian but it seems to me that so many of us lack something the early disciples of Christ had. Have we lost something? D. F. S.

ANSWER: In many cases I fear it is because we have never had the experience of personal conversion which these people had. The disciples who went out to preach the Gospel and to turn the then-known world upside down had known the Christ about whom they preached. They had seen His miracles; they had heard Him talk; they had seen Him crucified and then a few days later they had seen Him with conclusive proofs that He was alive again, that He was not a resurrected and living Christ. Then, a few weeks later they saw Him ascend to Heaven. Soon after this the Holy Spirit came on them and filled their hearts and these fearful men, lacking in education and in material advantages, went out and preached with a power and a conviction which was the result of a personal experience and of the presence of the Holy Spirit in their hearts. God has not changed and He wants those of us who believe in Him to bear the same effective witness today. One thing lacking in many today is strong convictions about the person and determined by the time of life at work of Jesus Christ. When we know Him for Who He is and experience in our own hearts and have an effective witness which lives His transforming power, we otherwise is impossible. The same Holy Spirit wants to fill us and work in and through us today. When the Holy Spirit works, the same results are to be expected now as then.

Church Women's Duties For Study

In line with trends in the life of the church, and in response to repeated requests from the women, the National Executive Board of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal church, has been undertaking a restudy of the goals of woman's work in the church.

The program is in the nature of a consultation conference, taken to diocesan boards by a team made up of members of the board and staff. It is based on the conception that the auxiliary is designed as an instrument to help the parish carry out its true function as a "spirit filled community proclaiming the gospel to the whole world."

In the consultation the diocesan board is helped to get a picture of itself and its work, to picture objectives clearly, to review its function, and to evaluate its work. The team assigned to Louisiana will include Mrs. Robert Vance of southern Ohio and Mrs. John R. Newcomer of Arizona, members of the national executive board, and Miss Avis Harvey, member of the staff.

The diocesan executive board will be the guests of the team at the Bentley Hotel in Alexandria January 21 through 23.

SCHOOL OF MISSIONS

The School of Missions of the First Christian Church will start Sunday January 19. Refreshments will be served at 6 p. m. in fellowship hall. At 6:25 Robert Gayle will offer the invocation. Classes will be started promptly at 6:30 followed by assembly in the sanctuary at 7:15 where a film entitled "Where The New Day Dawns" will be shown after which worship service will be conducted by Rev. R. T. Watson.

A good attendance is expected since a lively interest has been shown in the study of "Japan."

White To Seek Atomic Plants In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 18 (AP)— Former Gov. Hugh White today urged Mississippi to prepare for the nuclear age through education and a competitive tax structure designed to induce atomic plants to locate here.

Addressing a civic club, White repeated his plea for a one million-dollar appropriation for the Agricultural and Industrial Board during the next two years.

"I think it will be almost criminal for us to fail in the next two years to keep stride with the rest of the nation in industrial development," said the A&I Board vice chairman.

"Let us participate in the profits and secure employment and new tax sources."

The former governor said Mississippi must step up its science courses in schools to train students toward careers in nuclear operations.

More money, he said, would permit the A&I Board to carry out explorations and learn of every intended expansion of plants in the nation.

"With this information," he continued, "we can be among the first to offer competition. Now, we are often too late and other states learn of intended expansion before we do and grab off the best plants."

He also urged a tax structure for industry that would put Mississippi in direct competition with other states for new plants.

MOPPING ADDS MOISTURE

When the floor of a kitchen, 8 feet by 10 feet, is washed with soapy water and rinsed with clear water, 2.4 pounds of water vapor are released in the home. The amount of moisture given off by house plants is nearly equal in volume to the amount of water required to water the plants.

Minstrel Show Sets Appearance In West Monroe

The first professional all-white minstrel company to tour the country in more than 20 years will appear at the West Monroe High School auditorium Thursday for two performances, one at 3:30 p.m. and the other at 8:15 p.m.

Sponsoring the appearance of the group, the Honey Boy Minstrels, is the Stonewall Lodge of the Knights of Pythias.

Principal comedian and producer of the show is Happy Kellams. He has revamped the almost-lost art of the minstrel to bring before the public a program that has lost none of its old-time flavor, and that has been spiced up with the addition of rock and roll music.

The two - hour production will carry its own scenery, lighting and orchestra. Included in the cast are Possum Gill, Cleo Plunkett, the Clipper Comedy Four, Deacon "Slim" Williams and Claude West.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

'The White Witch' Is Outstanding

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

The outstanding book of fiction added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library in the past week is "The White Witch" by Elizabeth Goudge. Returning to the historical novel with which she was so successful in "Green Dolphin Street," Miss Goudge now gives us a rich, long panorama of England in the time of Charles I, when Puritan and Cavalier strove for control of the realm. The central characters of the book are: Frances Leyland, a Royalist sympathizer, Jenny Haslewood of Puritan sympathies and Frongia, a gypsy. As always in Miss Goudge's novels there are children, delightfully drawn, who play a major part in the story. The picture of country life, of nature and gardens and domestic things in an England torn by the divided loyalties of civil war is conveyed with extraordinary accuracy and colorful detail. One senses the atmosphere of those perilous days. Not in many years has Miss Goudge written with such spirit and infectious enthusiasm for her characters. Her large public will enjoy every minute of this splendid story.

"The Called and the Chosen" by Monica Baldwin will appeal to all of the large audience who enjoyed "The Nun's Story." Several years ago Miss Baldwin wrote her autobiography, which she called "I Leap Over the Wall." Now she has used her first hand knowledge of the cloistered life to write a deeply moving novel. It is a tribute to her skill as a novelist that the members of the community stand out clearly as individuals. One finishes this story with a new understanding of why many are called, but few are chosen.

Herbert E. Bates is a novelist of wide experience and ability. His latest book is called "Summer in Salander" and contains four superb novellas. The book takes its title from the first story which is concerned with a travel resort in the off season. The second story is concerned with the adventures of a truck driver on a night run. The third story revolves about a butterfly collection, while the fourth one is called "Death of a Huntsman." In these four superior stories Mr. Bates the reality of human love and passion in all its contradictions, variety, squalor and glory. They offer the reader an absorbing experience. "Room at the Top" by John Braine is the title of a first novel by an author to watch. It is the story of an opportunist and it recreates the whole smell of a new town to a young man just arrived.

"A Family Affair" by Roger Eddy is a contemporary novel about a young man, a business and a town. This is the literary guild selection for January and will have a wide appeal and reader interest. Probably one of our most prolific as well as our most popular novelists is Earle Stanley Gardner who turns out several mystery stories each year, most of them concerned with the adventures of Perry Mason. His latest work is called "The Case of the Long - legged Models" and will be eagerly read by his public.

Any congregation that is planning to build a new sanctuary or educational building, should examine a new title called "Religiou Buildings for Today." It was edited by John Knox Shear, editor-in-chief of the Architectural Record. This book contains designs and plans of outstanding structures recently built in our country and explains a great deal about the religious traditions of all faiths. It is a beautiful book and should be of interest to architects, ministers and building committees. ;

Helen Keller has captured the imagination of generations of Americans because of her wonderful accomplishment of surmounting almost impossible obstacles. "The Open Door" is a new book of selections from her writings. It invites the reader into the mind and heart of this well beloved woman. Here for the first time in one volume is a treasury of Helen Keller's philosophical reflections — the beliefs which have given encouragement and joy to those who know her and to the world. This is a book of profound wisdom and inspiration, sparkling with the enjoyment of living.

Are you a patron of the Ouachita Parish Public Library? If not, it is time for you to "Wake Up and Read."

DAYS IN YELLOW LEAF

A Tender And Warm And Violent Novel

DAYS IN THE YELLOW LEAF. By William Hoffman (Doubleday, $3.95). This is a violent and compassionate novel and one you will not want to put down until you have read the last page. It is the tender story of a man's search for himself in a world he never made.

Hoffman attracted wide attention in 1955 with publication of his first novel — The Trumpet Unblown — which demonstrated top ability to write clean, hard prose. He lives and teaches school in his native Virginia, which is the setting of this moving new story—a work that should establish him.

Even without the soft-padding of illusions Tod Young would not hurt anyone, if he could escape it, even when he had gone to war and won medals for killing enemy soldiers.

When he returned and married Grace, he was happy for the first time in his life, but that was not to last.

"You could say you're glad."

"Of course I'm glad."

"That's all you have to say."

"It's made you beautiful."

"I won't be long. You won't want to look at me."

"What did the doctor say?"

"Everything's normal. I'm very healthy."

"Does it hurt?"

"It hurts just right. I guess I'm all female."

He kept looking at her.

"I feel almos religious," she said. "It's hard to explain."

"You're going to make a good mother."

"Think so?"

"I know it."

"That's the best thing you could say to me."

He kissed her, and . . . she was all love.

But Tod did not control all the forces affecting his and Grace's lives, and so

"Did she tell you the defendant had hit her?"

"No, but—"

"I thought she told you everything."

"She had bruises. One on her arm. He was doing something—"

Kampong Is Story Of Disease Fight

KAMPONG. By Ronald Hardy (Doubleday, $3.95). An interesting story of the human struggle against disease and death.

Dr. Harry Lynd, as the leader of a medical unit working in the kampongs — Javanese native villages — was troubled. The kampongs were breeding grounds for sickness; poverty and malnutrition were rampant. Lynd and his team had been sent to test the possibility of resistance to penicillin in a land plagued by yaws, dysentery, and syphilis.

Then suddenly the filth and squalor seemed minor. The team was faced with a vicious epidemic that could sweep through every kampong on Java — cholera.

Lynd's staff was far from the perfect group to handle the crisis. Schroeder, aggressive, gross, and insensitive, was a disruptive force; his doubts and bitter outbreaks distrurbed them all. Timson, inexperienced and shy, was nevertheless a good doctor. Wedyo, a Javanese herself, was a competent nurse, but her beauty strongly attracted each of the lonely doctors.

Kohl, an old man who could not separate politics and medicine, had once been the inspiration for every doctor in Asia; now he could only attract the antagonism of the local Communist police. Stannard's exterior was hard, but who could tell if that shell might not crack at any time? . . . And Ivy Miller, middle - aged, tired—she had forfeited her youth, her womanhood for the people of Asia.

Help and research had been the team's original aim. But when the cholera broke out the team could either remain and work together — or give up, defeated by disease and their own weaknesses.

Midnight Plumber Is Top Mystery

"There's a plumber mixed up in it somewhere, but I don't know how."

That's the way the police informer expressed it, and those were almost his last words, for, as Chief Inspector Martineau soon realized, the "Plumber's" men were swift workers who took murder in their stride.

Who was the Plumber? He seemed to be the guiding brain behind a highly organized gang which was terrorizing the town of Granchester. Among other things, he must have been a born disciplinarian, for who else could prevent a mob of thieves not only from "squealing" but from spending too freely their very considerable booty? It was a ticklish problem for Martineau to solve in a town where nobody dared open his mouth for fear of getting "mixed up in something," and the police themselves had to proceed with caution lest they precipitate further murders.

But solve it Martineau did, with some very able help from his subordinates, and the reader will be fascinated by the methods he used, and by the story of his first contact with the Plumber, the final roundup , and the last dramatic gun battle.

Written with Maurice Procter's unusual knowledge and insight into police work, this is a first - rate crime and suspense story, which should increase considerably this skilled novelist's rapidly growing audience.

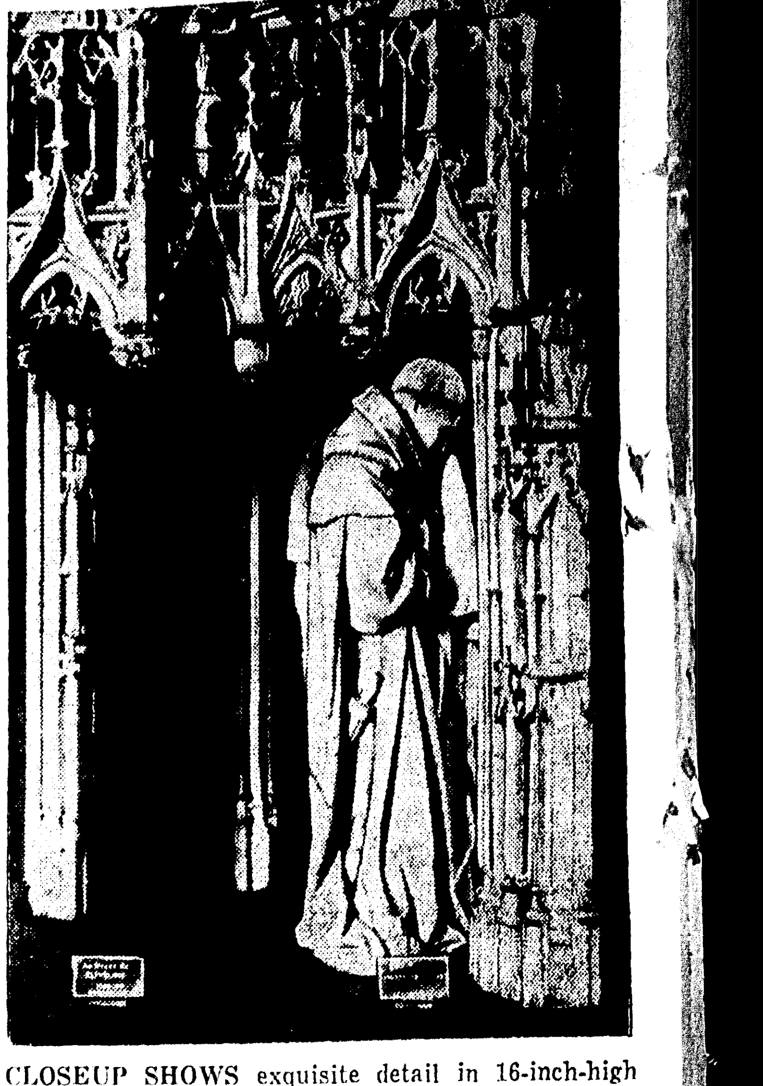
THIS IS the guard room in the Ducal Palace at Dijon, where likenesses of John the Fearless and his wife (foreground) and Philip the Bold (background) lie in funereal splendor. Beneath the two slabs, the famous mourners of Dijon grieve for their medieval masters in niches lining the bases. Originally numbering 82, a handful of the mourners are missing. At one point (arrow), visitors are informed a missing statue is held by the Cleveland Museum.



CLOSEUP SHOWS exquisite detail in 16-inch-high mourner figures and their niches. In empty space at left is a card reading: "Au Musee de Cleveland, Etats-Unis."

France Laments Missing Mourners At Duke's Tome

By FERNAND FAUBER

DIJON, France (AP)—Every year some 60,000 visitors file past the tombs of the dukes of Burgundy—Philip the Bold and John the Fearless — in Dijon's celebrated Ducal Palace.

The tombs are justly regarded as true masterpieces of Gothic art. To most Burgundians, they stand as symbols of a magnificent past. And yet, as any observant sightseer is sure to note, there is something wrong with both mausoleums.

Carved figures of Philip and of John and his wife Margaret lie prone on huge slabs of black marble, hands joined in prayer, feet firmly set against the sides of benevolent lions, with angels bending over them. Beneath the two slabs, master carvers of the late 14th an dearly 15th Centuries set a stage for an extraordinary procession of mourners.

Eloquent Grief

These 16 - inch - high alabaster statuettes were conceived to express human sorrow in every imaginable form under the white lacelike arcade surrounding the dukes' monuments. Each mourner is a perfect example of medieval statuary.

There are priests, monks, members of the ducal household, choirboys — all demonstrating their grief and pain most eloquently, some with eyes turned toward the heavens, others wiping their tears on their sleeves and some (jokingly said to be blowing their noses) drying their eyelids with their fingers.

Once there were 82 of these mourners. Today, several of the niches are empty. In the place of two a sign reading "Au Musee de Cleveland" draws attention to the fact that the occupants are now across the seas. Other signs inform visitors that two more monks are part of the collection of the late Leonard C. Hanna, also of Cleveland.

This reporter, having spent an afternoon overhearing comments from sightseers who read the signs aloud, can state without hesitation that reactions were, in the majority of cases, displeasure or surprise.

Why they are missing is a long story.

The dukes and their mourners first fell upon evil times during the French Revolution, when nobles in the flesh or in stone were unpopular. The monuments were dismantled, heads and hands sawed off the principals. The mourners were ordered set aside as "fairly good examples of the art of that period" by a special edict from a revolutionary committee.

Twenty - five years later first attempts at restoration began. The dukes and the duchess were reassembled successfully but mourners of the two separate monuments were intermingled and — most importantly — 13 were missing.

After World War II, the director of the Dijon Museum decided to put each mourner in the spot where the carvers had intended him, and to make every effort to fill the vacant niches with the original statuettes or, failing that, with plaster duplicates.

To the joy and delight of Dijon, an Englishman returned as a donation one of the 10 mourners who had migrated through art channels. Other owners, two of them museums, followed suit and a total of five mourners returned home. Eight remained absentees.

Four In Cleveland

Of these, three have disappeared without a trace. One of the other five is in Beaune, France, owned by a man who has said the remaining four are in Cleveland.

French officials are very careful to avoid any comment that could be interpreted as criticism aimed at American collectors who, they point out, purchased the Dijon statuettes on the open market and paid considerable sums for them.

Various proposals seem to have been made to William M. Milliken, director of the Cleveland Museum of Art, and to Leonard C. Hanna. Milliken's view appears to be that his trustees, while sympathetic with Dijon's predicament, are in no position to exchange the mourners for other pieces of Burgundian art.

It is quite natural that Cleveland and should look upon the mourners as one of its finest art treasurers. It is equally normal that Frenchmen reading the little signs in empty niches should express annoyance and say that "with money you can do anything."

As things stand, the Dijon mourners seem to be mourning not for their dukes but for their wandering brethren in Ohio.

CAMERA NOTES

Eyes, Cameras Directed Skyward

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

In the year that lies ahead, the eyes of the world will be directed skyward to a greater degree than ever before. Cameras, too, will be focussed in the same upward direction — more of them and of a greater variety than ever before.

Can amateur photographers assist in this astronomical area?

"Yes indeed, with some direction," says Dr. Donald H. Menzel, director of the Harvard College Observatory and author of hundreds of articles and 10 books. His latest, "A Field Guide to the Sky," written for the general public and to be published shortly, should be a help in the right direction.

It is his belief that the overwhelming detective job of keeping tabs on the millions of astral bodies swirling beyond our earth's atmosphere needs the interested attention and cameras of amateur photographers everywhere.

"Professional astronomers," he explained recently, "are so busy with the unusual that they simply don't have the time to record the everyday happenings in the sky. For this reason, many comets bear the names of amateur observers who spotted the astral bodies while professionals had their high - power telescopes trained elsewhere."

Yet it was a 35 mm camera, of the type used by many other amateur camera fans, that Dr. Menzel pointed skyward at 6:18 a.m., Boston time, one Saturday morning not too long ago and snapped the world's first photograph of a man - made earth satellite. It was the third stage rocket that had sent the first Russian sputnik into its orbit around the earth. The exposure was half a second at f-4.5. The picture went to the newspapers and landed on front pages around the country.

This measure of photographic achievement comes almost 40 years after his initation into celestial photography. He was assistant scoutmaster Menzel then, attempting to shoot the 1918 solar eclipse among other activities with his Denver Boy Scout patrol.

His next step was to team up with a buddy to build a telescope. When an industrial accident injured his lungs, he had to give up his previous interest in chemistry and he turned to astronomy as a career. It became a specialty at Princeton University where he received his Ph. D. in 1924.

Since 1918, Dr. Menzel has been present at six total solar eclipses and has photographed four of them. He has developed and installed special equipment to take pictures daily of the sun's corona at Sacrimento Peak, N. M. and at Climax, Colo.

In his role as observatory director, Dr. Menzel has charted a scientific program which has been systematically photographing outer space for years from various stations around the globe, using gaint astronomical telescope cameras.

SHOOTING HIGH—Dr. D. H. Menzel, director of Harvard College Observatory, attaches a Retina 35 mm camera to a metal collar on an eight-inch photographic telescope. Others are already in place. With such an arrangement, Dr. Menzel was able to capture the first photograph of sputnik's rocket as it circled the earth.

TV notes

Jack Benny appears as a guest star in the "Bachelor Fathers" situation comedy series on CBS tonight (Jan. 19).

A Daphne Du Maurier short story, "The Little Photographer," will be the basis for the "Playhouse 90" drama on Feb. 6. The teleplay will be entitled "The Violent Heart," adapted by Leslie Steves.

Red Buttons will star in "Hansel and Gretel" which will be presented by NBC April 27. Stubby Kaye has been signed to play a town crier.

The second of "Shirley Temple's storybook" series will be done live. It is "Rumplestiltskin," to be seen on NBC Feb. 2. John Raitt will play the king.

"Lucy Wins a Racehorse" is the title of the next Lucille Ball-Desi Arnaz show on CBS, Feb. 3. Betty Grable will participate and engage in song and dance with Desi with a new number called "Bayamo."

Actress-novelist Ilka Chase will be in "The Spell of the Tigress," Feb. 5 drama on "Kraft Television Theater." Others involved are Viveca Lindfors and little Patty McCormack.

Earl Holliman got more than an acting job out of "The Battle for Wednesday Night," a recent "Kraft Television Theater" offering on NBC. He sang "Nobody Knows How I Feel" in the drama, and as soon as the program was over Capitol Records sought him to record the number. The deal was made overnight because the actor had to leave for Hollywood the following afternoon.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

'The White Witch' Is Outstanding

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

The outstanding book of fiction added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library in the past week is "The White Witch" by Elizabeth Goudge. Returning to the historical novel with which she was so successful in "Green Dolphin Street," Miss Goudge now gives us a rich, long panorama of England in the time of Charles I, when Puritan and Cavalier strove for control of the realm. The central characters of the book are: Frances Leyland, a Royalist sympathizer, Jenny Haslewood of Puritan sympathies and Frongia, a gypsy. As always in Miss Goudge's novels there are children, delightfully drawn, who play a major part in the story. The picture of country life, of nature and gardens and domestic things in an England torn by the divided loyalties of civil war is conveyed with extraordinary accuracy and colorful detail. One senses the atmosphere of those perilous days. Not in many years has Miss Goudge written with such spirit and infectious enthusiasm for her characters. Her large public will enjoy every minute of this splendid story.

"The Called and the Chosen" by Monica Baldwin will appeal to all of the large audience who enjoyed "The Nun's Story." Several years ago Miss Baldwin wrote her autobiography, which she called "I Leap Over the Wall." Now she has used her first hand knowledge of the cloistered life to write a deeply moving novel. It is a tribute to her skill as a novelist that the members of the community stand out clearly as individuals. One finishes this story with a new understanding of why many are called, but few are chosen.

Herbert E. Bates is a novelist of wide experience and ability. His latest book is called "Summer in Salander" and contains four superb novellas. The book takes its title from the first story which is concerned with a travel resort in the off season. The second story is concerned with the adventures of a truck driver on a night run. The third story revolves about a butterfly collection, while the fourth one is called "Death of a Huntsman." In these four superior stories Mr. Bates the reality of human love and passion in all its contradictions, variety, squalor and glory. They offer the reader an absorbing experience. "Room at the Top" by John Braine is the title of a first novel by an author to watch. It is the story of an opportunist and it recreates the whole smell of a new town to a young man just arrived.

"A Family Affair" by Roger Eddy is a contemporary novel about a young man, a business and a town. This is the literary guild selection for January and will have a wide appeal and reader interest. Probably one of our most prolific as well as our most popular novelists is Earle Stanley Gardner who turns out several mystery stories each year, most of them concerned with the adventures of Perry Mason. His latest work is called "The Case of the Long - legged Models" and will be eagerly read by his public.

Any congregation that is planning to build a new sanctuary or educational building, should examine a new title called "Religiou Buildings for Today." It was edited by John Knox Shear, editor-in-chief of the Architectural Record. This book contains designs and plans of outstanding structures recently built in our country and explains a great deal about the religious traditions of all faiths. It is a beautiful book and should be of interest to architects, ministers and building committees. ;

Helen Keller has captured the imagination of generations of Americans because of her wonderful accomplishent of surmounting almost impossible obstacles. "The Open Door" is a new book of selections from her writings. It invites the reader into the mind and heart of this well beloved woman. Here for the first time in one volume is a treasury of Helen Keller's philosophical reflecions — the beliefs which have given encouragement and joy to those who know her and to the world. This is a book of profound wisdom and inspiration, sparkling with the enjoyment of living.

Are you a patron of the Ouachita Parish Public Library? If not, it is time for you to "Wake Up and Read."

DAYS IN YELLOW LEAF

A Tender And Warm And Violent Novel

DAYS IN THE YELLOW LEAF, By William Hoffman (Doubleday, $3.95). This is a violent and compassionate novel and one you will not want to put down until you have read the last page. It is the tender story of a man's search for himself in a world he never made.

Hoffman attracted wide attention in 1955 with publication of his first novel — The Trumpet Unblown — which demonstrated top ability to write clean, hard prose. He lives and teaches school in his native Virginia, which is the setting of this moving new story—a work that should establish him.

Even without the soft-padding of illusions Tod Young would not hurt anyone, if he could escape it, even when he had gone to war and won medals for killing enemy soldiers.

When he returned and married Grace, he was happy for the first time in his life, but that was not to last.

"You could say you're glad."

"Of course I'm glad."

"That's all you have to say."

"It's made you beau iful."

"I won't be long. You won't want to look at me."

"What did the doctor say?"

"Everything's normal. I'm very healthy."

"Does it hurt?"

"It hurts just right. I guess I'm all female."

He kept looking at her.

"I feel almos religious," she said. "It's hard to explain."

"You're going to make a good mother."

"Think so?"

"I know it."

"That's the best thing you could say to me."

He kissed her, and . . . she was all love.

But Tod did not control all the forces affecting his and Grace's lives, and so

"Did she tell you the defendant had hit her?"

"No, but—"

"I thought she told you everything."

"She had bruises. One on her arm. He was doing something—"

Midnight Plumber Is Top Mystery

That's the way the police informer expressed it, and those were almost his last words, for, as Chief Inspector Martineau soon realized, the "Plumber's" men were swift workers who took murder in their stride.

Who was the Plumber? He seemed to be the guiding brain behind a highly organized gang which was terrorizing the town of Granchester. Among other things, he must have been a born disciplinarian, for who else could prevent a mob of thieves not only from "squealing" but from spending too freely their very considerable booty? It was a ticklish problem for Martineau to solve in a town where nobody dared open his mouth for fear of getting "mixed up in something," and the police themselves had to proceed with caution lest they precipitate further murders.

But solve it Martineau did, with some very able help from his subordinates, and the reader will be fascinated by the methods he used, and by the story of his first contact with the Plumber, the final roundup , and the last dramatic gun battle.

Written with Maurice Procter's unusual knowledge and insight into police work, this is a first - rate crime and suspense story, which should increase considerably this skilled novelist's rapidly growing audience.

Kampong Is Story Of Disease Fight

KAMPONG, By Ronald Hardy (Doubleday, $3.95). An interesting story of the human struggle against disease and death.

Dr. Harry Lynd, as the leader of a medical unit working in the kampongs — Javanese native villages — was troubled. The kampongs were breeding grounds for sickness; poverty and malnutrition were rampant. Lynd and his team had been sent to test the possibility of resistance to penicillin in a land plagued by yaws, dysentery, and syphilis.

Then suddenly the filth and squalor seemed minor. The team was faced with a vicious epidemic that could sweep through every kampong on Java — cholera.

Lynd's staff was far from the perfect group to handle the crisis. Schroeder, aggressive, gross, and insensitive, was a disruptive force; his doubts and bitter outbreaks distrurbed them all. Timson, inexperienced and shy, was nevertheless a good doctor. Wedyo, a Javanese herself, was a competent nurse, but her beauty strongly attracted each of the lonely doctors.

Kohl, an old man who could not separate politics and medicine, had once been the inspiration for every doctor in Asia; now he could only attract the antagonism of the local Communist police. Stannard's exterior was hard, but who could tell if that shell might not crack at any time? . . . And Ivy Miller, middle - aged, tired—she had forfeited her youth, her womanhood for the people of Asia.

Help and research had been the team's original aim. But when the cholera broke out the team could either remain and work together — or give up, defeated by disease and their own weaknesses.

THIS IS the guard room in the Ducal Palace at Dijon, where likenesses of John the Fearless and his wife (foreground) and Philip the Bold (background) lie in funereal splendor. Beneath the two slabs, the famous mourners of Dijon grieve for their medieval masters in niches lining the bases. Originally numbering 82, a handful of the mourners are missing. At one point (arrow), visitors are informed a missing statue is held by the Cleveland Museum.

France Laments Missing Mourners At Duke's Tome

By FERNAND FAUBER

DIJON, France (AP)—Every year some 60,000 visitors file past the tombs of the dukes of Burgundy—Philip the Bold and John the Fearless — in Dijon's celebrated Ducal Palace.

The tombs are justly regarded as true masterpieces of Gothic art. To most Burgundians, they stand as symbols of a magnificent past. And yet, as any observant sightseer is sure to note, there is something wrong with both mausoleums.

Carved figures of Philip and of John and his wife Margaret lie prone on huge slabs of black marble, hands joined in prayer, feet firmly set against the sides of benevolent lions, with angels bending over them. Beneath the two slabs, master carvers of the late 14th an dearly 15th Centuries set a stage for an extraordinary procession of mourners.

Eloquent Grief

These 16 - inch - high alabaster statuettes were conceived to express human sorrow in every imaginable form under the white lacelike arcade surrounding the dukes' monuments. Each mourner is a perfect example of medieval statuary.

There are priests, monks, members of the ducal household, choirboys — all demonstrating their grief and pain most eloquently, some with eyes turned toward the heavens, others wiping their tears on their sleeves and some (jokingly said to be blowing their noses) drying their eyelids with their fingers.

Once there were 82 of these mourners. Today, several of the niches are empty. In the place of two a sign reading "Au Musee de Cleveland" draws attention to the fact that the occupants are now across the seas. Other signs inform visitors that two more monks are part of the collection of the late Leonard C. Hanna, also of Cleveland.

This reporter, having spent an afternoon overhearing comments from sightseers who read the signs aloud, can state without hesitation that reactions were, in the majority of cases, displeasure or surprise.

Why they are missing is a long story.

The dukes and their mourners first fell upon evil times during the French Revolution, when nobles in the flesh or in stone were unpopular. The monuments were dismantled, heads and hands sawed off the principals. The mourners were ordered set aside as "fairly good examples of the art of that period" by a special edict from a revolutionary committee.

Twenty - five years later first attempts at restoration began. The dukes and the duchess were reassembled successfully but mourners of the two separate monuments were intermingled and — most importantly — 13 were missing.

After World War II, the director of the Dijon Museum decided to put each mourner in the spot where the carvers had intended him, and to make every effort to fill the vacant niches with the original statuettes or, failing that, with plaster duplicates.

To the joy and delight of Dijon, an Englishman returned as a donation one of the 10 mourners who had migrated through art channels. Other owners, two of them museums, followed suit and a total of five mourners returned home. Eight remained absentees.

Four In Cleveland

Of these, three have disappeared without a trace. One of the other five is in Beaune, France, owned by a man who has said the remaining four are in Cleveland.

French officials are very careful to avoid any comment that could be interpreted as criticism aimed at American collectors who, they point out, purchased the Dijon statuettes on the open market and paid considerable sums for them.

Various proposals seem to have been made to William M. Milliken, director of the Cleveland Museum of Art, and to Leonard C. Hanna. Milliken's view appears to be that his trustees, while sympathetic with Dijon's predicament, are in no position to exchange the mourners for other pieces of Burgundian art.

It is quite natural that Cleveland and should look upon the mourners as one of its finest art treasurers. It is equally normal that Frenchmen reading the little signs in empty niches should express annoyance and say that "with money you can do anything."

As things stand, the Dijon mourners seem to be mourning not for their dukes but for their wandering brethren in Ohio.

CAMERA NOTES

Eyes, Cameras Directed Skyward

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

In the year that lies ahead, the eyes of the world will be directed skyward to a greater degree than ever before. Cameras, too, will be focussed in the same upward direction — more of them and of a greater variety than ever before.

Can amateur photographers assist in this astronomical area?

"Yes indeed, with some direction," says Dr. Donald H. Menzel, director of the Harvard College Observatory and author of hundreds of articles and 10 books. His latest, "A Field Guide to the Sky," written for the general public and to be published shortly, should be a help in the right direction.

It is his belief that the overwhelming detective job of keeping tabs on the millions of astral bodies swirling beyond our earth's atmosphere needs the interested attention and cameras of amateur photographers everywhere.

"Professional astronomers," he explained recently, "are so busy with the unusual that they simply don't have the time to record the everyday happenings in the sky. For this reason, many comets bear the names of amateur observers who spotted the astral bodies while professionals had their high - power telescopes trained elsewhere."

In his role as observatory director, Dr. Menzel has charted a scientific program which has been systematically photographing outer space for years from various stations around the globe, using gaint astronomical telescope cameras.

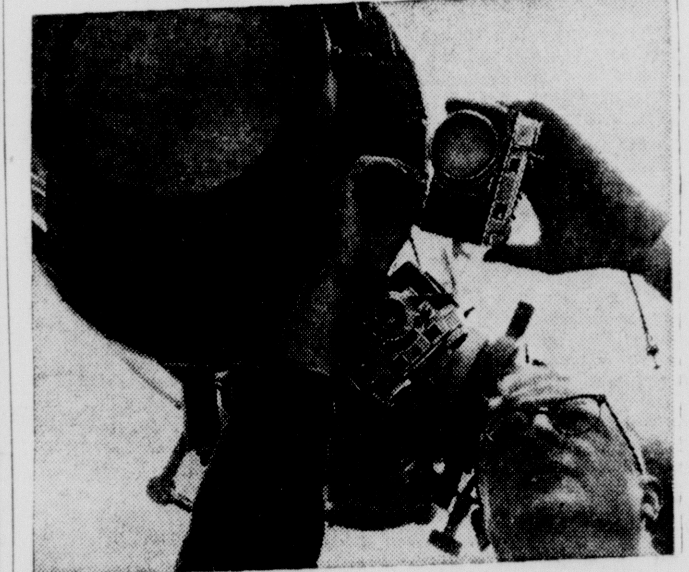
Yet it was a 35 mm camera, of the type used by many other amateur camera fans, that Dr. Menzel pointed skyward at 6:18 a.m., Boston time, one Saturday morning not too long ago and snapped the world's first photograph of a man - made earth satellite. It was the third stage rocket that had sent the first Russian sputnik into its orbit around the earth. The exposure was half a second at f-4.5. The picture went to the newspapers and landed on front pages. around the country.

This measure of photographic achievement comes almost 40 years after his initation into celestial photography. He was assistant scoutmaster Menzel then, attempting to shoot the 1918 solar eclipse among other activities with his Denver Boy Scout patrol.

His next step was to team up with a buddy to build a telescope. When an industrial accident injured his lungs, he had to give up his previous interest in chemistry and he turned to astronomy as a career. It became a specialty at Princeton University where he received his Ph. D. in 1924.

Since 1918, Dr. Menzel has been present at six total solar eclipses and has photographed four of them. He has developed and installed special equipment to take pictures daily of the sun's corona at Sacrimento Peak, N. M. and at Climax, Colo.

The enlistment of amateur interest in celestial observations is part of the world wide plan for the International Geophysical Year. The Society of Photographic Scientists and Engineers has been especially qualified to call on its members for volunteer co-operation.



SHOOTING HIGH—Dr. D. H. Menzel, director of Harvard College Observatory, attaches a Retina 35 mm camera to a metal collar on an eight-inch photographic telescope. Others are already in place. With such an arrangement, Dr. Menzel was able to capture the first photograph of sputnik's rocket as it circled the earth.

TV notes

A Daphne Du Maurier short story, "The Little Photographer," will be the basis for the "Playhouse 90" drama on Feb. 6. The teleplay will be entitled "The Violent Heart," adapted by Leslie Steves.

Red Buttons will star in "Hansel and Gretel" which will be presented by NBC April 27. Stubby Kaye has been signed to play a town crier.

The second of "Shirley Temple's storybook" series will be done live. It is "Rumplestiltskin," to be seen on NBC Feb. 2. John Raitt will play the king.

"Lucy Wins a Racehorse" is the title of the next Lucille Ball-Desi Arnaz show on CBS, Feb. 3. Betty Grable will participate and engage in song and dance with Desi with a new number called "Bayamo."

Actress-novelist Ilka Chase will be in "The Spell of the Tigress," Feb. 5 drama on "Kraft Television Theater." Others involved are Viveca Lindfors and little Patty McCormack.

Earl Holliman got more than an acting job out of "The Battle for Wednesday Night," a recent "Kraft Television Theater" offering on NBC. He sang "Nobody Knows How I Feel" in the drama, and as soon as the program was over Capitol Records sought him to record the number. The deal was made overnight because the actor had to leave for Hollywood the following afternoon.

ROMANTIC TEAM—Glenn Ford, member of a Navy public relations section stationed on a South Pacific island during World War II, falls in love with a native charmer, Gia Scala, in "Don't Go Near The Water." Also starring in M-G-M's filmization of William Brinkley's best seller novel are Earl Holliman, Anne Francis, Keenan Wynn, Fred Clark, Eva Gabor, Russ Tamblyn, Jeff Richards and Mickey Saughnessy.

NAVY 'LIFE'

Hilarious Comedy Coming To Jim

The funniest book of the year has been made into the funniest movie of the year by M-G-M.

Based on William Brinkley's best-seller novel, termed by the author himself as "an irreverant comedy about Navy life," the hilarious story was filmed in CinemaScope and color by Producer Lawrence Weingarten and Director Charles ("High Society") Walters with an impressive cast headed by Glenn Ford, and co-starring Gia Scala, Earl Holliman, Anne Francis, Keenan Wynn, Fred Clark, Eva Gabor, Russ Tamblyn and Jeff Richards, with Mickey Shaughnessy, comedy find of the year, also adding to the laughs.

Collection Of Stamps Are Sold

The first section of the Caroline Prentice Cromwell collection of United States material, recently sold by Irwin Heiman, Inc., New York, realized $88,030. A second portion, featuring private coils, will be sold later this year.

A horizontal pair of the imperforate 4-cent value of the 1902 issue, privately perforated in the Shermack type, realized $4,000, as compared to a catalogue valuation (1957) of $2,750. A mint copy of the 24-cent airmail invert of 1918 brought $3,900, and the only known unused strip of four of the 3-cent "Orangeburg, N. Y." coil (Scott's 389) sold for $4,300.

One of the finest known copies of the 1-cent rotary, perf. 11, of 1924, known as No. 594, was purchased for $3,000, while a pair of the 1-cent green of 1921, perf. 11, described as having blind perfs, but appearing imperforate between, sold for $2,200.

In the airmail field a plate number strip of three of the 5-cent "Winged Globe" airmail of 1939, with the left pair imperforate between realized $2,000, and the rare Zeppelin large die proofs brought $1,950, as compared to a quoted value of $1,800.

A bottom margin strip of four of the $5 Columbian with imprint and plate number, o.g., listed at $800, sold for $1,550, and a well centered copy of the 2-cent Pan American invert, part original gum, brought $1,500. Another Columbian imprint strip of four, with plate number, of the $4 value, catalogued at $750, sold for $1,250.

Five unique Bureau of Engraving and Printing models for the Panama-Pacific series, not valued, realized $1,000. In the relatively modern issues, an imperforated block of four of the 2-cent Von Steuben stamp brought $950.

1958: Upeat Year For Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD — Hollywood is looking ahead to 1958 with optimism and is backing its belief in its future by increasing markedly its production budget and the total number of films to be produced during the next twelve months, a survey discloses.

While there will be diminished activity at two studios, the slack in the total number of pictures will be more than taken up by other major companies which have announced increased production, and by the burgeoning number of independent operators. Thus Hollywood will make more pictures in 1958 than in 1957 or in several preceding years.

One of the general aims of Hollywood, the survey shows, will be greater diversification than ever before in theme and background material in the new pictures. United States film producers in 1958 plan to make films in virtually every country in the world. The survey reveals these 1958 production plans at various studios:

Paramount will have 32 pictures for release in 1958, of which 18 already are completed, and will have the largest number of quality pictures in its history.

Twentieth Century - Fox has added another five million dollars to its sixty million dollar production budget for 1958, setting a new record for the company. The money will be expended on 65 or more pictures, including 18 from Regal Films.

United Artists will spend nine million dollars in exploitation alone for its pictures, whose total cost will exceed fifty million dollars. The schedule includes 16 "block - busters."

Universal - International in its 1957-1958 release schedule has 39 pictures going into the nation's theatres, for a bigger total production investment than in any season in this company's 45-year history.

Warner Bros. studio is also bullish on production plans, having gone in for heavy purchases of major literary properties, such as plays and best sellers, and in 1958 expects to have its heaviest total production budget in years.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is starting four top pictures during the first two months of the year, while at the same time it will have in release five top pictures of diversified types.

Columbia Pictures, which has a substantial backlog of product ready for release, will start no less than 14 top budget pictures during the first six months of 1958, in addition to the regularly scheduled program pictures.

Allied Artists, in addition to having 15 pictures already completed, has four films rolling and will start four more during this month. This is the greatest production upsurge in this studio's history.

As an indication of the growing activities of the independents, Hecht - Hill - Lancaster has set a program of twelve top budget pictures, all for release by United Artists.

Stanley Kramer has a deal with United Artists calling for the production of six pictures at a minimum of two a year.

National Theatres, one of the top theatre chains, has entered production with its own developed three - camera and three - projector process, Cinemiracle. Its first production, "Cinemiracle Adventure," is now being edited for release this spring.

Moreover, such independents as American International and ABC-PT Pictures (American Broadcasting - Paramount Theatres) are planning augmented schedules for 1958, their initial releases having met with gratifying success in the theatres.

Berlioz Music In Popular Demand Still

Hector-Louis Berlioz hit his lifetime peak of popularity 100 years ago but his music is alive and more popular than ever in these days of high fidelity.

Two new "Berlioz Overtures" records, by Westminster, are brilliant responses to the growing demand for high quality renditions of such orchestral gems as "The Corsair," and "Roman Carnival." These are by The Philharmonic Promenade Orchestra under Sir Adrian Boult, and stirring stuff with the amplifier turned up.

They follow a Berlioz Overtures single (Angel), by Andre Cluytens directing the Paris National Opera Theater orchestra which includes five of the best known Berlioz items in forceful and first rate style.

Equally exciting is another Westminster issue, "Deutschmeister on Parade," by the 200-year-old Deutschmeister band of Austria, playing selections it will play on a 14-week U. S. tour early in 1958. This is the sixth Westminster record by the band which has developed a new generation of brass band enthusiasts.

Speaking of brass band fans, those favoring the Eastman Symphonic Wind Ensemble directed by Frederick Fennell are increasing as a result of its new Mercury records. The latest is Hindemith's "Symphony in B Flat," Schoenberg's "Theme and Variations," and Stravinsky's "Symphonies of Wind Instruments," all in a single disk with high class sound.

Paul Paray and the Detroit Symphony Orchestra put vigor and color into Mozart's "Haffner" Symphony and Haydn's "Miracle" Symphony. This version, by Mercury, was recorded in Detroit's new Ford auditorium.

Mozart quartets and Haydn trios for flute and strings, by Vanguard, are welcome additions for chamber music followers who like the lighter 18th Century style. These were recorded in Copenhagen and are excellent.

Sometimes The Setting Can Be "Wet" - Hudson

By RON BURTON

United Press Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Rock Hudson ssys that if you're not careful, you can get washed overboard at a Hollywood studio.

Hudson said he really was all wet, thanks to 800 gallons of water that hit him with the force of a large wave. And if anyone doesn't think a large wave can happen in a studio, he's all wet, too, according to the handsome actor.

Hudson's superbath occurred at Universal-International where, in one day's shooting of a storm sequence for "Twilight of the Gods," he had 4,800 gallons of water slosh around him, slap him frontally and splat on his head.

"This," said Hudson, "was realism. Before the day was over I realized a towel was my best friend. Six of those 800-gallon splashes were used before we completed the scene.

"The idea was to duplicate the appearance and the effect of a wave breaking over the deck of our ship. The 800 - gallon bucket —it was really a huge tank — was dumped electricically into an 80-foot high trough. Well, by the time the water reached the bottom of that bob-sled run, it was roaring and looked just like a big wave. It sure felt like one, too. I had to hang onto the helm to keep from being washed away — maybe even being carried downstream to the commissary.

"It was water, water, everywhere, and I was trying not to drink a drop. My clothes dried out by the next day except for my shoes. By the second day my ears were back to normal."

1958 Philatelic Program Noted By Israel

Since this year marks the 10th anniversary of its first postage stamp, Israel has announced a "festive philatelic program" for 1958.

The first issue is the 500-pruta Maccabiah stamp. It was released to honor the 25th anniversary of the Maccabiah Games.

The long awaited Merchant Marine series is next on the agenda. The designs show various ships that plied the world's waters for Israel down through the years.

Scheduled for April will be a special multi - colored adhesive honoring the 10th anniversary. It will be of 400-pruta value.

Other issues being planned are: a stamp honoring the first International Congress of Jewish Youth, a special issue commemorating the arrival of the millionth immigrant to Israel, the traditional festival series, and a stamp paying homage to the United Nations.

This report was received through the Israel Philatelic Agency in America.

The Philippines have overprinted two stamps to honor the inauguration of President-elect Carlos P. Garcia and Vice President-elect Diosdado Macapagal. The 10-centavo Father Burgos stamp and the 20-c Lapu-Lapu stamp were the overprinted and revalued issues.

The current issue of "Topical Time," the journal of the American Topical Collectors Assn., reveals the pressure of the International Geophysical Year and the advent of the satellite program. A space satellite unit has been formed for those who plan to collect stamps on that theme.

Egypt has issued two new stamps honoring the 25th anniversary of the Egyptian Air Force and the Egyptian Airlines. The Soviet influence is definitely felt on these adhesives since the Air Force stamp depicts Mig fighters and Ilyushin bombers.

Little Theater Curtain Call

By BETH BREESE

We dropped in at the Playhouse to visit rehearsal one night this week . . . and we'd like to be able to describe the scene to you, but, believe us, it was like nothing you ever saw at the Little Theatre before. And no wonder . . . it's the cleverest thing we've seen in a long time. Wait until you see the creativity and imagination that Ivan and Pat Young have put into the dances and song routines.

The numbers are priceless! They are "twenty - ish," stylized, peppy and exciting. One number in particular — called "Sur le Plage" — which is a seashore scene with the chorus boys and girls in authentic 1920's bathing suits is as strenuous a work - out as we've ever seen. That one number has everything in it, from Charleston steps to Adagio.

And another we watched — with Gerry Kenny and Dr. Jack Rawls —is the typical Tango routine of the twenties and is wonderfully comical. It's called "The You-Don't - Want - To - Play - With-Me Blues"! And these are just two of so many delightful things you'll see when "The Boy Friend" opens next month.

We promised you an announcement of the cast today. In the two leading roles of Polly Brown and Tony are Martha Williams and Slade Brown. The chorus girls, who are real 1920 vamps are: Maizie, Del Moore (you've seen Del on our stage before in "Anastasia" and in "Dangerous Corner" — and now we find out she can dance and sing, too); Dulcie, Linda Lavender, who is certainly no stranger in dance circles of the Twin Cities; Nancy, Eleanor Cammack, who in addition to being a beauty (she was Louisiana Forest Queen last year, you know) is also being proclaimed a real talent find; and Fay, Jean Hamilton — and this is Jean's first time on our stage, but we predict you'll be charmed with her as we were at rehearsal. The role of Percy is being done by Dr. Jack Rawls of Bastrop. Let us add that we think it's wonderful to be able to recruit someone so talented from a neighboring town—a wonderful addition to the cast.

As Madame Dubonnet you'll see Gerry Kenny, whom you've also seen on our Playhouse stage before. Gerry has a deep contralto voice — as you probably know— and is delightful in the show. As Lord Brockhurst you'll see that veteran of the stage, George Brian. And as George's wife, Lady Brockhurst, Little Theatre audiences will again welcome Kay Causey to the stage.

The male chorus line is comprised of three young men who have shown remarkable talent — and, let us hasten to add, stamina. You'll see Pete Mangum as Alphonse; Curtis Rape as Pierre; and Carl Haynes as Marcel.

Doesn't that sound like a stellar line - up? "The Boy Friend" promises a never - to - be - forgotten evening in the theatre. Be sure you mark this down on your list for February!

See you Wednesday!

AIR MAIL

PAWTUCKET, R.I. — (UP) — Arthur Richmond, 27, noticed his parked car moving and leaped in to apply the brakes. Instead, he accidentally stepped on the accelerator and the car leaped ahead, hit a mailbox and sent it flying through the air to hit John Bell and Barbara Romanovich.

'The Enemy Below' Dramatic Story

A classic sea drama, "The Enemy Below," co-starring Robert Mitchum and the popular European star, Curt Jurgens, is now showing at the Paramount Theatre.

Producer - Director Dick Powell, in his initial CinemaScope and Color production has fashioned a compelling picturization of a World War II battle between an American destroyer and a German submarine.

"The Enemy Below," which is adapted from the novel of the same name, was produced with complete cooperation of the United States Navy. Much of the picture was filmed in and around Pearl Harbor in Hawaii.

Robert Mitchum, who was the tough Marine sergeant in "Heaven Knows, Mr. Allison," is the skipper of the American destroyer escort in the picture and Curt Jurgens plays the role of the U-Boat commander. Both are skilled in their command and the matching of their wits and technique with exploding depth charges and deadly torpedoes keeps the tension mounting until the two ships "die" in a dramatic collision. The two skippers are saved by a rescuing destroyer to give the picture a poignant ending.

Also seen in the color film will be Kurt Kreuger, Biff Elliott, Russell Collins and Frank Albertson.

ROMANTIC TEAM—Glenn Ford, member of a Navy public relations section stationed on a South Pacific island during World War II, falls in love with a native charmer, Gia Scala, in "Don't Go Near The Water." Also starring in M-G-M's filmization of William Brinkley's best seller novel are Earl Holliman, Anne Francis, Keenan Wynn, Fred Clark, Eva Gabor, Russ Tamblyn, Jeff Richards and Mickey Saughnessy.

NAVY 'LIFE'

Hilarious Comedy Coming To Jim

The funniest book of the year has been made into the funniest movie of the year by M-G-M.

Based on William Brinkley's best-seller novel, termed by the author himself as "an irreverant comedy about Navy life," the hilarious story was filmed in CinemaScope and color by Producer Lawrence Weingarten and Director Charles ("High Society") Walters with an impressive cast headed by Glenn Ford, and co-starring Gia Scala, Earl Holliman, Anne Francis, Keenan Wynn, Fred Clark, Eva Gabor, Russ Tamblyn and Jeff Richards, with Mickey Shaughnessy, comedy find of the year, also adding to the laughs.

Collection Of Stamps Are Sold

The first section of the Caroline Prentice Cromwell collection of United States material, recently sold by Irwin Heiman, Inc., New York, realized $88,030. A second portion, featuring private coils, will be sold later this year.

A horizontal pair of the imperforate 4-cent value of the 1902 issue, privately perforated in the Shermack type, realized $4,000, as compared to a catalogue valuation (1957) of $2,750. A mint copy of the 24-cent airmail invert of 1918 brought $3,900, and the only known unused strip of four of the 3-cent "Orangeburg, N. Y." coil (Scott's 389) sold for $4,300.

One of the finest known copies of the 1-cent rotary, perf. 11, of 1924, known as No. 594, was purchased for $3,000, while a pair of the 1-cent green of 1921, perf. 11, described as having blind perfs, but appearing imperforate between, sold for $2,200.

In the airmail field a plate number strip of three of the 5-cent "Winged Globe" airmail of 1939, with the left pair imperforate between realized $2,000, and the rare Zeppelin large die proofs brought $1,950, as compared to a quoted value of $1,800.

A bottom margin strip of four of the $5 Columbian with imprint and plate number, o.g., listed at $800, sold for $1,550, and a well centered copy of the 2-cent Pan American invert, part original gum, brought $1,500. Another Columbian imprint strip of four, with plate number, of the $4 value, catalogued at $750, sold for $1,250.

Five unique Bureau of Engraving and Printing models for the Panama-Pacific series, not valued, realized $1,000. In the relatively modern issues, an imperforated block of four of the 2-cent Von Steuben stamp brought $950.

1958: Upeat Year For Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD — Hollywood is looking ahead to 1958 with optimism and is backing its belief in its future by increasing markedly its production budget and the total number of films to be produced during the next twelve months, a survey discloses.

While there will be diminished activity at two studios, the slack in the total number of pictures will be more than taken up by other major companies which have announced increased production, and by the burgeoning number of independent operators. Thus Hollywood will make more pictures in 1958 than in 1957 or in several preceding years.

One of the general aims of Hollywood, the survey shows, will be greater diversification than ever before in theme and background material in the new pictures. United States film producers in 1958 plan to make films in virtually every country in the world. The survey reveals these 1958 production plans at various studios:

Paramount will have 32 pictures for release in 1958, of which 18 already are completed, and will have the largest number of quality pictures in its history.

Twentieth Century - Fox has added another five million dollars to its sixty million dollar production budget for 1958, setting a new record for the company. The money will be expended on 65 or more pictures, including 18 from Regal Films.

United Artists will spend nine million dollars in exploitation alone for its pictures, whose total cost will exceed fifty million dollars. The schedule includes 16 "block - busters."

Universal - International in its 1957-1958 release schedule has 39 pictures going into the nation's theatres, for a bigger total production investment than in any season in this company's 45-year history.

Warner Bros. studio is also bullish on production plans, having gone in for heavy purchases of major literary properties, such as plays and best sellers, and in 1958 expects to have its heaviest total production budget in years.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is starting four top pictures during the first two months of the year, while at the same time it will have in release five top pictures of diversified types.

Columbia Pictures, which has a substantial backlog of product ready for release, will start no less than 14 top budget pictures during the first six months of 1958, in addition to the regularly scheduled program pictures.

Allied Artists, in addition to having 15 pictures already completed, has four films rolling and will start four more during this month. This is the greatest production upsurge in this studio's history.

As an indication of the growing activities of the independents, Hecht - Hill - Lancaster has set a program of twelve top budget pictures, all for release by United Artists.

Stanley Kramer has a deal with United Artists calling for the production of six pictures at a minimum of two a year.

National Theatres, one of the top theatre chains, has entered production with its own developed three - camera and three - projector process, Cinemiracle. Its first production, "Cinemiracle Adventure," is now being edited for release this spring.

Moreover, such independents as American International and ABC-PT Pictures (American Broadcasting - Paramount Theatres) are planning augmented schedules for 1958, their initial releases having met with gratifying success in the theatres.

Berlioz Music In Popular Demand Still

Hector-Louis Berlioz hit his lifetime peak of popularity 100 years ago but his music is alive and more popular than ever in these days of high fidelity.

This is the sixth Westminster record by the band which has developed a new generation of brass band enthusiasts.

Speaking of brass band fans, those favoring the Eastman Symphonic Wind Ensemble directed by Frederick Fennell are increasing as a result of its new Mercury records. The latest is Hindemith's "Symphony in B Flat," Schoenberg's "Theme and Variations," and Stravinsky's "Symphonies of Wind Instruments," all in a single disk with high class sound.

Paul Paray and the Detroit Symphony Orchestra put vigor and color into Mozart's "Haffner" Symphony and Haydn's "Miracle" Symphony. This version, by Mercury, was recorded in Detroit's new Ford auditorium.

Mozart quartets and Haydn trios for flute and strings, by Vanguard, are welcome additions for chamber music followers who like the lighter 18th Century style. These were recorded in Copenhagen and are excellent.

Southwest Shippers Open Convention Here Tuesday

Approximately 350 members, visitors and cooperating representatives of the Southwest Shippers Advisory Board will meet here Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday for a series of panel discussions and meetings.

Headquarters for the 107th regular conference of the organization will be the Virginia Hotel.

The Board was formed in 1923 so that the shipper - receiving public and the railroads could exchange ideas and formulate practices which would promote efficiency and economy in railroad transportation.

The Board's territory includes Texas and most of Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

On the agenda for Tuesday are meetings of the Shipper and Railroads' Carload Committees. Harry E. Dixon, traffic manager of the Traffic Management Service, Monroe, will preside at the meeting of the shippers' group. John P. Gunther, assistant general freight agent of the Kansas City Southern Railway, will supervise the railroads' conference.

Wednesday's program will include the meeting of the executive committee of the board, with Paul N. Haskell, traffic manager, Chamber of Commerce of Houston, Tex., and general chairman of the board, presiding.

Meeting at the same time will be the Railroad Contact Committee. Chairman R. H. Anderson, general superintendent of transportation, Rock Island Railroad, will be in charge. The two groups will compare deliberations at a joint luncheon at noon.

The Joint Loss and Damage Prevention Committee will confer Wednesday afternoon with Bob C. Worley, commissioner, Fort Smith, Ark., Traffic Bureau, presiding.

Thursday the members will assemble for the General Board meeting in the Virginia Hotel ballroom. Reports by the various committees will be given. Concluding the meeting will be a luncheon held jointly with the Rotary Club of Monroe. Russell Dearmont, president of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, will be the speaker.

Social activities during the three day conference will include a dinner Wednesday evening, to be held in conjunction with the Monroe Traffic Club's installation of officers. A ladies luncheon program will be at noon Wednesday.

The local committee assisting with arrangements for the conference is composed of Harry E. Dixon, traffic manager, Traffic Management Service; F. R. Adams, traffic manager, Paper Division, Olin Mathieson Corp.; M. E. Pickett, district freight and passenger agent, Missouri Pacific Railroad; S. W. McLean, general agent, Illinois Central Railroad; and Fletcher Ashcraft, president and Wallace Nelson, vice president-traffic manager, Arkansas and Louisiana Missouri Railroad.

Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard will deliver a welcome address to the conference delegates.

Willis' Group Aims Changes At High Court

WASHINGTON (Special) — A House Judiciary subcommittee, headed by Rep. Edwin E. Willis of Louisiana, is drawing up legislation which would override the United States Supreme Court's decision in the Mallory case.

The Mallory decision, according to Willis, in effect holds an arrested person must be brought immediately before a commissioner and arraigned before he can be questioned. It holds further that any confessions made, even though "completely free and voluntary," during the period between arrest and arraignment are invalid.

The Willis subcommittee held extensive hearings during the last session of Congress and during the recess in a study of recent Supreme court decisions.

The Mallory decision, said the Louisiana congressman, "in effect puts handcuffs on policemen instead of the accused."

Willis said his subcommittee decided to have hearings printed now, instead of waiting until all its hearings are completed, and to recommend corrective legislation.

"In substance, the corrective legislation will go back to the ancient test to the effect that a confession freely and voluntarily made and with no coercion or promise of reward will be admissible," he went on.

The St. Martinville congressman said it will take a few days for his committee to draft an appropriate bill "which we feel will be satisfactory to the justice department. After this is done we will proceed with consideration of other legislation to correct other decisions we held hearings on."

HUNGRY? — Half-grown owl, believed to be a screech owl, poses as a symbol of wisdom atop his new home at the residence of 6-year-old Susan Motheral at Poratello, Idaho. And while he may not appear to give a hoot, he really is hungry and Susan and her mother can't decide what to feed him. They say if he insists on a mouse and rat diet he may have to move on. Susan took the owl to school the day after she found him in a tree in her front yard. (AP Wirephoto)

Twining Claims U.S. Not Behind Reds In Missiles

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP)—A top military planner and an aircraft pioneer today applied brighter colors to the dark defense picture presented to Senate probers in recent weeks.

Gen. Nathan F. Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told the senators "we are not today, in my judgment, in a position of inferior strength vis-a-vis the Soviet Union."

In testimony given to the Senate Preparedness subcommittee Tuesday and released in censored form today, Twining asserted:

"Our military forces are strong enough now to win if war is thrust upon us — and we can take care of the future if we will put our energies to the task."

His view was supported by Donald W. Douglas Sr., chairman of the board of Douglas Aircraft, who testified today the armed services and industry "have been doing a much better job of keeping pace with any potential enemy than the public realizes."

Douglas said emphatically he doesn't share "the gloomy opinion of so many that the race for weapon supremacy has been lost forever and that we are permanently doomed to the role of a secondary power."

To this was added a report from J. E. Kindelberger of North American Aviation, Inc., that his company is working on a much larger rocket engine suitable for manned satellite stations and moon landings.

Girl's Ear Shot

FORT WORTH (UP) — Mrs. Nancy Powell, 20, a recent inmate of the Gatesville school for girls, shot another girl's ear off Friday in what police said was an argument over Mrs. Powell's husband.

The wounded girl was identified as Pat Allen, 17. The bullet creased her scalp and clipped off part of an ear.

Police said the two women were arguing over Cecil Coy Powell, an ex-convict and Mrs. Powell's husband, because Powell had been dating the Allen girl.

Authorities said Miss Allen, after thinking it over, decided against filing charges against Mrs. Powell.

ON COLD WAR

Yugoslavia Pushes For Summit Talks

LONDON, Jan. 18 (AP) — Yugoslavia accelerated its campaign today for an early summit conference of big and little powers to halt the world's cold war.

Ambassador M. I. Veyvoda said in a speech here that the summit meeting should be set months in advance. In the interval the big powers would prepare a work program on cold war problems.

In Belgrade, President Tito greeted President Sukarno of Indonesia on his arrival for a two-day visit, hoping to enlist his support for the summit meeting plan Tito advanced New Year's Day.

Veyvoda spoke at a Foreign Press Assn. luncheon attended by British Foreign Office experts and diplomats of several Western governments. Communist Yugoslavia professes neutrality in the cold war.

Veyvoda said small and neutralist states should attend such a conference in order to bring fresh air and fresh approaches into the East-West exchanges.

The Soviet Union has called for a top-level conference within three months that would include anywhere from 3 to 29 nations. The West insists new summit talks must be carefully prepared through diplomatic channels and a conference of foreign ministers.

"The world now faces two deadlocks—one in respect of the political situation including disarmament and the other in respect of a procedure for new negotiations," Veyvoda said. "We are realists and think a new summit conference is needed.

"We do not expect great achievements or solutions to emerge. But such a meeting would start off a long series of discussions at many levels to tackle all the elements of the international situation.

"The possibility of failure cannot—as some maintain—make the situation worse than it is today when no negotiations are taking place and when the arms race actually is increasing in pace."

This appeared to be a reference to Secretary of State Dulles' speech in Washington Thursday. Dulles said it would be a disaster if Western leaders were forced to break off a summit conference in an atmosphere of hostility because that would intensify the cold war.

TEA SHOWER

Miss Joy Dawson, bride - elect of Justin Fogleman, was honored with a lovely tea shower hosted by Mrs. E. W. Crowley and Miss Marilyn Crowley in their home on Auburn. Mrs. Earl Morin, mother of the bride - elect, and Mrs. Earl Phelps, the groom - elect's mother, assisted with the afternoon courtesies.

A beautiful pink and white decor was carried out in the reception rooms. The living room was graced with a large arrangement of white stock interspersed with fern.

The bride's table, overlaid with pink linen, bore a silver epergne filled with pink stock accented by tall slender tapers. A silver coffee service and trays of confections were placed at alternate ends with Mrs. Mae Lucky at the coffee service.

The honoree chose for the occasion a lovely autumn brown wool model and was the recipient of many useful gifts.

Guests calling between the hours of four and six o'clock were Mesdames H. A. Lutz, Frank Gordon, James Allen, Bruce Bairnsfather, Louis Hayden, Porter Barton, Lloyd Henderson, Addie Mae House, C. L. Givins, Jr., John Fogleman, J. P. Dunn, Rex Ensminger, Callie Griffin, B. R. Oliphint, E. H. Hill and Misses Virginia Hamel, Daisy Swayze, Gay Demmary, Fran Guthrie and Mell Cheek.

Luncheon

The Rendezvous was the scene of a lovely luncheon honoring Miss Joy Dawson, bride - elect of Justin S. Fogleman. The elegant luncheon of European broiled chicken, hosted by Mrs. L. A. Henderson, was accented with soft lights and sweet music.

Tastefully centered on the table was a charming arrangement of pink chrysanthemums and the honoree was presented with a matching corsage of pink carnations. A beautifull wrapped gift of silver marked the honoree's place, a gift from the hostess.

Sharing the occasion with the honoree and hostess were Mrs. Porter Barton, Mrs. Earl Morin, Mrs. Earl J. Phelps, Miss Jan Demmary, Miss Virginia Hamel and Miss Marilyn Crowley.

LEAVING FRIDAY . . . for Jackson, Miss., were Mrs. W. E. Dent and sons, Buddy and Mark. They plan to meet Mr. Dent in Jackson for a week end with family and return home on Sunday afternoon.

The Tim Allens also left Friday for a holiday in New Orleans, by way of Shreveport. The Allen children will spend the week end with Grandmamma, while Virginia and Tim enjoy a bit of business and pleasure in New Orleans.

NOW ESTABLISHED in their recently completed brick home, on the bayou, are Mr. and Mrs. Leo Jay Purvis and son, David Jay. It is located on Raymond Drive, which as everyone knows, is just off the "Fink's Hideaway" Road.

WHILE EN ROUTE TO A NEW ASSIGNMENT, Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. George P. Jordon and son, Michael, will stop on Tuesday to visit in the home of Major and Mrs. H. K. Shepherd at 706 Guy Avenue. They are living at present, in Calif., and will be en route to Washington where he has been assigned to the Inter American Defense Board.

FRIDAY, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Poulan motored to Shreveport where they combined pleasure with business and visited at the home of Mrs. C. C. Poulan.

NOW AT HOME. . . in their new home on Austin Drive, just off the Old Sterlington Road, are the GEORGE MOUK'S. They moved in Thursday and we hear it is most charming.

Larger Homes Need Furniture To Scale

So says Robbie Blakemore, a University of Illinois furnishings specialist, who suggested that small-scaled Danish, modern, oriental and provincial furniture looks altogether too small in more spacious interiors.

Larger and bolder furniture designs also strike a better balance with stone, brick and other strong interior textures of the modern house, she said.

When you store fish in the refrigerator over it well so no odor will escape.

MR. AND MRS. LEDOLPH BAER

Miss Inge Rosenbaum And Ledolph Baer Exchange Wedding Vows In N. Y.

The marriage of Miss Inge Rosenbaum, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Norbert Rosenbaum of 34-41 77th Street, Jackson Heights, New York, to Mr. Ledolph Baer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Baer of 1611 Milton Street, Monroe, Louisiana took place on Sunday, December 22nd at the Plaza Hotel, New York City, New York.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of taffeta trimmed with re-embroidered Alencon lace. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis over a Bible. Her illusion veil fell from a half cap of white flowers.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Ira Lyons, wore a pink net gown. The groom was attended by his father, Mr. Leo M. Baer.

Out of town guests included Mrs. Clifford M. Strauss of Monroe, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Forst of Havre de Grace, Maryland, Mr. B. M. Ablon of Arlington, Va.,Mrs. Nettie Shlosman and Mr. and Mrs. S. Karch of Elizabeth, N. J. and Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Franck of Vancouver, Canada.

The bride received a B. A. degree from The City College of New York with a Master of Science from the New York School of Social Work of Columbia University. The groom attended Tulane University, received a B. S. degree from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, and a Master of Science from the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas. He is presently doing post-graduate work in meterology at New York University leading towards a Ph.D. degree. The groom is a member of Zeta Beta Tau social fraternity, belongs to various Masonic bodies and is a Shriner, also a professional member of the American Meteorological Society and a member of the American Geophysical Union.

After a motoring trip down the East Coast the couple will reside at No. 4 Bogardus Place, New York City.

Girl Scout News

We wish every Girl Scout, whether girl or adult, could have heard Mrs. Gilbert Talley at the annual meeting Thursday night. Her beautiful pictures of Our Chalet and her account of the trip to the Juliette Low session there held the audience spellbound. The troops whose leaders were there will surely hear about the program and will take more interest than ever in the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund, we are sure.

At least eight girls consider themselves very lucky to have had the opportunity of hearing Mrs. Talley. They were the seven girls of Troop 48 who held the opening flag ceremony and Becky Middleton of Troop 24. We miss our guess if each is not planning to get to Switzerland and to Our Chalet one of these days.

The flag ceremony was smartly executed by Marilyn Denoux, Kay Joyce, Pat Pickett, Kaki Stone, Linda Williams, Diane Womack, and Mary Alice Yeldell, spic and span in their green uniforms, wearing white gloves and the red sashes customarily worn by color bearer and guards in a Girl Scout flag ceremony. It is always good to have at least a few girls at every adult meeting, to remind us of the reason for our work in scouting, and these girls did a good job of representing all the girls of the council.

Recognized for their most important contribution to Scouting were the troop leaders present. Mrs. Dixie Ware, public relations chairman on the board, also paid tribute to the community organizations which have supported the work of the leaders during the past year. Among those cited was the newspaper which publishes this column and the writers and photographers who help us keep the public informed about Scouting. As the climax of Mrs. Ware's talk, she presented a Certificate of Appreciation on behalf of the council to Mr. Maurice Glazer for services he has rendered the Girl Scout organization for many years. The certificate was beautifully lettered by Mr. George Porter, one of our Scout papas.

Everybody appreciated Jack Pankey's coming to represent the Boy Scouts and the telegram from the Y.W.C.A. and Miss Bess Sharp. Our professional worker, Annis Klie, received a twenty-five year pin for that many years of service as volunteer and professional. And she still is happy in Scouting. Our president, Mrs. Forman, presided graciously, as usual, and everything combined to make a most informative and enjoyable meeting.

Mrs. S. C. Strausser, Mrs. Tom Keller, Mrs. Ralph Caldwell, Mrs. N. L. Huckabee, and Mrs. T. F. Wilson served the beautifully-decorated cake with coffee at the conclusion of the meeting.

Toss Salad

NEW YORK (UP) — Tossed salads offer endless opportunity to use your culinary imagination. One way to vary the salads is to include sauteed mushrooms. Sautee the moshroom, then marinate them in wine vinegar and toss into the greens.

After defrosting a chest-type freezer, use a sponge mop to soak up water in the bottom. This saves stooping and gets water out of corners.

MISS BERTHA NAN SCOTT'S engagement to Carroll W. Venable is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Scott of Winnsboro. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Venable of Ruston. The vows will be solemnized in the First Presbyterian Church of Winnsboro on Friday, February 7, at seven o'clock in the evening. Miss Scott attends Louisiana Tech. Mr. Venable is a graduate of Tech and is presently employed as band director at Crowville High School.

Red And White Used In Winted Wedding Decor At Bruce-Foster Rites

A striking decor in scarlet and white gave spice to a winter wedding as Miss Charlotte Anita Foster became the bride of William Earl Bruce on January eighteenth at the Liberty Baptist Church.

Miss Foster is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Arnold Foster of Calhoun and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bruce Sr. of Shreveport.

Mass arrangements of white gladiolus and white carnations with fern fronds filled the chancel and burning white tapers glowed in candelabrum beside the pulpit. Miss Anna Rose Camp gave the pre-wedding music and accompanied Mrs. Bert N. Pipes of Baton Rouge as she sang "My Wonderful One."

At the prelude the bride entered on the arm of her father who presented her to the groom, as he stood with his brother, Ralph Bruce, who served as the best man. The Reverend S. W. Tullos of Gilbert was the officiant for the double ring ceremony.

The bride was gowned in silken poult de soie and lace fashioned with a full skirt and crushed sash below a fitted bodice. The brief jacket had long sleeves ending in lily points over the hands. A tiny Peter Pan collar was edged in seed pearls, fastened at the nape; tiny covered buttons formed the jacket closing down the back. A shoulder - length veil of illusion fell from a tiara of seed pearls and sequins. Her slippers were of white satin and she carried a nosegay of feathered carnations centered with a white orchid, tied in satin streamers, atop a bride's Bible.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Jerry Johnson, sister of the bride. She was costumed in scarlet lace-over-satin, with a matching satin sash forming a huge bow at the back. Red satin slippers, a hat of curled feather tips and a cascade of scarlet and white carnations completed her ensemble.

Serving as ushers were Jerry Johnson and Weber Langley of Shreveport.

The mother of the bride chose to wear an aqua knit suit with angora trim. Her accessories were white and her corsage was of palest pink carnations. Mrs. Bruce, mother of the groom, was frocked in navy silk with white accessories and a shoulder corsage of pink carnations.

The reception was held in the church annex immediately after the wedding.

Reception

The bridal party received the guests in the reception rooms, where a background of flowers and fern in tall standing baskets heightened the festive air.

The bridal table was draped in scarlet, overlaid with snowy white cutwork linen, and centered with red and white blossoms flanked by white tapers in polished brass candelabra. The wedding cake bore the traditional figurines and was placed opposite the punch service. Miss Connie Williams of Shreveport, and Miss Lo Lo Raymond of New Orleans, served the cake. Miss Alice Bobitt of Shreveport and Miss LaVeda Cherry alternated at the punch bowl, and Miss Jean Frank of Shreveport, registered the many guests.

The bride changed to a pastel blue wool suit, winter - white hat and gloves and navy accessories for her going away outfit. She also wore the orchid from her bouquet.

Following a tour of the Southern states, the young couple will make their home at 150 Herndon, Shreveport, Louisiana.

The bride graduated from Calhoun High School and holds a B. S. in nursing from Louisiana Tech. The groom graduated from Byrd High School in Shreveport and served with the United States Marine Corps.

Try Spicing Those Dips

LINCOLN, Neb. — "Dips" served with potato chips or crackers have become as much a part of America's food fare as apple pie.

Cream cheese, cottage cheese, sour cream and grated cheese make a good base for "dips," according to Kathryn Cooley, nutrition specialist at the University of Nebraska.

She says cream cheese should be thinned and cottage cheese sieved for use in "dips."

Seasonings make the "dips." Here are some seasoning suggestions from Miss Cooley: marjoram, parsley, celery seed, caraway, minced chives, Worcestershire sauce, chopped olives, anchovy paste, minced shrimp and minced clam.

To prepare stuffed pork chops, have chops cut double thick with a pocket on the bone side; put well-seasoned bread stuffing in pocket and braise slowly in heavy skillet on both sides; add small amount of water, cover tightly, and cook on top of stove or in oven until tender.

MISS BERTHA NAN SCOTT'S engagement to Carroll W. Venable is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Scott of Winnsboro. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Venable of Ruston. The vows will be solemnized in the First Presbyterian Church of Winnsboro on Friday, February 7, at seven o'clock in the evening. Miss Scott attends Louisiana Tech. Mr. Venable is a graduate of Tech and is presently employed as band director at Crowville High School.

Red And White Used In Winted Wedding Decor At Bruce-Foster Rites

Miss Foster is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Arnold Foster of Calhoun and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bruce Sr. of Shreveport.

Mass arrangements of white gladiolus and white carnations with fern fronds filled the chancel and burning white tapers glowed in candelabrum beside the pulpit. Miss Anna Rose Camp gave the pre-wedding music and accompanied Mrs. Bert N. Pipes of Baton Rouge as she sang "My Wonderful One."

At the prelude the bride entered on the arm of her father who presented her to the groom, as he stood with his brother, Ralph Bruce, who served as the best man. The Reverend S. W. Tullos of Gilbert was the officiant for the double ring ceremony.

The bride was gowned in silken poult de soie and lace fashioned with a full skirt and crushed sash below a fitted bodice. The brief jacket had long sleeves ending in lily points over the hands. A tiny Peter Pan collar was edged in seed pearls, fastened at the nape; tiny covered buttons formed the jacket closing down the back. A shoulder - length veil of illusion fell from a tiara of seed pearls and sequins. Her slippers were of white satin and she carried a nosegay of feathered carnations centered with a white orchid, tied in satin streamers, atop a bride's Bible.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Jerry Johnson, sister of the bride. She was costumed in scarlet lace-over-satin, with a matching satin sash forming a huge bow at the back. Red satin slippers, a hat of curled feather tips and a cascade of scarlet and white carnations completed her ensemble.

Serving as ushers were Jerry Johnson and Weber Langley of Shreveport.

The mother of the bride chose to wear an aqua knit suit with angora trim. Her accessories were white and her corsage was of palest pink carnations. Mrs. Bruce, mother of the groom, was frocked in navy silk with white accessories and a shoulder corsage of pink carnations.

The reception was held in the church annex immediately after the wedding.

Reception

The bridal party received the guests in the reception rooms, where a background of flowers and fern in tall standing baskets heightened the festive air.

The bridal table was draped in scarlet, overlaid with snowy white cutwork linen, and centered with red and white blossoms flanked by white tapers in polished brass candelabra. The wedding cake bore the traditional figurines and was placed opposite the punch service. Miss Connie Williams of Shreveport, and Miss Lo Lo Raymond of New Orleans, served the cake. Miss Alice Bobitt of Shreveport and Miss LaVeda Cherry alternated at the punch bowl, and Miss Jean Frank of Shreveport, registered the many guests.

The bride changed to a pastel blue wool suit, winter - white hat and gloves and navy accessories for her going away outfit. She also wore the orchid from her bouquet.

Following a tour of the Southern states, the young couple will make their home at 150 Herndon, Shreveport, Louisiana.

The bride graduated from Calhoun High School and holds a B. S. in nursing from Louisiana Tech. The groom graduated from Byrd High School in Shreveport and served with the United States Marine Corps.

Fascination Is Theme Of The Kit Kat Dance

A dream world with "Fascination" for its theme formed the seting for the annual formal dance held by the Kit Kat Klub of Ruston on Tuesday night at Iva Adams Cafeteria on Tech campus.

The Henderson College band furnished the music for the sparkling teenage dance.

The theme was carried out in the colors blue and white. A large silver bell with blue trimming was placed in the center of the dance floor. A greeting from the club was made of silver foil and was spotlighted on the wall at one end of the room. Huge blue foil bells graced the other walls. Blue balloons with silver bells tied to them outlined the doors to the cafeteria.

The dining room was decorated in similar fashion. The individual tables were centered with miniature silver bells on an arch tied with blue and white net. A silver plaque formed the base for the centerpiece. The serving table was adorned with an arrangement of blue and white carnations.

A backdrop of blue decorated, with silver canes and top hats, formed the setting for individual photographs made by Bob Freeman.

The girls presented their dates with silver key chains inscribed with the boy's initials.

Chaperones for the dance were Mrs. C. E. Barham, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Blackwell, and Mr. and Mrs. Newton Thurmon.

The club president, Miss Martha Jane Mitchell, selected a soft sea green floorlength dress of tulle over taffeta. The dress had a long torso and the skirt was made of rows of ruffles. She completed her outfit with white gloves and a white orchid. Jimmy King was her escort.

Miss Elizabeth McLaurin, vice-president, was lovely in a pink formal of tulle over taffeta and was accented with ruffles. Her outfit was completed with white evening gloves and a purple orchid. Her escort was Jerry Dyson.

The secretary, Miss Ellen Riser, wore a white formal of tulle over taffeta with a long torso and narrow shoulder straps. The skirt was composed of rows of tightly gathered ruffles. White gloves and a purple orchid completed her attire. Max McDonald of Tallulah was Miss Riser's escort.

A pink formal was worn by Miss Ann Riser, treasurer. An elongated bodice was enhanced by the billowing tulle skirt lined with taffeta. Her corsage was pink carnations and rosebuds and she wore white gloves. Her escort was John Porter.

The sgt. at arms, Miss Jo Crum, selected a ballerina length gown of white net over taffeta. A net stole, cummerbund, and a pink bow completed her dress. Her corsage was pink carnations and Wallace Martin was her escort.

Miss Lillian Blondin, reporter-historian, wore a pink lace and taffeta formal. The ballerina length dress was shirred on the bodice. The skirt was pink lace over taffeta and net. She completed her attire with white gloves and a pink rosebud wrist-corsage. Buddy McFadden was her escort.

Amelia Faulk, Bruce Richardson; Elaine Barnes, Bobby Robers; Jan Ferguson, Jimmy Fallin; Carolyn Cunningham, Robert F. Puddy; Patricia Jones, Don Hammons; Sharon Moore, Bubba Cook; Kay DeFreese, Lonnie Bramlett; Anne Thurmon, Billy Shaw; Barnette Strickland, Richard Zachry; Marilyn Cunningham, Wayne Henley; Sandra Moore, Jerry Drewett; Sandra Chandler, Roy Bryan; Mary A. Fowler, Don Wilder; Nancy Garrison, Pee Larance; Judy Dunnahoe, Don Townsend; Mary Ellen Blackwell, Billy Reeves; Andrea Farley, Robert Mahaffey; Linda Barnes, Paul Richardson;

Linda Carter, Don Richardson; Sylvia Moody, Allen Guthrie; Vici Brunn, John Sachs; Ann Temple, Jeron Fitts; Judy Mitchell, Joel Larance; Lana Moore, Wayne Moody; Bobbie Boyd, Ronnie Jackson; Sherry Rainwater, and Dewell Ray Gandy.

Cut the crusts from slices of bread and then spread the slices with butter. Cut into narrow strips and brown in a slow oven. Serve with soups and salads.

If your cake is crumbly, you may have added more baking powder than necessary or your oven temperature may have been too low.

EMILY POST

Occasional Gift For Weekend Hostess Proper

QUESTION: My husband's brother died two weeks ago and many of our friends sent messages of sympathy addressed to my husband alone. I would like to know if that was the right thing to do. Shouldn't they have been addressed to us both as I was concerned too?

MRS. POST: If any were friends of yours and only acquaintances of your husband they should have written to you asking you to tell him how sorry they were to learn of his loss, but the others were correct in writing to him.

QUESTION: Since married friends who serve as bridesmaids are never called bridesmatrons, why does the honor attendant have to be designated as either maid or matron — which seems customary? I'd like to ask a friend to serve who was married but divorced within a year. The circumstances were most unhappy and everyone has tried to help her forget them by ignoring the marriage. As she was given the use of her maiden name again there are even some newcomers who don't know she was married. May I call her my maid of honor?

MRS. POST: You may quite honestly and appropriately call her your attendant of honor.

QUESTION: I've heard that it is now considered permissible, yes, even advisable, to reach at the table for something rather than bother anyone to pass it. I was taught that it was bad manners to reach.

MRS. POST: Naturally you help yourself to something you can reach easily. The bad manners is in reaching across someone or rising out of your chair to reach across the table.

QUESTION: Do you think a celebrity of stage or screen minds being asked for his autograph by someone who happens to encounter him in a public place?

MRS. POST: "The time for me to worry is when they don't ask!" That statement recently made publicly by a well - known actor on the subject undoubtedly speaks for a majority of his profession.

QUESTION: Is a gift of something personal for a weekend hostess, like wearing apparel or cosmetics, permissible? Or it is more appropriate to choose something for the house or for the enjoyment of the entire family?

MRS. POST: If you are a woman friend, or relative, and know your hostess' own tastes about such items, then an occasional gift just for her use would be suitable.

QUESTION: When is a man supposed to take off his hat in entering the theater and when may he put it back on again when he leaves?

ANSWER: He takes his hat off as he passes the ticket taker on the way into the theater but puts it on again on leaving his seat. He does this so he has his hands free to put on his coat.

QUESTION: The other day I had lunch with a business acquaintance at a very nice restaurant. We both ordered coffee with our dessert. The waiter brought two cups which he put at each place and then placed a small pot of coffee on the table. Whose place was it to pour the coffee — the host's or mine? If it was my place to pour it, should I have filled my own cup first and then his? Is it always the woman's place to pour?

MRS. POST: At a restaurant, the waiter should have poured. Since he didn't, your host could have poured (your cup first) or he could have asked you to do so. In this case you would have poured his cup first.

QUESTION: Is it ever correct, and if so under what circumstances, for a girl to take a man to the theater or any other place of entertainment?

MRS. POST: Certainly not correct to make a habit of it, but she may do so on a rare occasion if she wants to.

QUESTION: I am a widow and have just received an engagement ring from the man I am soon to marry. Should I continue wearing my wedding ring since I now have this new engagement ring? Another thing, after I am married, what do I do with my old wedding ring?

MRS. POST: In fairness to your husband - to - be you should take off your first husband's ring and put it away. Perhaps some day you can have its gold made into something suitable. If for example, you have a son, it might be remade into a wedding ring for his bride.

QUESTION: I'm giving a lunch party for a bride - to - be. It is to be a fairly large party, but I'd like to sound informal. What kind of invitations would be best to do this?

MRS. POST: Second - person invitations: "Will you come to a lunch I am giving for Mary next Wednesday, at half past one o'clock" — or else telephone and say the same thing.

QUESTION: The other afternoon my husband and I went to a lecture. The subject was one in which we were greatly interested. However, we heard about every tenth word of what the lecturer said because of two women in back of us who chatted constantly. Why they ever came to the lecture I'll never know. My husband was very much annoyed and was all for turning around and telling them to "shut up" which of course he didn't do. My question to you Mrs. Post is: Does etiquette demand that one sit in silence and let the offenders go on being rude, or may one ask these chatterers to be quiet?

MRS. POST: You would have been within your rights of courtesy to have turned around and said quietly, "I'm sorry to have to ask you to stop talking, but we cannot hear this probably very interesting lecture."

Home Gardner Club Holds Jan. Meeting

The Home Gardener Club held its monthly meeting Tuesday evening at seven o'clock.

Mrs. Georgia Williams and Mrs. Henry Poulan were the hostesses and welcomed the members at the entrance hall. Mrs. J. M. Smith, assisted by Mrs. Vada Stedman, escorted the guests into the reception room. Co - hosting were Mrs. Milton Ford, Mrs. Cleve Cornette and Mrs. Billy Clark.

After a brief business session conducted by Mrs. Frank Pettit, Mrs. E. D. Prentice introduced the speaker, Mrs. Georgia Williams, whose subject was "Lets Grow Amaryllis." She concluded her talk by demonstrating the proper method of potting an amaryllis.

The meeting adjourned and the guests were invited into the dining room for a chicken dinner.

Mrs. Vada Stedman gave a most interesting and enlightening talk following dinner.

True Guerriero Feted With Storybook Party

True Guerriero, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Guerriero, celebrated her eighth birthday at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club on Tuesday, Jan. 14. True was assisted in receiving by her mother and father, Mary Katherine McGuire and Mary Tom Keller. Mrs. Charles Guerriero presented each child with a butterfly upon arrival. Terri Rubin escorted each guest to a hand painted white daisy where each child tried to pin the butterfly in the center of the daisy, setting the theme of the party.

To further carry out the storybook theme of the party, the birthday cake was in the shape of Raggedy Ann. A pink lollipop tree, a Hansel Gretel candy house and a Jack Horner pie, which contained the party favors, attracted the attention of the children. Virginia Pohlman supervised the interesting games for the afternoon.

Mary Katherine McGuire and Wanda Phillips were presented with prizes for pinning the butterfly in the center of the daisy. Terri Rubin and Debbie Ray were also awarded prizes. Ruth Robertson was the lucky recipient of the plum in Jack Horner's pie.

While the children sang Happy Birthday to the honoree, ice cream was served and Mrs. Joseph S. Guerriero cut and served the cake. Before departing, Linda Keller presented each guest with a lollipop from the tree.

Tea guests for the afternoon included Mesdames: B. W. Morrison, F. E. Maxwell, Jr., Gene Goad, Fred Kalil, Tom Keller, Fred Frazier, A. R. Buscanics, T. P. Godwin, G. F. Becker, M. H. Jones, E. M. Baber, James Ussery and Walker Glenn.

Miss Trezevant Is Betrothed To Sam J. Jungina

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Letha Faye Trezevant, of 3809 Blanks street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hammonds of Almagarda, New Mexico, to Sam Joseph Jungina, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Jungina at 239 Grayling Lane.

The ceremony will be performed February thirteenth, at eight o'clock in the evening in St. Matthews Catholic Church.

Miss Annette Morris will serve as maid of honor and Mrs. Flo Anzalone will serve as matron of honor. The bridesmaids will be Mrs. Martha Messina, Miss Pat Van Landingham Jr., and Miss Alyce Jo Anzalone.

Dianne Anzalone will be the flower girl and the train bearers will be Gail Doris and Teddy Van Landingham. Frank Jungina will serve the groom as best man.

The ring bearer will be Randy Anzalone and the ushers, Louis Comroto, Frank Anzalone, Sam Jungina and Tony Anzalone.

The couple will be at home in Monroe after the wedding.

If you want to cook leafy spinach in the water that clings to the leaves, you'll have to cover the saucepan. But lift the cover a few times during the cooking to help keep the vegetable a bright green.

Miss Elizabeth McLaurin, vice-president, was lovely in a pink formal of tulle over taffeta and was accented with ruffles. Her outfit was completed with white evening gloves and a purple orchid. Her escort was Jerry Dyson.

The secretary, Miss Ellen Riser, wore a white formal of tulle over taffeta with a long torso and narrow shoulder straps. The skirt was composed of rows of tightly gathered ruffles. White gloves and a purple orchid completed her attire. Max McDonald of Tallulah was Miss Riser's escort.

A pink formal was worn by Miss Ann Riser, treasurer. An elongated bodice was enhanced by the billowing tulle skirt lined with taffeta. Her corsage was pink carnations and rosebuds and she wore white gloves. Her escort was John Porter.

The sgt. at arms, Miss Jo Crum, selected a ballerina length gown of white net over taffeta. A net stole, cummerbund, and a pink bow completed her dress. Her corsage was pink carnations and Wallace Martin was her escort.

Miss Lillian Blondin, reporter-historian, wore a pink lace and taffeta formal. The ballerina length dress was shirred on the bodice. The skirt was pink lace over taffeta and net. She completed her attire with white gloves and a pink rosebud wrist-corsage. Buddy McFadden was her escort.

Cut the crusts from slices of bread and then spread the slices with butter. Cut into narrow strips and brown in a slow oven. Serve with soups and salads.

If your cake is crumbly, you may have added more baking powder than necessary or your oven temperature may have been too low.

EMILY POST

Occasional Gift For Weekend Hostess Proper

QUESTION: My husband's brother died two weeks ago and many of our friends sent messages of sympathy addressed to my husband alone. I would like to know if that was the right thing to do. Shouldn't they have been addressed to us both as I was concerned too?

MRS. POST: If any were friends of yours and only acquaintances of your husband they should have written to you asking you to tell him how sorry they were to learn of his loss, but the others were correct in writing to him.

QUESTION: Since married friends who serve as bridesmaids are never called bridesmatrons, why does the honor attendant have to be designated as either maid or matron — which seems customary? I'd like to ask a friend to serve who was married but divorced within a year. The circumstances were most unhappy and everyone has tried to help her forget them by ignoring the marriage. As she was given the use of her maiden name again there are even some newcomers who don't know she was married. May I call her my maid of honor?

MRS. POST: You may quite honestly and appropriately call her your attendant of honor.

QUESTION: I've heard that it is now considered permissible, yes, even advisable, to reach at the table for something rather than bother anyone to pass it. I was taught that it was bad manners to reach.

MRS. POST: Naturally you help yourself to something you can reach easily. The bad manners is in reaching across someone or rising out of your chair to reach across the table.

QUESTION: Do you think a celebrity of stage or screen minds being asked for his autograph by someone who happens to encounter him in a public place?

MRS. POST: "The time for me to worry is when they don't ask!" That statement recently made publicly by a well - known actor on the subject undoubtedly speaks for a majority of his profession.

QUESTION: Is a gift of something personal for a weekend hostess, like wearing apparel or cosmetics, permissible? Or it is more appropriate to choose something for the house or for the enjoyment of the entire family?

MRS. POST: If you are a woman friend, or relative, and know your hostess' own tastes about such items, then an occasional gift just for her use would be suitable.

QUESTION: When is a man supposed to take off his hat in entering the theater and when may he put it back on again when he leaves?

ANSWER: He takes his hat off as he passes the ticket taker on the way into the theater but puts it on again on leaving his seat. He does this so he has his hands free to put on his coat.

QUESTION: The other day I had lunch with a business acquaintance at a very nice restaurant. We both ordered coffee with our dessert. The waiter brought two cups which he put at each place and then placed a small pot of coffee on the table. Whose place was it to pour the coffee — the host's or mine? If it was my place to pour it, should I have filled my own cup first and then his? Is it always the woman's place to pour?

MRS. POST: At a restaurant, the waiter should have poured. Since he didn't, your host could have poured (your cup first) or he could have asked you to do so. In this case you would have poured his cup first.

QUESTION: Is it ever correct, and if so under what circumstances, for a girl to take a man to the theater or any other place of entertainment?

MRS. POST: Certainly not correct to make a habit of it, but she may do so on a rare occasion if she wants to.

QUESTION: I am a widow and have just received an engagement ring from the man I am soon to marry. Should I continue wearing my wedding ring since I now have this new engagement ring? Another thing, after I am married, what do I do with my old wedding ring?

MRS. POST: In fairness to your husband - to - be you should take off your first husband's ring and put it away. Perhaps some day you can have its gold made into something suitable. If for example, you have a son, it might be remade into a wedding ring for his bride.

QUESTION: I'm giving a lunch party for a bride - to - be. It is to be a fairly large party, but I'd like to sound informal. What kind of invitations would be best to do this?

MRS. POST: Second - person invitations: "Will you come to a lunch I am giving for Mary next Wednesday, at half past one o'clock" — or else telephone and say the same thing.

QUESTION: The other afternoon my husband and I went to a lecture. The subject was one in which we were greatly interested. However, we heard about every tenth word of what the lecturer said because of two women in back of us who chatted constantly. Why they ever came to the lecture I'll never know. My husband was very much annoyed and was all for turning around and telling them to "shut up" which of course he didn't do. My question to you Mrs. Post is: Does etiquette demand that one sit in silence and let the offenders go on being rude, or may one ask these chatterers to be quiet?

MRS. POST: You would have been within your rights of courtesy to have turned around and said quietly, "I'm sorry to have to ask you to stop talking, but we cannot hear this probably very interesting lecture."

Home Gardner Club Holds Jan. Meeting

The Home Gardener Club held its monthly meeting Tuesday evening at seven o'clock.

Mrs. Georgia Williams and Mrs. Henry Poulan were the hostesses and welcomed the members at the entrance hall. Mrs. J. M. Smith, assisted by Mrs. Vada Stedman, escorted the guests into the reception room. Co - hosting were Mrs. Milton Ford, Mrs. Cleve Cornette and Mrs. Billy Clark.

After a brief business session conducted by Mrs. Frank Pettit, Mrs. E. D. Prentice introduced the speaker, Mrs. Georgia Williams, whose subject was "Lets Grow Amaryllis." She concluded her talk by demonstrating the proper method of potting an amaryllis.

The meeting adjourned and the guests were invited into the dining room for a chicken dinner.

Mrs. Vada Stedman gave a most interesting and enlightening talk following dinner.

True Guerriero Feted With Storybook Party

True Guerriero, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Guerriero, celebrated her eighth birthday at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club on Tuesday, Jan. 14. True was assisted in receiving by her mother and father, Mary Katherine McGuire and Mary Tom Keller. Mrs. Charles Guerriero presented each child with a butterfly upon arrival. Terri Rubin escorted each guest to a hand painted white daisy where each child tried to pin the butterfly in the center of the daisy, setting the theme of the party.

To further carry out the storybook theme of the party, the birthday cake was in the shape of Raggedy Ann. A pink lollipop tree, a Hansel Gretel candy house and a Jack Horner pie, which contained the party favors, attracted the attention of the children. Virginia Pohlman supervised the interesting games for the afternoon.

Mary Katherine McGuire and Wanda Phillips were presented with prizes for pinning the butterfly in the center of the daisy. Terri Rubin and Debbie Ray were also awarded prizes. Ruth Robertson was the lucky recipient of the plum in Jack Horner's pie.

While the children sang Happy Birthday to the honoree, ice cream was served and Mrs. Joseph S. Guerriero cut and served the cake. Before departing, Linda Keller presented each guest with a lollipop from the tree.

Tea guests for the afternoon included Mesdames: B. W. Morrison, F. E. Maxwell, Jr., Gene Goad, Fred Kalil, Tom Keller, Fred Frazier, A. R. Buscanics, T. P. Godwin, G. F. Becker, M. H. Jones, E. M. Baber, James Ussery and Walker Glenn.

Miss Trezevant Is Betrothed To Sam J. Jungina

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Letha Faye Trezevant, of 3809 Blanks street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hammonds of Almagarda, New Mexico, to Sam Joseph Jungina, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Jungina at 239 Grayling Lane.

The ceremony will be performed February thirteenth, at eight o'clock in the evening in St. Matthews Catholic Church.

Miss Annette Morris will serve as maid of honor and Mrs. Flo Anzalone will serve as matron of honor. The bridesmaids will be Mrs. Martha Messina, Miss Pat Van Landingham Jr., and Miss Alyce Jo Anzalone.

Dianne Anzalone will be the flower girl and the train bearers will be Gail Doris and Teddy Van Landingham. Frank Jungina will serve the groom as best man.

The ring bearer will be Randy Anzalone and the ushers, Louis Comroto, Frank Anzalone, Sam Jungina and Tony Anzalone.

The couple will be at home in Monroe after the wedding.

If you want to cook leafy spinach in the water that clings to the leaves, you'll have to cover the saucepan. But lift the cover a few times during the cooking to help keep the vegetable a bright green.

Foot Vibrators Aid Shopping

CHICAGO — If American women have their way, supermarkets of the future may be equipped with foot vibrators and lounges.

Footsore homemakers have suggested such improvements in a survey made by a trade stamp company (King Korn).

Housewives also would like:

Computers on the handles of shopping carts so they can total their purchases as they make their rounds to replenish the family larder.

Supervised playgrounds and nurseries for tots and toddlers so mom doesn't have to tote them along in the shopping cart.

Information booths and store directors, such as are found in department stores.

Store maps on shopping carts for quick reference for the shopper who wants a can of pepper without searching several crowded aisles.

Vending machines for staples such as bread and milk for the shopper who wants only those items.

Make metal clothes hangers rustproof by wrapping masking tape around the frame.

CLOTHES QUIZ

A Washable Fabric Is For Child

By BETH BLAIR

The popularity of easy care fabrics has increased tremendously and mothers feel there is no greater boon for children's wardrobes. Plan them whenever you can. A reader writes—

Dear Miss Blair:

Please advise whether or not rayon velvet is washable? I want to purchase it in a pastel color to use for spring coats for my little girls and would prefer it to be an easy-to-care-for velvet.

I agree a washable velvet is the best type to consider for little girls — anything else will take frequent cleansings which can be expensive. Some cotton, rayon and synthetic velvets are washable. When you purchase the fabric be sure it is guaranteed to wash. Check with someone who is certain and in authority to know.

Dear Miss Blair:

We are going to Bermuda in March. I'm set on my wardrobe, but will my husband need a white jacket?

The temperature in Bermuda during March is springlike. It ranges from the upper fifties to the middle sixties. Wool and flannel slacks and sports jackets are good. Night life there is formal. Both white and black jackets are worn the year-round.

Pancakes can be kept hot in a warm oven by stacking them alternately between layers of paper toweling.

How To Trick Teen-Agers Into Eating

NEW YORK — Millions of today's American teen-agers are starving! "Because they stuff themselves with 'empty calories' and remain undernourished, America's healthy teen-age children are becoming restless, irritable, nail biting anemics suffering from nutritional nerves," asserts food expert Josie McCarthy writing in the current issue of a magazine.

Soda fountain diets are seriously jeopardizing many teen-ager's future physical, mental and emotional well being, states the article. It is the responsibility of all parents to plan an organized campaign, Miss McCarthy says, in order to fill the void caused by teen-age "empty calory" eating habits.

A smart parent can prepare mouth-watering dishes "secretly" loaded with the nourishment of essential food, by adding gourmet touches which serve to glamorize ordinary food. For instance, instead of fuming about how a teen-ager won't eat properly, plot to get the essential ingredients necessary for a balanced and healthful diet, such as milk and eggs, into such delightful dishes as desserts and puddings; leave bowls of raw crisp vegetables in obvious places and keep meat patties available and easily accessible for your teen-ager to throw into a broiler for a snack.

For party ice cream serving, make individual or large meringue shells; fill shell with ice cream; garnish with fresh fruit.

Make hash with leftover meat by adding chopped cooked potato (twice the amount of chopped meat), chopped onion, salt and pepper.

Place poached eggs on toast rounds in shallow baking dish, pour over a rich cheese sauce and brown quickly under broiler; serve immediately.

Miss Billie Beeson To Wed Henry A. Little

Announcement is being made by Mrs. William Walter Beeson of the approaching marriage of her daughter, Miss Billie Virginia Beeson, to Henry Albert Little, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Little of Monroe.

The vows will be exchanged at seven o'clock on the evening of Friday, Feb. 21, at the First Baptist Church of West Monroe. Dr. Jaroy Weber, pastor, will officiate at the ceremony and music will be rendered by the Rev. Jack Day, soloist, accompanied by Mr. Bob Oldenburg and Mr. Sandy Long.

Miss Sharon Thomisee has been chosen as the bride's maid of honor, while Miss Sarah Little and Miss Betty Nelson will be bridesmaids. A. B. Little, Jr., brother of the groom-elect, will serve as best man with Bill Norris, Pierce Ramsey, Ray Vineyard, and Max Gray as ushers.

Miss Beeson is a graduate of West Monroe High School. Mr. Little graduated from Ouachita High School and is now attending Northeast Louisiana State College. After their wedding, they will make their home in Monroe.

A few drops of tabasco sauce, onion juice and soy sauce give Welsh rarebit extra flavor.

Here Are Some Winter Days Walking Tips

ALBANY, N. Y. — Winter weather not only presents hazardous driving conditions, but it can make walking pretty tough too. Here are some tips from the New York State Division of Safety:

Keep your eyes on where you're going.

Don't walk too fast.

Always use handrails when possible.

If you slip, try to relax instead of tensing up in an effort to keep from falling. Generally, a relaxed fall is not likely to do harm.

Be extra careful when crossing streets.

The American Woman Looks Like A Doll

NEW YORK (UP)—We American women look like dolls, wear "gardens" on our heads and ride in "driving palaces."

That's how six Belgian college students see us.

The students, ranging from 19 to 22 years, are touring the country for five weeks, campaigning for the March of Dimes and telling Americans about the Belgian world's fair scheduled for next spring.

The group is the fifth which the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis has brought from Europe. The young people were chosen from Belgian universities for their ability to speak English, their character, grades, personality and appearance.

"The make-up American women wear makes them look like dolls. Women in our country are more natural looking," said Francois 't Kint de Roodenbeke, 21, a law student from Brussels and the only male in the group.

"I like your chemises and levis, but I don't like the hats. They look like a garden full of flowers or food," he added.

Has Francois dated any American girls on the trip?

"I haven't a chance with five Belgian girls around," he said.

The students also commented on these things:

Television: "We don't like it here. Ours is more serious, more artistic and no commercials."

Kitchen gadgets and appliances: "Wonderful. When I get married, I'll come back and order a complete kitchen."

Dating: "It's freer and more informal here. But at home we do go steady."

Education: "American colleges have so many sports to offer. We only have time to study."

American cars: "They are driving palaces...so big and bright."

The South: "We loved it, want to see more. It was easy to understand the people with their slow-talking Dixie."

Rich Colors Are For The Stately Rooms

CHICAGO — There's a new color trend in home decorating—the use of "warm" shades for the living room and dining room and lighter colors for the bedroom.

Interior decorators at the Seng Furniture Co. said colors such as maroon or wine give a "rich and stately effect" to the formal living, dining and den rooms.

They said hues such as blues or off-pinks were "correct" for bedrooms and "earth" shades like brown and its derivatives were a good choice if the decorator wants a room to appear "warm but conservative."

Mrs. Trousdale Hosts DAR Meeting For Jan.

Fort Miro Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held its January meeting in the home of Mrs. B. A. Trousdale, Jr., on Fairview Avenue. The regent, Mrs. Duncan Cook, called the meeting to order at three o'clock. The assemblage was led in prayer by Mrs. C. E. Slade, chaplain, and in repetition of the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag by Mrs. W. K. Abington.

Guest performers for the afternoon, members of the Lt. Joseph Bowmar Chapter, Children of the American Revolution, presented a charming program. Introduced by Miss Peggy Pierce, president, the following numbers were given: vocal duet: "With a Song in My Heart," Miss Linda Steele and Jim Mulhern. Piano solo: "The Orphan," Sally Pierce. Vocal solo: "Let My Song Fill Your Heart," Miss Mary Coon. Accompanist: Miss Linda Womack.

Miss Peggy Pierce gave highlights of the founding and history of Lt. Joseph Bowmar Chapter and of the National Society of the C A R. She gave credit to Mrs. Elizabeth Lawrence, the organizing senior president, Mrs. J. C. Liner, who followed her, and the present senior leader, Mrs. S. W. McLean, under whose competent guidance the chapter has made great strides.

Mrs. Cook expressed the appreciation of Fort Miro Chapter to the guests and to Mrs. McLean, for the delightfully informative and entertaining program.

It was announced that the date of the Februany meeting has been changed to the first, in order to avoid conflict with the Good Citizenship Conclave to be held in Baton Rouge. Miss Jackie Masur of Neville High School and Miss Evelene Arant of Ouachita Parish High School will represent Fort Miro Chapter at this meeting.

Delegates to the state and national Congresses of D A R were elected as follows: State — Mrs. Duncan Cook, Regent; alternate, Mrs. Shelby Meek; delegate, Mrs. R. L. Carson; alternate, Mrs. Milling Bernstein. National — Mrs. Cook; alternates, Mrs. Fred Amman and Mrs. C. E. Buckley; delegate, Mrs. Bernstein; alternates, Mrs. S. W. McLean and Mrs. Monte Cone.

Reports of the following chairmen were given: Mrs. Elmer Slagle, Americanism; Geneaological records, Mrs. Herbert Steed; Mrs. M. M. Tabb, American music; Mrs. George Hemphill, magazine; Mrs. H. M. Butler, in reporting upon National Defense, said in part, "History has proved that the control of their armed forces by the people is a vital element for freedom and independence of action. The Daughters of the American Revolution have adopted a resolution urging the President not to transfer any of our United States Armed Forces to the United Nations nor to any international command, but to rely solely upon voluntary enlistment in any United Nations Police Force.

A United Nations Force would mean a very realistic step toward world government. It would also mean that communist troops could be stationed in the United States at such headquarters, and kept there in training.

A question which follows close upon that of the establishment of a United Nations Force is one which is of paramount concern to the American people — the Constitution of the United States or the United Nations Charter which was adopted as a treaty. The recent Supreme Court decision forfeiting an American soldier to Japanese law under a treaty proves a factual basis for such fears.

One cannot possibly justify the establishment of a United Nations Peace Force with its possible authority to operate on United States soil, where those troops, with members from communistic nations, might be called upon to fight against citizens of the United States."

The regent, in the name of the chapter, thanked Mrs. Roy McCue and her hostess committee, for the afternoon's hospitality.

Mrs. W. A. Whitfield, Jr. presided at the coffee service and guests and members were served delicious refreshments by Mrs. W. K. Abington, Mrs. W. L. Alexander and Mrs. McCue.

Guests and members present were: Mrs. Lon H. Colborn, Misses Harriet Boyle, Carrie Dee Drew Frances Flanders, Eleona Brinsmade, and Edith Gunby. Mesdames Lawrence Alexander, W. A. Whitfield, Jr., M. M. Funderburk, Milling Bernstein, C. E. Slade, Sr., Stanley Wyatt, Kennedy Abington, Shelby Meek, C. P. Gray, O. C. Roddey, W. B. Inabnet, S. W. McLean, Aylmer Montgomery, Fagan Cox, Roy McCue, Ray Junod, W. E. Leigh, W. L. Husted, Sr. J. W. Stovall, Sr., H. M. Butler, M. M. Tabb, E. J. Hobgood, E. J. Brown, W. B. Matthews, Fred Ammon and Courtney Oliver.

Glaze to brush on rolls and bread before baking: slightly whipped egg white with two tablespoons of water makes a shiny light finish; and egg yolk mixed with two tablespoons of water makes a shiny golden brown finish.

Duplicate Club Meets At The Penn Hotel

The Monroe Duplicate Bridge Club met in the Green Room of the Penn Hotel on Thursday, Jan. 16, with four tables playing.

Winners for the afternoon were Mrs. C. W. Dodgen and Mrs. John Guerriero, first place; Mrs. J.D. Naremore and Mrs. V. P. Zagone, second place; Mrs. D. F. Burkhalter and Mrs. Dorothy Fuller, third place.

Other players for the games were Mrs. H. E. Milligan, Mrs. Stewart Scott, Mrs. Barney Tanguis, Mrs. Dhu Thompson, Mrs. Thomas Youngblood, Mrs. Glen Golson and guests, Mrs. Percy Sandman, Mrs. R. R. Gatlin, Jr., Mrs. Frank Shaughnessy and Mrs. Edna Shaughnessy.

What's New For Dinner This Year

By JEANNE LESEM

NEW YORK — In the brave new world of 1958, what's for dinner?

"Convenience" foods in greater abundance than ever before, said participants in a recent food forum here.

New products for the new year are designed to please every member of the family. Beginning with the diaper set, for instance, there are new strained meat combinations that copy grown-ups'food. They include ham with raisin sauce, pork with apple sauce, mint flavored lamb, chicken and rice, chicken a la king, and chicken with sweet potatoes.

For Johnnies who can read, comes now a cereal that's as readable as the outside of its box. This sugar - sprinkled, ready - to - eat oat product is called — inevitably — Alpha Bits.

For barbecue fanciers there are pellets of mixed spices to be sprinkled on hot coals on the outdoor grill or placed in an aluminum foil cup in an oven broiler. In either case, they add a spicy, hickory - smoked flavor to your grilled food.

No need to get uncomfortably close to the grill to paint food with barbecue sauce. If your aim is good, try a sauce - filled spray can that works, without foam.

MR. AND MRS. LEWIS E. ALEXANDER

Miss Dixie Johnson Is Married In Church At Winona, Mississippi

The Moore Memorial Methodist Church of Winona, Mississippi, was the setting for the wedding of Miss Dixie Lanair Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Carroll Johnson of Monroe, to Lewis Edward Alexander, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Alexander of Bay Saint Louis, Mississippi.

A profusion of candles lighted the chancel and a lavish display of creamy white gladioli, white chrysanthemums and greenery formed a semi-circle across the dais. Miss Barbara Oliver gave the pre-nuptial concert and accompanied David Moffett as he sang, "I Love Thee, Dear" and "O Promise Me."

At the first notes of the prelude the bride's entourage entered the nave, followed by the lovely bride on the arm of her father. She wore a gown of Chantilly lace and tulle over silk satin. Made in the French mode, the form fitting bodice ended in long sleeves with fine banding at the wrists. The deeply gathered skirt had an overskirt of the lace scalloped and raised at the front. A princess crown of pearls held a fingertip veil of illusion. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, the gift of the groom. Her bouquet was a Southern nosegay of Valley Lilies centered with a white orchid.

The handsomely frocked maid of honor was Luada Burnett, who wore winter-berry red velveteen fashioned with a long torso above a full skirt, and red satin slippers. A white fur bandeau was worn on her hair and she carried a tiny white muff with a spray of garnet rosebuds nestled in the fur.

The bridesmaids were costumed in dresses that were duplicates of the honored maid's, and presented a charming picture as they came down the aisle. They were Miss Janet Mahaffey, Miss Rose Stanford, Miss Georgey Carol Johnson and Christye George. Their escorts were groomsmen Bill Whitfield, Billy Williams, Carl Edwin Lewis and Sanford Sheffield. Mr. A. E. Alexander served his son as best man.

The bride's mother was attired in a grey lace sheath over taffeta. Her accessories were of a matching shade and her corsage was of pink carnations. The groom's mother, Mrs. Alexander, wore royal blue lace over taffeta with contrasting accessories and a white corsage.

A reception was held in the church parlors after the ceremony.

White tapers were placed about the reception area and arrangements of gladioli and chrysanthemums added to the beauty of the scene. The bride's table was laid with a white imported Maderia linen and held the three tiered wedding confection which was footed with fern and button 'mums. Silver candelabra holding white tapers and the silver punch bowl added to the setting. Mrs. Jack Abbott, Jr., Mrs. Chriss George, Mrs. James Laughter — all aunts of the bride — assisted with the serving.

Following the reception, the bride changed to a brown English tweed suit collared in mink. A brown velvet chapeau, trimmed in multi-colored feathers, was worn with brown accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

After a wedding trip, which will include Hot Springs, Ark., the couple will proceed to New Orleans where they will make their home at 118 Beverly Drive, Meterie.

The bride attended Mississippi Southern College at Hattiesburg where her sorority was Chi Omega. The groom is a graduate of the same school and is a Kappa Sigma.

South, 6 hearts; West, Pass;
North, Pass; East, Pass.

Opening lead: King of diamonds.

Careful management of dummy's trumps permitted South to bring home this slam contract, taken from a recent tournament.

The bidding followed regulation lines. South opened with his six card heart suit, and North responded with two clubs. South's rebid was two spades.

This may seem to be somewhat conservative, but such a bid is known as a "reverse" and describes a hand valued at about 19 points. Since partner has already shown at least 10 or 11 points by his two-over-one response, it is obvious that North couldn't very well pass, and a certain amount of bidding space is conserved by failure to jump.

North then proceeded to two no trump, and South's rebid of three spades described a five card spade suit and, therefore, by implication, a heart suit which was six cards long. North therefore returned to his partner's first suit, and South settled for six hearts.

West opened the king of diamonds, which was won in dummy with the ace. Curiously, the hand was lost at two tables by reason of hasty and thoughtless play by declarer. In one case South drew all the adverse trumps and suddenly realized that he was at the mercy of a spade break. When East failed on the third round, declarer had to lose two tricks in that suit and was down one on his contract.

At another table, declarer started immediately on the spades but ruffed the third round with the three of hearts. East overruffed and returned a trump, leaving declarer with still another spade to lose.

The successful declarer took nothing for granted when he played the hand. On the third round of spades he ruffed with the queen of trumps, returned to his hand with a club and ruffed the fourth round of spades with the three of hearts. East overruffed but that was the last trick for the defense.

Clean Sweaters Before Storing

The more a girl pays for her sweater, the bigger the problem she builds in her mind about the "right" way to launder it. In fact, she's most likely to let the dry cleaner do her worrying for her.

We launder all of our sweaters —wool, cashmere and garments made from synthetic fibers. Here are the easy steps to keeping sweaters fresh and new looking, even after several years of wear.

1. Fill machine with enough warm water to accommodate number of sweaters being washed. Do not overload washer.

2. Add Calgon and soap or detergent. Agitate until thoroughly mixed in water.

3. Add garments to tub and allow to soak 10-15 minutes, depending on the soiled condition of the sweaters.

4. Extract wash water only, eliminating spinning to prevent wrinkling.

5. Remove sweaters and fill machine with desired amount of warm water, add Calgon and agitate for a moment. Put sweaters in machine and allow to soak 5 minutes, swishing sweaters about in water conditioned with Calgon.

6. Follow with plain warm water rinse according to directions in step 5.

We like a fabric softener for sweaters, but do be sure to use Calgon to remove all traces of residue, allowing the fabric softener to do a better job.

Everyone has her own way to dry a sweater. For goodness Use three or four turkish towels to act as buffers or cushions for the sweater and tumble about five or six minutes. Spread out on towel and allow to finish drying in natural atmosphere. Line up seams, and stretch the grosgrain backing to buttons and buttonholes slightly. Collar and cuff ribbing should be close and tight.

One manufacturer of dryers has really simplified this step by providing a rack which fits inside the drum. Sweater is placed over the rack and dried without tumbling by heat or by air.

If your sweaters are not mothproof, you will be interested in one of the products, a detergent, which will wash and moth - proof a sweater.

MR. AND MRS. LEWIS E. ALEXANDER

Miss Dixie Johnson Is Married In Church At Winona, Mississippi

The Moore Memorial Methodist Church of Winona, Mississippi, was the setting for the wedding of Miss Dixie Lanair Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Carroll Johnson of Monroe, to Lewis Edward Alexander, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Alexander of Bay Saint Louis, Mississippi.

A profusion of candles lighted the chancel and a lavish display of creamy white gladioli, white chrysanthemums and greenery formed a semi-circle across the dais. Miss Barbara Oliver gave the pre-nuptial concert and accompanied David Moffett as he sang, "I Love Thee, Dear" and "O Promise Me."

At the first notes of the prelude the bride's entourage entered the nave, followed by the lovely bride on the arm of her father. She wore a gown of Chantilly lace and tulle over silk satin. Made in the French mode, the form fitting bodice ended in long sleeves with fine banding at the wrists. The deeply gathered skirt had an overskirt of the lace scalloped and raised at the front. A princess crown of pearls held a fingertip veil of illusion. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, the gift of the groom. Her bouquet was a Southern nosegay of Valley Lilies centered with a white orchid.

The handsomely frocked maid of honor was Luada Burnett, who wore winter-berry red velveteen fashioned with a long torso above a full skirt, and red satin slippers. A white fur bandeau was worn on her hair and she carried a tiny white muff with a spray of garnet rosebuds nestled in the fur.

The bridesmaids were costumed in dresses that were duplicates of the honored maid's, and presented a charming picture as they came down the aisle. They were Miss Janet Mahaffey, Miss Rose Stanford, Miss Georgey Carol Johnson and Christye George. Their escorts were groomsmen Bill Whitfield, Billy Williams, Carl Edwin Lewis and Sanford Sheffield. Mr. A. E. Alexander served his son as best man.

The bride's mother was attired in a grey lace sheath over taffeta. Her accessories were of a matching shade and her corsage was of pink carnations. The groom's mother, Mrs. Alexander, wore royal blue lace over taffeta with contrasting accessories and a white corsage.

A reception was held in the church parlors after the ceremony.

White tapers were placed about the reception area and arrangements of gladioli and chrysanthemums added to the beauty of the scene. The bride's table was laid with a white imported Maderia linen and held the three tiered wedding confection which was footed with fern and button 'mums. Silver candelabra holding white tapers and the silver punch bowl added to the setting. Mrs. Jack Abbott, Jr., Mrs. Chriss George, Mrs. James Laughter — all aunts of the bride — assisted with the serving.

Following the reception, the bride changed to a brown English tweed suit collared in mink. A brown velvet chapeau, trimmed in multi-colored feathers, was worn with brown accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

After a wedding trip, which will include Hot Springs, Ark., the couple will proceed to New Orleans where they will make their home at 118 Beverly Drive, Meterie.

The bride attended Mississippi Southern College at Hattiesburg where her sorority was Chi Omega. The groom is a graduate of the same school and is a Kappa Sigma.

Dance Honors Sandra Shutting On Birthday

Receiving at the entrance with the honoree was her cousin, Danny Gremillion, Jr.

Centered on the serving table, overlaid with a pink cutwork cloth, was a large arrangement of pink carnations interspersed with greenery, flanked by tall burning tapers. The crystal punch bowl and individual cakes, embossed in pink and green, were placed at alternate ends of the table. Mrs. Farrell Adams and Miss Mae Harper served the youngsters.

A Peek Into Schoolgirls' Future

Would you like a peek into the future of the nation's high school girls?

Want to know what is in store for them in terms of marriage, families, jobs?

Taking their clue from the past, statisticians have been able to figure out what will probably happen to any group of 100 girls over the course of a lifetime, reports the Institute of Life Insurance, citing studies of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. They've come up with this information:

Fact No. 1: Out of 100 girls, about half will be married by the age of 20. Nearly 90 per cent will be married by the time they are 30 years old.

Fact No. 2: Most women begin working at about 17 or 18, the time they are graduated from high school. Although a few girls marry immediately after finishing high school, and some others go on to college, most girls take jobs.

Fact No. 3: For a majority of girls, marriage is no longer considered a signal to quit the job right away. For example, half of all girls are married by the age of 20, but the typical young wife continues to work in order to add to family income. The extra money is often used to help save for a home of their own, or a backlog for the arrival of children. Many girls marry men who are still in college, and continue working until their husbands are graduated. One recent survey showed that about 30 per cent of all men in college were married.

Fact No. 4: Most working wives quit their jobs when the first baby arrives. Homemaking remains their only occupation at least until the youngest child is in school. Nevertheless, close to 15 per cent of women with very young children of pre-school age continue to work; the reason may be related to a husband's health, or simply because the family needs the wife's income. Some young women, on the other hand, continue to work because high-paying jobs enable them to employ a housekeeper or competent nurse.

Fact No. 5: The typical young wife has her first child when she is 22 years old. The second arrives when she is 25, and the third when she is 27. If she has two or three children she may be able to return to work in her early 30's, since her children are then of school age. If she does resume working it will be after 8 or 10 years of "idleness" at home.

Fact No. 6: The most common reason for returning to work after this period is economic. American families traditionally want the better things of life, and that includes a higher standard of living. As children grow, so do family expenses; and so does the necessity to save funds for college.

There are other reasons for returning to work. Many women would rather take a job than be left alone during the day while the children are at school. Beginning at about age 45, more and more women become widows, and for financial reasons, may have no other choice than to take a job. About 20 per cent of married women between 45 and 54 have been widowed, divorced or separated from their husbands, and well over half of these women work, for satisfactions of various kinds as well as for economic reasons.

It's clear from this study that married or single, childless or not, a girl today can expect to work at a job for many years of her life. Her best approach, it would seem, is to plan carefully on a career now — because the better her preparation, the more satisfactory job she is likely to have whenever she works.

A POT O' GOLD . . . awaits the dreamer at the end of the rainbow, and no better place could be found to pour a pot of golden coffee than at this sunny table, any homemaker's dream. In sparkling gold-and-white, the set is dainty and feminine, yet eminently practical. The durable white top trimmed in gleaming brass will not mar or scratch. Brass legs on table and chairs are sturdy and accent the brightness of the table top. Washable plastic, in a sun-flecked pattern called "gold spun," covers the foam rubber seats and backs of chairs.

Miss Barbara Rogers Becomes The Bride Of Nicholas Lange Lassiter

In one of the season's most beautiful weddings, which was solemnized Friday evening, Jan. 17, at 7:00 p.m. in the First Baptist Church in West Monroe, Miss Barbara Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Rogers, Jr., became the bride of Nickolas Lange Lassiter, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Arde Lassiter of McAlester, Okla.

Miss Ginger Henry and Mrs. Johnny Grantham who were attired in dresses of red velveteen bodice and white organdy chiffon skirts lighted the candles.

The nuptial music was presented by Mr. Bob Oldenburg, organist and Mr. Elvis Stout sang, "Because," and "Through the Years," prior to the ceremony and "The Lord's Prayer" at the close.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a white silk mist dress with re-embroidered rose point lace accenting the sabrina neckline. The very full bouffant skirt flowed gracefully into a wide chapel sweep. The skirt was encircled with a wide rose point re-embroidered lace band, jewelled with irridescent sequins and pearls. Her fingertip veil of finest illusion fell softly from a queen's crown of seed pearls and irridescent sequins. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis centered with a pure white orchid and white satin streamers and lovers knots.

Miss Nell Rogers, twin sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Her street length dress of red organdy chiffon was posed over matching taffeta. She wore a red velveteen hat adorned in net and rhinestones. Her shoes were of matching color.

The bridesmaids were Miss Hildred Adair, Mrs. Harold Bolton, Miss Betty Jo Roach, Mrs. Elvis Stout, all of Monroe and Mrs. Shelby Morse Jr. of Winnsboro. They were dressed identical to the maid of honor. They carried a red chiffon steroform heart encircled with white feathered mums.

Groomsmen and ushers were Mrs. Wade Williams, George Luffey, Mr. Harold Bolton, all of Monroe, Mr. William Hindmon of Bastrop, and Mr. Tony Peccon of Uniontown, Pa.

Mrs. Lassiter was attired in a beige tiered lace over darker taffeta with chiffon panels in back. She wore a white jeweled hat and beige shoes. She wore an orchid corsage at her shoulder.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church banquet hall hosted by the parents of the bride. Decorations carried out the red and white color of the wedding.

In the center was the traditional square tiered white wedding cake with red rose buds and white lilies of the valley. Presiding at the cake were Mrs. Malcolm LeFerve assisted by Miss Molly Cobb.

The other table similarly adorned held a centerpiece of white chrysanthemums with white tapers. At each end of the table was a punch bowl. Alternating at the crystal punch bowl were Mrs. R. G. Taylor, Mrs. Hugh Tolbert, and Mrs. Lonnie Blake. Others assisting in serving were Mrs. James Poindexter, Mrs. Charles Frazier, Mrs. Don Smothers, Miss Fay Parker, Miss Shirley Harvey, Mrs. Bob Oldenburg.

Later in the evening the bride changed into a light blue wool suit. Her accessories were black and white. After a wedding trip to the Gulf Coast, the couple will be at home at 611½ South 2nd, in Monroe.

Out of town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Jones, Linda and Susan of Vicksburg, Mississippi; Miss Molly Cobb of Jackson, Mississippi; Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Hindmon, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Smith, and Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Lamb of Bastrop; Mr. and Mrs. Don Smothers, of Jackson, La.; Mrs. Darrell Clement of St. Louis, Missouri; Mr. and Mrs. Bart Carlton of Lake Charles, La.; Mr. and Mrs. Laqrance Spencer of Lamesa, Texas; Mr. James Bilberry of McGhee, Arkansas; Mr. Dan Todd of Minden, La.; Mr. and Mrs. James Wetsel and Nancy of Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. Pete Norgress of Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Reagan of Baskin, Mr. Andrew Yuratich, Mr. and Mrs. A. New Coats Run Circles Around The Sack Dress

By MARY PRIME

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (UP) — When it comes to glamor, spring coats run circles around the straight-lined sack dresses.

Seems that the starker the chemise underneath, the more dramatic the coat on top—from jewels for daytime tweeds to pastel furs for evening silks.

Designers are cutting loose with extravagant fabrics, colors, and trim to counter-act the slim, straight lines of the chemise, said firms represented in the semi-annual showing of 30 top collections, sponsored by the couture group of the New York Dress Institute.

"Anything goes in coats — if it looks right," said Irving Bader of Originala, a leading coat manufacturer.

The firm's "no restrictions" rule showed up in fur-trimmed coats fleece, turquoise mink on matching fleece, and white mink on white cashmere.

"Women were shocked by them at first, but now they lov 'em," said Bader.

Originala also went in for glittering jewels on tweed coats, such as one grey tweed dusted with tiny rhinestones.

Dance Honors Sandra Shutting On Birthday

Receiving at the entrance with the honoree was her cousin, Danny Gremillion, Jr.

Centered on the serving table, overlaid with a pink cutwork cloth, was a large arrangement of pink carnations interspersed with greenery, flanked by tall burning tapers. The crystal punch bowl and individual cakes, embossed in pink and green, were placed at alternate ends of the table. Mrs. Farrell Adams and Miss Mae Harper served the youngsters.

Make a garden plan in preparation for the seed and nursery catalogs. New varieties get the publicity and are certainly worth trying, but they should be compared in every case with well known standbys.

A Peek Into Schoolgirls' Future

Would you like a peek into the future of the nation's high school girls?

Want to know what is in store for them in terms of marriage, families, jobs?

Taking their clue from the past, statisticians have been able to figure out what will probably happen to any group of 100 girls over the course of a lifetime, reports the Institute of Life Insurance, citing studies of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. They've come up with this information:

Fact No. 1: Out of 100 girls, about half will be married by the age of 20. Nearly 90 per cent will be married by the time they are 30 years old.

Fact No. 2: Most women begin working at about 17 or 18, the time they are graduated from high school. Although a few girls marry immediately after finishing high school, and some others go on to college, most girls take jobs.

Fact No. 3: For a majority of girls, marriage is no longer considered a signal to quit the job right away. For example, half of all girls are married by the age of 20, but the typical young wife continues to work in order to add to family income. The extra money is often used to help save for a home of their own, or a backlog for the arrival of children. Many girls marry men who are still in college, and continue working until their husbands are graduated. One recent survey showed that about 30 per cent of all men in college were married.

Fact No. 4: Most working wives quit their jobs when the first baby arrives. Homemaking remains their only occupation at least until the youngest child is in school. Nevertheless, close to 15 per cent of women with very young children of pre-school age continue to work; the reason may be related to a husband's health, or simply because the family needs the wife's income. Some young women, on the other hand, continue to work because high-paying jobs enable them to employ a housekeeper or competent nurse.

Fact No. 5: The typical young wife has her first child when she is 22 years old. The second arrives when she is 25, and the third when she is 27. If she has two or three children she may be able to return to work in her early 30's, since her children are then of school age. If she does resume working it will be after 8 or 10 years of "idleness" at home.

Fact No. 6: The most common reason for returning to work after this period is economic. American families traditionally want the better things of life, and that includes a higher standard of living. As children grow, so do family expenses; and so does the necessity to save funds for college.

There are other reasons for returning to work. Many women would rather take a job than be left alone during the day while the children are at school. Beginning at about age 45, more and more women become widows, and for financial reasons, may have no other choice than to take a job. About 20 per cent of married women between 45 and 54 have been widowed, divorced or separated from their husbands, and well over half of these women work, for satisfactions of various kinds as well as for economic reasons.

It's clear from this study that married or single, childless or not, a girl today can expect to work at a job for many years of her life. Her best approach, it would seem, is to plan carefully on a career now — because the better her preparation, the more satisfactory job she is likely to have whenever she works.

Brass legs on table and chairs are sturdy and accent the brightness of the table top. Washable plastic, in a sun-flecked pattern called "gold spun," covers the foam rubber seats and backs of chairs.

Miss Barbara Rogers Becomes The Bride Of Nicholas Lange Lassiter

In one of the season's most beautiful weddings, which was solemnized Friday evening, Jan. 17, at 7:00 p.m. in the First Baptist Church in West Monroe, Miss Barbara Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Rogers, Jr., became the bride of Nickolas Lange Lassiter, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Arde Lassiter of McAlester, Okla.

Miss Ginger Henry and Mrs. Johnny Grantham who were attired in dresses of red velveteen bodice and white organdy chiffon skirts lighted the candles.

The nuptial music was presented by Mr. Bob Oldenburg, organist and Mr. Elvis Stout sang, "Because," and "Through the Years," prior to the ceremony and "The Lord's Prayer" at the close.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a white silk mist dress with re-embroidered rose point lace accenting the sabrina neckline. The very full bouffant skirt flowed gracefully into a wide chapel sweep. The skirt was encircled with a wide rose point re-embroidered lace band, jewelled with irridescent sequins and pearls. Her fingertip veil of finest illusion fell softly from a queen's crown of seed pearls and irridescent sequins. She carried a bouquet of stephanotis centered with a pure white orchid and white satin streamers and lovers knots.

Miss Nell Rogers, twin sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Her street length dress of red organdy chiffon was posed over matching taffeta. She wore a red velveteen hat adorned in net and rhinestones. Her shoes were of matching color.

The bridesmaids were Miss Hildred Adair, Mrs. Harold Bolton, Miss Betty Jo Roach, Mrs. Elvis Stout, all of Monroe and Mrs. Shelby Morse Jr. of Winnsboro. They were dressed identical to the maid of honor. They carried a red chiffon steroform heart encircled with white feathered mums.

Groomsmen and ushers were Mrs. Wade Williams, George Luffey, Mr. Harold Bolton, all of Monroe, Mr. William Hindmon of Bastrop, and Mr. Tony Peccon of Uniontown, Pa.

Mrs. Lassiter was attired in a beige tiered lace over darker taffeta with chiffon panels in back. She wore a white jeweled hat and beige shoes. She wore an orchid corsage at her shoulder.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church banquet hall hosted by the parents of the bride. Decorations carried out the red and white color of the wedding.

In the center was the traditional square tiered white wedding cake with red rose buds and white lilies of the valley. Presiding at the cake were Mrs. Malcolm LeFerve assisted by Miss Molly Cobb.

The other table similarly adorned held a centerpiece of white chrysanthemums with white tapers. At each end of the table was a punch bowl. Alternating at the crystal punch bowl were Mrs. R. G. Taylor, Mrs. Hugh Tolbert, and Mrs. Lonnie Blake. Others assisting in serving were Mrs. James Poindexter, Mrs. Charles Frazier, Mrs. Don Smothers, Miss Fay Parker, Miss Shirley Harvey, Mrs. Bob Oldenburg.

Later in the evening the bride changed into a light blue wool suit. Her accessories were black and white. After a wedding trip to the Gulf Coast, the couple will be at home at 611½ South 2nd, in Monroe.

Out of town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Jones, Linda and Susan of Vicksburg, Mississippi; Miss Molly Cobb of Jackson, Mississippi; Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Hindmon, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Smith, and Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Lamb of Bastrop; Mr. and Mrs. Don Smothers, of Jackson, La.; Mrs. Darrell Clement of St. Louis, Missouri; Mr. and Mrs. Bart Carlton of Lake Charles, La.; Mr. and Mrs. Laqrance Spencer of Lamesa, Texas; Mr. James Bilberry of McGhee, Arkansas; Mr. Dan Todd of Minden, La.; Mr. and Mrs. James Wetsel and Nancy of Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. Pete Norgress of Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. Ed Reagan of Baskin, Mr. Andrew Yuratich, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Young of New Orleans, La., Mr. and Mrs. Michael Brown of Lake Providence,

Mr. and Mrs. Shelby Morse and Mr. and Mrs. Shelby Morse, Jr., of Winnsboro; Mr. and Mrs. John Winters of Wisner, La.; Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Barnes of Sterlington and Mr. Lyle Matkins also of Sterlington; Mr. Bernard Herron of Mer Rouge and Mr. and Mrs. William Arde Lassiter of McAlester, Oklahoma.

New Coats Run Circles Around The Sack Dress

By MARY PRIME

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (UP) — When it comes to glamor, spring coats run circles around the straight-lined sack dresses.

Seems that the starker the chemise underneath, the more dramatic the coat on top—from jewels for daytime tweeds to pastel furs for evening silks.

Designers are cutting loose with extravagant fabrics, colors, and trim to counter-act the slim, straight lines of the chemise, said firms represented in the semi-annual showing of 30 top collections, sponsored by the couture group of the New York Dress Institute.

"Anything goes in coats — if it looks right," said Irving Bader of Originala, a leading coat manufacturer.

The firm's "no restrictions" rule showed up in fur-trimmed coats fleece, turquoise mink on matching fleece, and white mink on white cashmere.

"Women were shocked by them at first, but now they lov 'em," said Bader.

Originala also went in for glittering jewels on tweed coats, such as one grey tweed dusted with tiny rhinestones.

THE HOME SHIFT

Landscaping To Be Discussed

By MILDRED SWIFT

There's one date that men and women gardeners in this area want to reserve — that's Thursday, Feb. 20. Mom (and Dad), plan to stay all day. You'll never regret it. You'll love every minute of the landscape development school. This will be taught by Miss Winona Chauffe, Dr. Peevy, Mr. Cox and Mr. Cockerham, specialists with LSU extension. Circle the date on your calendar. More information will be given later.

Planting Suggestions

While avocados are in the markets, maybe you'd like to plant one of the seed. They make lovely tropical - looking house plants. You can plant them in the garden but the winter cold will destroy them. First remove the large seed from the fleshy fruit. Plant immediately with the broad end down.

January and February are rose planting months. Be sure you get those rose beds ready ahead of time. Almost any kind of good rose bushes you'll want can be bought locally. Don't be fooled by "ads" on "cheap roses." Buy a No. 1 plant with at least three stout canes. It's false economy to buy bushes of lesser grades. Call FA 3-2251 and ask for our rose bulletin. This will give you any information you'll need on rose culture.

It is not too late to put out pansy and calendula plants. Both are hardy and take the cold standing up. Calendula is not so hardy as the pansy, but then the plants are so inexpensive it's worthwhile taking a chance on early blooms. I've seen calendulas blooming on Christmas Day in Ouachita parish.

Gladioli

February is the recommended month for planting glads, so get in your bulb orders early. Here are varieties you'll find locally: Burma, deep ruffled rose; Elizabeth the Queen, rose lavender; Florence Nightingale, very fine white; Hawk Eye Red, bright red with darker spots; Hopman Glory, a fine yellow; Margaret Beaton, pure white with red spots; Phantom Beauty, shell pink; Sans Souci, large tall scarlet; Sherwood, purple; Spic and Span, ruffled deep pink; Spotlight, deep yellow with red spots; Tivoli, rose pink; Early White; Mabel Violet; Fermament, lavender; Elan, Salmon; Philips Memory, pink; High Summer, bright scarlet, Orange Beauty, orange. Mixed bulbs, bought by the hundred run cheaper, if you're not particular about mixing colors.

Other Gardening

We we have a warm spell during the winter months, sometimes a crop of aphids will show up. The minute you see these pests — get them. Spray, using nicotine, lindane or other recommended insecticide that is a contact poison.

Be sure to get those crepe myrtles pruned, cutting all the little twigs up and down the branches. Leave the large limbs if you want a shrub type plant. If you want a tree crepe myrtle, cut off all limbs except the top leader. In either case, your blooms will be large handsome panicales instead of small ones. Of course if you have very large trees you can't climb to the top to trim. Even with a good ladder it would be an endless task. Some gardeners like the gnarled scars produced by cutting the trees back every year after they are very old. Some think this a hideous disfigurement. Well, there's nothing like varied tastes to avoid monotony in this world.

It's Easy

Yes, it's easy to make a jacket from a sweat shirt as Shirlene Zappa from Tallulah showed us on Open House. First she cut the ribbed band from the bottom, being careful to cut in the little groove. Then Shirlene cut the shirt open down the center front and faced the entire jacket all around neck, front, bottom with bias tape. You know how to put on a facing.

Then the decoration began. The agent used rows of large metallic ric-rac and small ric-rac around the neck and on each side of the front. She suggested narrow ornamental braids, soutache, or any other decoration you like. Then because sweat shirts usually hang off the shoulder, Shirlene turned the shirt to the wrong side and put a tuck across the shoulder, just above the armhole. That's all and it was really "slick."

If the new nylon hose you bought extend a little beyond your toes when you put them on, that's fine — they'll be more comfortable and wear better that way. We should always buy our hose for the occasion. For street and town wear, you probably will consider 51 gauge and 30 denier. As for dress wear, 60 gauge, 15 denier will look flattering. For formal wear you will want the sheerest to give special attention to your legs, and 66 gauge, 10 denier will do exactly that for you.

By the way — have you been grumbling lately about the inferior quality of stockings? It's not the stockings. It's us women. We demand the sheerest hose. If you're unhappy you can go back to the 30 denier weight of ten years ago. They'll wear like iron, but oh, how they look!

Danger

Our specialists and your electrician say, "blowing fuses, flickering lights and shrinking TV pictures, (where additional electrical appliances are turned on) are all signs that your circuits are overloaded. Never use heaver than 15 ampere fuses unless your circuits are built to handle them and never use a coin to establish contact after you have blown a fuse."

If your house needs additional wiring, it will pay you to take care of this need. All your appliances will work more efficiently and probably use less current to do the same work.

Announcements

Your Open House programs for next week are: Monday, Nancy Buffalo from St. Joseph will show us jewelry to flatter face and figure; Tuesday, Tillie Talor from Lake Providence will cover a pillow; Wednesday, John Wright from Louisiana Tech will give us a lesson on flower arrangements; Thursday, Anne Baxter from United Gas will bring you some of her choice recipes; Friday, Marketing with Mildred.

I'm leaving today for New Orleans, guest of Louisiana Dairy Products Association. I'll bring you back some good milk facts.

See you next Sunday.

EXTENSION NEWS AND VIEWS

Frozen Food Tips Given

By AUDREY DAWSON

Gardening

Our garden specialist suggests that we take inventory of our home surroundings this month in order to do a better job next month and during our planting months. Several suggestions should be considered in evaluating the landscape plan. Are you getting full use of your home grounds, or do large plants cover most of the space, leaving little or none your family to live in and enjoy? Or, on the other hand, do your grounds seem rather bare?

Remember when you plan, consider upkeep — keep your design simple. Landscape architects make a business of planning home grounds, and if the job is a big one, it would be wise to obtain the services of such professionals. However, if your budget is such that you fall into the "do-it-yourself class" you can get excellent ideas of what and where to plant by closely observing other well landscaped properties. We have an extension bulletin, which would be most helpful to you if you are in the do-it-yourself class, "Plan Landscapes for the Family" — call FA 3-2251 for a copy. The well landscaped home increases the property value 9-12 per cent.

Quick Dumplings

1 large fryer or hen, 1 ½ cup flour; ¼ teaspoon salt; 3 teaspoons baking powder; ¾ cup milk or water and 2 tablespoons butter. Cut chicken into pieces and boil until tender, season with salt and pepper.

For dumplings, mix and sift dry ingredients. Stir in milk and beat to a batter. Drop by teaspoons at a time on top of the pieces of chicken. Cover quickly and boil 10-15 minutes. Remove lid and add butter.

Research On Freezing

In recent years there has been considerable research on freezing prepared and precooked foods. The following information is of interest to homemakers. Work at Iowa State College indicates that synthetic vanilla may cause off flavor in frozen cakes and batters which can be avoided by use of pure extract.

True sponge cakes are not satisfactory when frozen in the batter state because of their high egg yolk content. The batter breaks during freezer storage and the flavor deteriorates rapidly. When properly wrapped to avoid moisture loss, baked sponge cakes remain in excellent condition for three or four months in the freezer.

Angel food cakes which are sponge cakes leavened with whites of egg only are satisfactorily frozen in the batter state as well as after baking. Freeze in baking pan and do not allow to thaw before baking.

Frozen batters should be baked at same temperature as fresh batters, but require about ten minutes longer.

Shortening

Oregon State College indicates that a hydrogenated shortening is preferable to butter or lard for cake batters for freezing.

Fruit pies are well suited to freezing before or after baking. The bottom crusts of pies baked tend to become soggy somewhat after freezer storage and the fresh fruit flavor is not retained so well as when pies are frozen ready to bake.

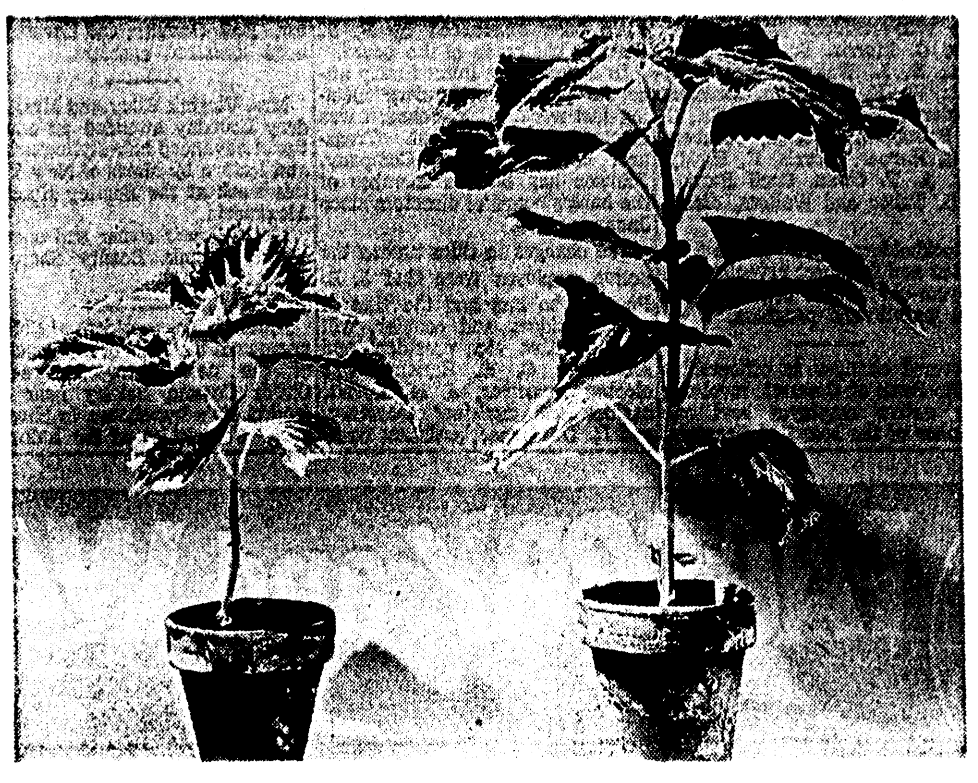
To prevent discoloration in apple and peach pie, use ⅛ teaspoon of ascorbic acid crystals per pie mixed with the sugar before adding to fruit. If you do not have ascorbic acid, two tablespoons of lemon juice per pie will give some protection against discoloration.

New Agent

The Ouachita Parish Home Demonstration Council will meet Jan. 24 at 10 a.m. in the Agricultural Auditorium. The score sheet committee will discuss plans for the Best Club contest for this year and will distribute the material at this meeting. Be sure that your club is represented.

A Thought

In going over some files recently, I found a statement and I decided it could be a real challenge for us all for this New Year. It was: "We are as big as the things that make us mad." (Prochnow). Apparently this writer had a clear sense of mental poise. Should we resolve to be big enough so that "things" will not "make us mad" we will see our example bringing forth similar resolves from others. Mental poise is contagious, and could set a challenging tempo for 1958.



BEFORE AND AFTER—The popular coleus plant responds to the growth stimulant, gibberellic acid. Plants above were photographed when they were eight weeks old. The large coleus was sprayed at four weeks with the acid and a growth response was noted in one week.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Show By Sprig And Twig Club

By MARY M. JARDINE

Mrs. Monroe S. Trimble and Mrs. O. K. Davis combined their talents in designing a very smart composition. The color scheme was green and yellow. The container was a rectangular bowl of soft tan. The asymetrical design was created of four tall pieces of bamboo, cut in different lengths, deep green aspidistra leaves were used in the background with lighter yellow - green diffenbachia leaves to emphasize the line. Diffenbachia leaves were furled low in the design to unify the container and material. The asymetrical pattern was completed with "flowers" cut from the acorn squash. These were graduated in size with the larger "flowers" low in the design. These were impaled on florist's picks to give the needed height. The squash flowers were very effective. Green on the outside and yellow - orange on the inside, the seeds representing stamens of a flower. They were cut in a slightly cup shape with pointed tips to represent the petals of a flower. Variegated boxwood of yellow and green provided excellent transition material. Croton leaves were placed on the left to complete the design.

Mrs. J. W. Bailey and Mrs. J. A. Coleman designed a very lovely arrangement featuring camellias and quince. For their diagonal design they selected a black vase set on a round black stand. The graceful diagonal line was achieved by placements of glossy abelia foliage. Sprays of red quince enhanced the line. Small buds and blooms of variegated Governor Mouton camellias were used as a center of interest. This lovely design, suitable for a large living room table, was staged against a soft gray background.

Red Camellias

We feel so fortunate to have any camellia blooms to show in the center at this time due to the arbupt changes in the weather. Mrs. Scott Hamilton, president of Monroe Garden Club, has announced the Little Camellia Show to be held on Feb. 10 at St. Paul's Methodist Church. The horticulture section is open to the public. We hope that all camellia growers will exhibit in this show. There will be classes of single blooms of named varieties and collections of five named varieties.

A charming note from Caroline Dormon advises that the long awaited "Flowers Native to the Deep South" will be off the press early in March. One of the beautiful color prints from Miss Dormon's book has recently been on display at the Children's Book Shop. Miss Dormon also relates that Dr. Lawrence of the Bailey Hortorium has read and checked her text for accuracy and authenticity. A lovely wild flower Collinsia or "Blue Eyed Mary," a native to the western states has been identified by Miss Dormon as growing in Louisiana. This is a dainty spike of blue flowers in two shades of blue. We eagerly await arrival of this delightful book.

CAREFUL SHOPPERS IN '58

New-home buyers in 1958 will be the most careful shoppers since the end of World War II, on the lookout for signs of quality construction. Use of such quality materials as quarry and ceramic tile in bathrooms and kitchens will play an increasingly important role in convincing the prospective home buyer to buy.

MONOTONY RELIEVED

Box-like monotony of a rectangular frame house can be relieved with a few simple additions. A carport or breezeway, coupled with a quarry tile terrace, can break the rigid lines and give added dimension. Judicious use of shrubbery, such as arbor vitae flanking the doors and corners, breaks the monotony of straight lines.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Plan Flowers In Shady Spots

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

There are a lot of good shade-loving plants that will liven up your beds and plantings of azaleas and camellias after these two shrubs have finished blooming in winter and spring. There is no reason for shady places to be without bloom.

First, let us extend our azalea bloom with the very late flowering macrantha azaleas. These low evergreen shrubs are being developed into several different shades of pink now. The original one was a bright salmon pink. It blooms in very late spring and on into the summer months. If kept watered, it will continue to flower for weeks right in the summer. The macrantha azaleas are not in every catalogue, but they are worth hunting for.

Daylilies will bloom in medium shade, and so will the big bulbs with lily - like flowers called crinums. The striped ones are called "milk - and - wine - lilies." Both day - lily foliage and crinum foliage are handsome in contrast to other plants in a shady garden. Another plant with beautiful foliage is the plant our grandmothers called "August - lilies." You will find these in perennial catalogues as Hosta or Funkia. We don't know why grandma planted them in tubs and took them into her pit in winter because they do not need it — they are perfectly hardy in the ground. Maybe she had been reading northern books about gardening!

For spring bloom in the partly shaded garden or woods, there are lots of perennials that we are trying to grow in full sun and killing, anyway. They will last longer in the shade. Columbine, bleeding heart, Japanese anemones and that gorgeous light yellow daisy called leopard's - bane (Doronicum) all like the shade. Even the big perennial kind of anchusa will flower in some shade. For that dead time in late summer, plant some of the new named kinds of physostegia — especially the white one, and order right away the bulbs of the tall white Formosa lilies and the giant Cape hyacinth (Galtonia). Some bone meal and one third leaf mold in the soil for the lilies will make them happy. Your columnist grew some twelve feet high! Do not plant either the lilies or the Cape hyacinth in a wet place. The lilies should be planted soon after they come, but the Cape hyacinths can wait till warm weather.

Annual larkspur will come up and grow during the winter months and flower before the shade gets too dense. We can liven up the azalea garden with red spider - lilies in September or earlier if you have the July kind. Sternbergias will give you yellow crocus - like blossoms in early September, and colchicums will bloom at about the same time and later. All these bulbs will be available in mid - summer and later. In this short space, we have given only a few hints of what can be done with a shady garden. Many plants will grow there in our southern states where there is plenty of sun to spare.

BE A GOOD MIXER

In mixing or thinning paints, remember that oil and water will not mix. Oil-base paint can't be mixed with latex paint. For thinning oil-base paint, turpentine or mineral spirits are used. Rubber base paint (latex) takes water.

USES FOR OLD FRAMES

Old picture frames have many uses. They can be made into wall shadow boxes, for example. And if the frame is large enough, it can be converted into a coffee table with the addition of a leg at each corner, a base and a glass top.

Keep Appliances Clean, Gleaming For Use, Show

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Americans have gone happy for portable cooking appliances.

Bachelor and benedict, housewife and maiden lady are finding units such as electric fry pans, cookers, broilers, grills, griddles, indispensable to a busy life. The delightful advantage of the portable broiler unit, for instance, is that it is so much easier to clean than the stove. "Look, Mom, one hand" applies to the cleaning of the broiler tray and grill, whereas a good oven cleaning may take a couple of hours.

These table top appliances exhibited along with the best chinaware and silver must, however, be kept gleaming and immaculate. Fortunately, that is not a big chore.

Manufactures of portable electrical equipment have developed some hints to keep appliances in tip-top shape, because as we take on a greater number of smaller appliances, we are likely to go service man mad, also. They advise:

1. Check your warranty and instruction book to determine if appliance can be immersed in wash water. Many appliances cannot be plunged into water without damaging the electrical equipment. Keep warranties and direction books in a sturdy envelope in a safe and handy place.

2. It's a good idea to keep these units on a tray. Line it with absorbent mat of paper toweling. An electric toaster usually sprinkles crumbs beneath it, and splatters and dribbles from fry-pans or waffle irons can be a nuisance if not caught at once. This precaution protects a table or buffet surface from food splatters or spots also.

3. Sandwich grills and pancake griddles are either permanently treated at the factory or greased only before the first use. After the appliance has been treated, it needs only wiping with a crumpled paper towel after each using. Manufacturers also recommend the use of a pastry brush or small soft paint brush to remove crumbs from toasters and waffle grids. Clean the appliance while it is still warm.

4. A sniff of rancid grease can ruin a delicate dish. Wipe out popcorn poppers and keep fat fryers with absorbant paper towels after every use. Scour frequently with fine cleanser on crumpled dampened towel. New paper towels have wet strength that keep them firm, even when damp. If cooking several batches of popcorn, clean the popper in between with the crumpled paper towel to remove kernels and salt particles before adding fresh corn.

5. Electric coffee makers must be kept scrupulously clean for best results. See if a special cleaner is made for your make of appliance. A quick, safe method of cleaning is this one in lieu of another: Fill pot ¾ full of water, add 1 tablespoon of powdered water conditioner. Simmer for 15 minutes, then rinse with clear hot water. Dry with paper towel. The same formula may be used with your deep fryer or cooker.

Most people who own small electrical appliances do not have the proper storage space. These items should be handy to be useful, and sometimes there is not the shelf or counter space available. A portable serving cart with electrical outlet makes a handy storage and operating center for table top appliances.

WEATHER - CONDITIONED HOME

Here are some tips on weather-conditioning your new home: Face large window areas south, using a solar roof overhang that blocks the hot summer sun but permits winter rays to enter. Place bedrooms on the north and east exposures for cooler summer sleeping comfort. Use an attached garage as a windbreaker. Make the window areas facing cold winter winds smaller than those facing to the south.

THE HOME SHIFT

Landscaping To Be Discussed

By MILDRED SWIFT

There's one date that men and women gardeners in this area want to reserve — that's Thursday, Feb. 20. Mom (and Dad), plan to stay all day. You'll never regret it. You'll love every minute of the landscape development school. This will be taught by Miss Winona Chauffe, Dr. Peevy, Mr. Cox and Mr. Cockerham, specialists with LSU extension. Circle the date on your calendar. More information will be given later.

Planting Suggestions

While avocados are in the markets, maybe you'd like to plant one of the seed. They make lovely tropical - looking house plants. You can plant them in the garden but the winter cold will destroy them. First remove the large seed from the fleshy fruit. Plant immediately with the broad end down.

January and February are rose planting months. Be sure you get those rose beds ready ahead of time. Almost any kind of good rose bushes you'll want can be bought locally. Don't be fooled by "ads" on "cheap roses." Buy a No. 1 plant with at least three stout canes. It's false economy to buy bushes of lesser grades. Call FA 3-2251 and ask for our rose bulletin. This will give you any information you'll need on rose culture.

It is not too late to put out pansy and calendula plants. Both are hardy and take the cold standing up. Calendula is not so hardy as the pansy, but then the plants are so inexpensive it's worthwhile taking a chance on early blooms. I've seen calendulas blooming on Christmas Day in Ouachita parish.

Gladioli

February is the recommended month for planting glads, so get in your bulb orders early. Here are varieties you'll find locally: Burma, deep ruffled rose; Elizabeth the Queen, rose lavender; Florence Nightingale, very fine white; Hawk Eye Red, bright red with darker spots; Hopman Glory, a fine yellow; Margaret Beaton, pure white with red spots; Phantom Beauty, shell pink; Sans Souci, large tall scarlet; Sherwood, purple; Spic and Span, ruffled deep pink; Spotlight, deep yellow with red spots; Tivoli, rose pink; Early White; Mabel Violet; Fermament, lavender; Elan, Salmon; Philips Memory, pink; High Summer, bright scarlet, Orange Beauty, orange. Mixed bulbs, bought by the hundred run cheaper, if you're not particular about mixing colors.

Other Gardening

We we have a warm spell during the winter months, sometimes a crop of aphids will show up. The minute you see these pests — get them. Spray, using nicotine, lindane or other recommended insecticide that is a contact poison.

Be sure to get those crepe myrtles pruned, cutting all the little twigs up and down the branches. Leave the large limbs if you want a shrub type plant. If you want a tree crepe myrtle, cut off all limbs except the top leader. In either case, your blooms will be large handsome panicales instead of small ones. Of course if you have very large trees you can't climb to the top to trim. Even with a good ladder it would be an endless task. Some gardeners like the gnarled scars produced by cutting the trees back every year after they are very old. Some think this a hideous disfigurement. Well, there's nothing like varied tastes to avoid monotony in this world.

It's Easy

Yes, it's easy to make a jacket from a sweat shirt as Shirlene Zappa from Tallulah showed us on Open House. First she cut the ribbed band from the bottom, being careful to cut in the little groove. Then Shirlene cut the shirt open down the center front and faced the entire jacket all around neck, front, bottom with bias tape. You know how to put on a facing.

Then the decoration began. The agent used rows of large metallic ric-rac and small ric-rac around the neck and on each side of the front. She suggested narrow ornamental braids, soutache, or any other decoration you like. Then because sweat shirts usually hang off the shoulder, Shirlene turned the shirt to the wrong side and put a tuck across the shoulder, just above the armhole. That's all and it was really "slick."

If the new nylon hose you bought extend a little beyond your toes when you put them on, that's fine — they'll be more comfortable and wear better that way. We should always buy our hose for the occasion. For street and town wear, you probably will consider 51 gauge and 30 denier. As for dress wear, 60 gauge, 15 denier will look flattering. For formal wear you will want the sheerest to give special attention to your legs, and 66 gauge, 10 denier will do exactly that for you.

By the way — have you been grumbling lately about the inferior quality of stockings? It's not the stockings. It's us women. We demand the sheerest hose. If you're unhappy you can go back to the 30 denier weight of ten years ago. They'll wear like iron, but oh, how they look!

Danger

Our specialists and your electrician say, "blowing fuses, flickering lights and shrinking TV pictures, (where additional electrical appliances are turned on) are all signs that your circuits are overloaded. Never use heaver than 15 ampere fuses unless your circuits are built to handle them and never use a coin to establish contact after you have blown a fuse."

If your house needs additional wiring, it will pay you to take care of this need. All your appliances will work more efficiently and probably use less current to do the same work.

Announcements

Your Open House programs for next week are: Monday, Nancy Buffalo from St. Joseph will show us jewelry to flatter face and figure; Tuesday, Tillie Talor from Lake Providence will cover a pillow; Wednesday, John Wright from Louisiana Tech will give us a lesson on flower arrangements; Thursday, Anne Baxter from United Gas will bring you some of her choice recipes; Friday, Marketing with Mildred.

I'm leaving today for New Orleans, guest of Louisiana Dairy Products Association. I'll bring you back some good milk facts.

See you next Sunday.

EXTENSION NEWS AND VIEWS

Frozen Food Tips Given

By AUDREY DAWSON

Gardening

Our garden specialist suggests that we take inventory of our home surroundings this month in order to do a better job next month and during our planting months. Several suggestions should be considered in evaluating the landscape plan. Are you getting full use of your home grounds, or do large plants cover most of the space, leaving little or none your family to live in and enjoy? Or, on the other hand, do your grounds seem rather bare?

Remember when you plan, consider upkeep — keep your design simple. Landscape architects make a business of planning home grounds, and if the job is a big one, it would be wise to obtain the services of such professionals. However, if your budget is such that you fall into the "do-it-yourself class" you can get excellent ideas of what and where to plant by closely observing other well landscaped properties. We have an extension bulletin, which would be most helpful to you if you are in the do-it-yourself class, "Plan Landscapes for the Family" — call FA 3-2251 for a copy. The well landscaped home increases the property value 9-12 per cent.

Quick Dumplings

1 large fryer or hen, 1 ½ cup flour; ¼ teaspoon salt; 3 teaspoons baking powder; ¾ cup milk or water and 2 tablespoons butter. Cut chicken into pieces and boil until tender, season with salt and pepper.

For dumplings, mix and sift dry ingredients. Stir in milk and beat to a batter. Drop by teaspoons at a time on top of the pieces of chicken. Cover quickly and boil 10-15 minutes. Remove lid and add butter.

Research On Freezing

In recent years there has been considerable research on freezing prepared and precooked foods. The following information is of interest to homemakers. Work at Iowa State College indicates that synthetic vanilla may cause off flavor in frozen cakes and batters which can be avoided by use of pure extract.

True sponge cakes are not satisfactory when frozen in the batter state because of their high egg yolk content. The batter breaks during freezer storage and the flavor deteriorates rapidly. When properly wrapped to avoid moisture loss, baked sponge cakes remain in excellent condition for three or four months in the freezer.

Angel food cakes which are sponge cakes leavened with whites of egg only are satisfactorily frozen in the batter state as well as after baking. Freeze in baking pan and do not allow to thaw before baking.

Frozen batters should be baked at same temperature as fresh batters, but require about ten minutes longer.

Shortening

Oregon State College indicates that a hydrogenated shortening is preferable to butter or lard for cake batters for freezing.

Fruit pies are well suited to freezing before or after baking. The bottom crusts of pies baked tend to become soggy somewhat after freezer storage and the fresh fruit flavor is not retained so well as when pies are frozen ready to bake.

To prevent discoloration in apple and peach pie, use ⅛ teaspoon of ascorbic acid crystals per pie mixed with the sugar before adding to fruit. If you do not have ascorbic acid, two tablespoons of lemon juice per pie will give some protection against discoloration.

New Agent

The Ouachita Parish Home Demonstration Council will meet Jan. 24 at 10 a.m. in the Agricultural Auditorium. The score sheet committee will discuss plans for the Best Club contest for this year and will distribute the material at this meeting. Be sure that your club is represented.

A Thought

In going over some files recently, I found a statement and I decided it could be a real challenge for us all for this New Year. It was: "We are as big as the things that make us mad." (Prochnow). Apparently this writer had a clear sense of mental poise. Should we resolve to be big enough so that "things" will not "make us mad" we will see our example bringing forth similar resolves from others. Mental poise is contagious, and could set a challenging tempo for 1958.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Show By Sprig And Twig Club

By MARY M. JARDINE

Mrs. Monroe S. Trimble and Mrs. O. K. Davis combined their talents in designing a very smart composition. The color scheme was green and yellow. The container was a rectangular bowl of soft tan. The asymetrical design was created of four tall pieces of bamboo, cut in different lengths, deep green aspidistra leaves were used in the background with lighter yellow - green diffenbachia leaves to emphasize the line. Diffenbachia leaves were furled low in the design to unify the container and material. The asymetrical pattern was completed with "flowers" cut from the acorn squash. These were graduated in size with the larger "flowers" low in the design. These were impaled on florist's picks to give the needed height. The squash flowers were very effective. Green on the outside and yellow - orange on the inside, the seeds representing stamens of a flower. They were cut in a slightly cup shape with pointed tips to represent the petals of a flower. Variegated boxwood of yellow and green provided excellent transition material. Croton leaves were placed on the left to complete the design.

Mrs. J. W. Bailey and Mrs. J. A. Coleman designed a very lovely arrangement featuring camellias and quince. For their diagonal design they selected a black vase set on a round black stand. The graceful diagonal line was achieved by placements of glossy abelia foliage. Sprays of red quince enhanced the line. Small buds and blooms of variegated Governor Mouton camellias were used as a center of interest. This lovely design, suitable for a large living room table, was staged against a soft gray background.

Red Camellias

We feel so fortunate to have any camellia blooms to show in the center at this time due to the arbupt changes in the weather. Mrs. Scott Hamilton, president of Monroe Garden Club, has announced the Little Camellia Show to be held on Feb. 10 at St. Paul's Methodist Church. The horticulture section is open to the public. We hope that all camellia growers will exhibit in this show. There will be classes of single blooms of named varieties and collections of five named varieties.

A charming note from Caroline Dormon advises that the long awaited "Flowers Native to the Deep South" will be off the press early in March. One of the beautiful color prints from Miss Dormon's book has recently been on display at the Children's Book Shop. Miss Dormon also relates that Dr. Lawrence of the Bailey Hortorium has read and checked her text for accuracy and authenticity. A lovely wild flower Collinsia or "Blue Eyed Mary," a native to the western states has been identified by Miss Dormon as growing in Louisiana. This is a dainty spike of blue flowers in two shades of blue. We eagerly await arrival of this delightful book.

CAREFUL SHOPPERS IN '58

New-home buyers in 1958 will be the most careful shoppers since the end of World War II, on the lookout for signs of quality construction. Use of such quality materials as quarry and ceramic tile in bathrooms and kitchens will play an increasingly important role in convincing the prospective home buyer to buy.

MONOTONY RELIEVED

Box-like monotony of a rectangular frame house can be relieved with a few simple additions. A carport or breezeway, coupled with a quarry tile terrace, can break the rigid lines and give added dimension. Judicious use of shrubbery, such as arbor vitae flanking the doors and corners, breaks the monotony of straight lines.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Plan Flowers In Shady Spots

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

There are a lot of good shade-loving plants that will liven up your beds and plantings of azaleas and camellias after these two shrubs have finished blooming in winter and spring. There is no reason for shady places to be without bloom.

First, let us extend our azalea bloom with the very late flowering macrantha azaleas. These low evergreen shrubs are being developed into several different shades of pink now. The original one was a bright salmon pink. It blooms in very late spring and on into the summer months. If kept watered, it will continue to flower for weeks right in the summer. The macrantha azaleas are not in every catalogue, but they are worth hunting for.

Daylilies will bloom in medium shade, and so will the big bulbs with lily - like flowers called crinums. The striped ones are called "milk - and - wine - lilies." Both day - lily foliage and crinum foliage are handsome in contrast to other plants in a shady garden. Another plant with beautiful foliage is the plant our grandmothers called "August - lilies." You will find these in perennial catalogues as Hosta or Funkia. We don't know why grandma planted them in tubs and took them into her pit in winter because they do not need it — they are perfectly hardy in the ground. Maybe she had been reading northern books about gardening!

For spring bloom in the partly shaded garden or woods, there are lots of perennials that we are trying to grow in full sun and killing, anyway. They will last longer in the shade. Columbine, bleeding heart, Japanese anemones and that gorgeous light yellow daisy called leopard's - bane (Doronicum) all like the shade. BUSINESS BRIEFS

FAMILY PLAN

C. M. Britt, vice president in charge of sales, and H. D. Cartwright, local office manager, for Southern Airways, announced yesterday the inauguration of a new Saturday half-fare family plan.

At the present time Southern Airways offers the half-fare family plan on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday during the week. Britt explained that the special mid-week family plan as it now operates permits the head of a household to take his family with him at half fare, with his fare being the only full fare paid. The plan has been in effect on Southern Airways so that more families would be encouraged to fly on non-week end travel. The inclusion of Saturday in the family plan program, Britt said, is subject to Civil Aeronautics Board approval.

Southern Airways flies regular daily scheduled flights between 31 cities in eight southern states. The airlines flies passengers, air mail, air express, air parcel post and air freight.

The Franklin State Bank and Trust Co., of Winnsboro and Wisner, has announced the addition of E. Asa Kiper to its board of directors.

The 52-year-old Wisner businessman was elected last week at the annual meeting of the bank's stockholders. Directors re-elected to serve for the coming year were B. I. Berry, H. W. Gilbert, R. M. Hammons, J. A. Harper, N. L. Hower, Leo Lowentritt, Bailey Martin, J. W. McLemore, B. D. Pardue, Hollis T. Rogers and E. Fay Walter.

All officers were re-elected to serve for 1958. They are N. L. Hower, chairman of the board; Bailey Martin, president; H. W. Gilbert, vice president; Leo Lowentritt, vice president; E. Fay Walter, vice president; Phil Duncan, cashier; H. L. Davis, Jr., assistant cashier, and J. Jordan Mitchell, Jr., manager of the Wisner branch.

Stockholders of the First National Bank of Rayville last week re-elected officers and directors to serve for this year.

They are W. D. Cotton, president; J. J. Cuthbert, Jr., executive vice-president and cashier; John C. Morris, Sr., vice president; R. L. Walters, vice president; W. E. Chisholm, assistant cashier, and G. W. Bolton, Sr., G. W. Bolton, Jr., Cotton, Cuthbert, E. C. Harper, Morris, E. H. Myrick, A. T. Owen, Cecil Pardue, G. B. Tabor and Walters, directors.

Several changes in officerships of the Bank of Crossett, involving four active employes and one member of the board of directors, have been announced by P. F. Watzek, chairman of the board.

In action taken immediately after the annual stockholders' meeting last week, A. F. Johnson was elected a vice-president. Treasurer of The Crossett Company, Johnson has been a member of the bank's board of directors since January, 1956.

The changes in titles among the active employes were that J. B. Posey, who has had the title of vice president and cashier, will not be active vice president and secretary; C. E. Hannum was elected treasurer, J. N. Lovett, cashier and assistant secretary, and R. D. Harper, assistant cashier. Both Hannum and Lovett had been assistant cashiers.

Mrs. Virginit Riley and Mrs. Audrey Loveday attended an educational advanced hair styling school and lecture by Maris of New York this week at the Bentley Hotel in Alexandria.

Mrs. Riley is owner and operator of Virginia Beauty Shop on Swartz Road.

Alvin Childs, president of Childs, announces the start of construction of the new 19,000 square-foot Childs Custom Bakery near the food chain's warehouse in Shreveport. Completion of the half-million dollar structure is scheduled for early June of this year.

Joe Levy is merchandiser of bakery operations for the company.

Joe Huckabay who was associated with McCary Jewelry in Shreveport for the past five years, is now associated with his father, W. L. Huckabay, at Huckabay Jewelry at Hunt and Whitaker, 110 Hall Street.

The younger Huckabay is a graduate of the American Academy, School of Watchmaking Denver, Colo., and having passed the Louisiana State Board examination, he is a certified watchmaker.

Four Monroe men were among the Texas Gas Transmission Corporation's pipeline system employes cited for 24 months of accident-free work by gas measurement personnel from three states at a dinner held Thursday night in Greenville, Miss.

They are W. A. Childress, Jr., B. B. McWhorter, J. B. Blauvelt and R. H. Taylor.

Other municipalities represented were Greenville, Clarksdale, Miss., Memphis, and Ripley, Tenn.

Loy A. Everett of Albany, Ga., has been named assistant sales manager of Commercial Solvents Corporation's agricultural chemicals sales department, and will make his headquarters at the New York office.

Everett's responsibilities include the development of marketing programs for the company's expanded production of nitrogen fertilizers and the activation of these programs on a regional basis.

He attended Georgia Teachers College and the University of Georgia where he received his Master of Science degree from the university's college of agriculture in 1942. During World War II, he served with the U. S. Air Force.

Trouble For Capitol At Summit

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Capitol Hill authorities in Tennessee are confronted with a top level problem. And after weeks of discussions a solution has yet to be found.

The harassed brass must find a way to remove the 45-foot flagpole from its lofty perch atop the state capitol building. The bronze pole was tilted at a 30 degree angle by a fall windstorm.

"It's not an easy job," remarks State Architect Clayton Dekle, the man saddled with the problem. "But it's not impossible by a long shot," he quickly adds, hopefully.

The pole weighs 600 pounds and cannot be straightened. Hence it must be replaced by a stronger one before the U. S. and Tennessee flags once again can be flown from atop the capitol.

Numerous and often novel suggestions for removing the pole have been considerel, but none has been found entirely satisfactory.

"It would take quite a bit of scaffolding to set a boom pole on top of the lome," Dekle said. "We're also thinking about the possibilites of using an Air Force helicopter or a helium-filled balloon to pull it out."

The scaffolding method probably is the most practical, but likewise it is the most expensive. Using a helicopter or balloon to jerk the leaning pole out would be relatively cheap; but how would the new pole be installed?

While officials mull over the possibilities, the tired-looking pole provides an endless source of amusement for wags who stop state officials to report:

"We hear there's something mighty crooked at the capitol!"

Ammonia Bomb Tossed At Coed Drive Chairman

COLLEGE STATION, Tex., Jan. 18 (AP) — Boyd Metts, Aggie freshman who formed a group to investigate the feasibility of making Texas A&M College coeducational, was hospitalized after inhaling fumes from an ammonia bomb thrown into his room early today.

Metts, from Bivins, Tex., was released from the hospital to take final examinations, but was due to return later in the day.

The latest development in the furor over girls entering the school came after the student Senate last night voted, 11-5, to seek the ouster of the editor of the Battalion, campus newspaper. The editor, Joe Tindel, senior from Athens, Tex., had written that a policy of coeducation should be adopted.

Another bomb was thrown into Metts' room Sunday night but his roommate threw it out before it exploded.

Metts declined to comment on the latest incident.

The coed question has cropped up occasionally in the hassle over the unsuccessful hunt for a new coach at A&M to replace Bear Bryant, who resigned Jan. 1. The Daily Eagle in Bryan, adjoining College Station, has campaigned for coeducation, saying coaches would find it easier to recruit football players and thus might find the job more acceptable.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

FAMILY PLAN

C. M. Britt, vice president in charge of sales, and H. D. Cartwright, local office manager, for Southern Airways, announced yesterday the inauguration of a new Saturday half-fare family plan.

At the present time Southern Airways offers the half-fare family plan on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday during the week. Britt explained that the special mid-week family plan as it now operates permits the head of a household to take his family with him at half fare, with his fare being the only full fare paid. The plan has been in effect on Southern Airways so that more families would be encouraged to fly on non-week end travel. The inclusion of Saturday in the family plan program, Britt said, is subject to Civil Aeronautics Board approval.

Southern Airways flies regular daily scheduled flights between 31 cities in eight southern states. The airlines flies passengers, air mail, air express, air parcel post and air freight.

The Franklin State Bank and Trust Co., of Winnsboro and Wisner, has announced the addition of E. Asa Kiper to its board of directors.

The 52-year-old Wisner businessman was elected last week at the annual meeting of the bank's stockholders. Directors re-elected to serve for the coming year were B. I. Berry, H. W. Gilbert, R. M. Hammons, J. A. Harper, N. L. Hower, Leo Lowentritt, Bailey Martin, J. W. McLemore, B. D. Pardue, Hollis T. Rogers and E. Fay Walter.

All officers were re-elected to serve for 1958. They are N. L. Hower, chairman of the board; Bailey Martin, president; H. W. Gilbert, vice president; Leo Lowentritt, vice president; E. Fay Walter, vice president; Phil Duncan, cashier; H. L. Davis, Jr., assistant cashier, and J. Jordan Mitchell, Jr., manager of the Wisner branch.

Stockholders of the First National Bank of Rayville last week re-elected officers and directors to serve for this year.

They are W. D. Cotton, president; J. J. Cuthbert, Jr., executive vice-president and cashier; John C. Morris, Sr., vice president; R. L. Walters, vice president; W. E. Chisholm, assistant cashier, and G. W. Bolton, Sr., G. W. Bolton, Jr., Cotton, Cuthbert, E. C. Harper, Morris, E. H. Myrick, A. T. Owen, Cecil Pardue, G. B. Tabor and Walters, directors.

Several changes in officerships of the Bank of Crossett, involving four active employes and one member of the board of directors, have been announced by P. F. Watzek, chairman of the board.

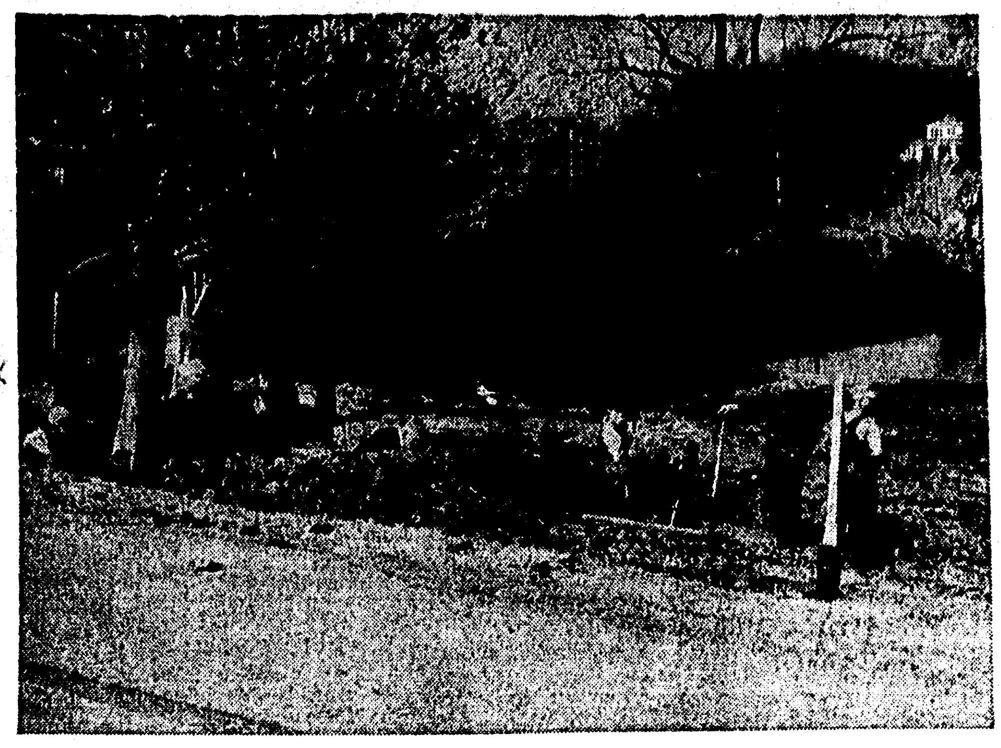
Audio-Visual Study Is Colorful, Action-Filled



NATURAL BEAUTY PRESERVED — Workmen engaged in preparing right-of-way for widening of DeSiard Road to give that portion of U. S. Highway 80 additional width, are careful to see that the scenic strip of road maintains its former natural beauty. Here they are moving trees and shrubs back closer to the waters of Bayou DeSiard. Program At Parish High Far-Reaching

By Mary Anne Corpin
Staff Writer

"Audio-visual program." Sounds complicated, but actually it means the difference between the study of a dry, history-book account of early 1800's in the United States . . . and a colorful, action-filled movie which supplements regular texts - and makes a vivid impression upon students.

It is the difference between merely reading a classic novel or Shakespearean play—and hearing professional actors bringing life to the chapters, by way of recordings.

Ouachita Parish High School has a far-reaching audio-visual program, pre-dating those of many other schools. Classes use it frequently — during the months between September, 1956 and April 1957, three 16 mm. movie projectors were in use 340 times, all day; film strip projectors were utilized for classes 222 times, and record players were heard 185 times by various classes throughout the school.

"The aids are not used as a substitute for teaching," stressed Mrs. W. W. Ward, OPHS librarian in charge of the audio - visual equipment used by the entire school.

"The teachers do too much planning ahead of time for the movies to be 'substitutes.' Teachers come to the library and tell me "in two weeks, I'm going to start a unit on citizenship responsibilities," or many other varied topics," Mrs. Ward revealed.

Make Inquiries

"They ask what material is available to supplement that topic, and if they used a certain film last year, they mention it," she added.

Movies, slides and records are used as motivation — to interest the students in the subject matter. Background information on a certain subject is often covered by the audio-visual aids. Seeing explanations of geometry problems, European government, and scientific experiments on film help students recall what they have read and heard in class. This serves as an excellent way to summarize lessons.

The audio-visual department has three 16 mm. movie projectors, and two strip projectors which flash facts onto the screen in a "card by card" style. One strip projector also has an attachment to show slides.

Since 1951 the department has tripled its equipment. In addition to its projectors, it has two new screens, one film strip cabinet and two record players.

Although the department borrows all its films, it does have 265 "film strips"—which show one 'still' picture at a time. The topics range from economic films concerning money and panic, through careers in medicine, modern art, fossiles and reptiles for science classes, atomic energy, and the geography of Argentina.

137 Records

The record collection, totalling 137 discs, includes music by Wagner, a reading of classic novels, actors performing MacBeth, and shorthand dictation records for the commerce department.

All films are borrowed from the state depositories at nearby colleges and from commercial sources — large industries which prepare educational films. They must be returned to the colleges within one week.

"With one 10-minute film costing $50, the school can't afford to buy movies. We write to Northeast State College, Louisiana Tech or the public library and order the films. They are sent to us postpaid, and the only cost is the postage for mailing the films back," Mrs. Ward mentioned. Louisiana furnishes the films to the colleges free of charge.

A special room with an "attic-fan" type ventilation is available for showing the films, and often two or three teachers of one subject cooperate so that all their classes may see the film on the same day.

Some instructors prefer to show the films in their classrooms, and one screen is designed for use in a room which cannot be completely darkened. Its pale green surface shows the films well, and a minimum amount of light is reflected from the screen. Another screen of the newest type is on order, for showings in classrooms.

Departments which have a constant need for films, and which have their own projectors, include Distributive Education, Agriculture and Physical Education. The science and Art departments have opaque projectors, and the speech and distributive education sections each have a tape recorder. The athletic department shows its players films of each past game.

Limited to 60 members, the branch of the Louisiana Teenage Librarians Association has a long waiting list of applicants for membership. Members devote two hours each week to work in the school library, and 20 members have been instructed on how to run the audio-visual film projectors.

Those teachers who request an operator are aided by a competent high school youngster who takes the equipment to the room for showing, threads the film into the projector, operates the machine during the showing, and carries the equipment back to the audio-visual department.

Where the "strip projector" is used, the teacher flashes one picture or illustration onto the screen, discusses it, and may flip off the machine, turn on the lights and continue with the lecture.

The instructor then may continue with the film strips, showing as many illustrations as necessary, and returning to those which should be stressed. "The film strips are a time-saver, since the time which we would have to take in writing the information on the board is flashed onto the screen in a moment. More ground is covered in this manner," is the general comment of teachers who have made use of the film strips.

"Students have shown a great deal of interest in the program," stated Principal I. C. Strickland, who added that "the films aren't just an easy hour of entertainment — they review and supplement previous work, and add to the students' knowledge of many subjects."

Noting that a new film projector was purchased by the school last year, and a new screen is on order now, the principal expressed the faculty's view: "The program is reaching the needs of the students, and as their needs grow, the program will continue to be expanded."

AMERICAN HISTORY COMES TO LIFE — Students in history classes saw two films, one on Abraham Lincoln and one on the Civil War, as an audio-visual supplement to their classwork Friday. The program at Ouachita Parish High school includes films on any subject taught in the school, film strips showing individual illustrations to help make lectures more vivid, and records of famous classical literature and music. Student teacher Earl Ingram of Northeast State College was in charge of this class, which is regularly instructed by Miss Sallie Humble. (Staff photo by John I. Fogleman)

MOBILE LUXURY

Artists' Window Remains Same But View Changes

By DIAL TORGERSON

From his desert home 100 miles away he views the panorama they call Palm Springs — the desert, the mountains, the joshua trees—across a landscaped courtyard where a fountain bubbles in the cool night air.

Wright is a nationally known portrait artist. He has wealth and social position. There's nothing unusual about the fact that he has two vacation homes.

But here's what is unusual: they're both the same home.

It's a trailer.

Wright is one of the four million Americans who live in trailers all or part of the time. Of course, he isn't typical —he's listed in both the national and Southern California social registers, and few society types are trailerites. But then, among trailer folk, who is typical?

They have more in common with the snail than they do with one another. They come from all social and economic strata, and a trailer park cross section would show as many different people as you'd find, say, in a big apartment house. They have this in common: they wear their homes like fancy coats and take them anyplace they like.

Wright for instance, spends the summer in his 36-footer at Treasure Island, a fashionable but not exclusive park on the bluffs at Laguna Beach, some 50 miles south of Los Angeles.

When the first cold wind of winter blows in off the Pacific, Wright calls a trailer moving firm. For $50 they move his home 100 miles to winter quarters at Palm Springs' Skyridge park, where trailers are parked in four-home squares around fancy courtyards.

Wright has enough money to keep the trailer for vacations and week ends — his permanent home is in Pasadena. But there are many Southern Californians of modest means who could afford to be his trailer - park neighbor.

"The space costs me $75 a month at Laguna and $55 a month at Palm Springs," said Wright. "Of course, in Palm Springs I have to chip in to help pay the gardener who takes care of the courtyard."

A trailer like Wright's costs about $4,000. There are 220,000 such "mobile homes" in California alone — some 1,225,000 in use across the country. Some Treasure Island trailers have $4,000 cabanas attached and boast color television.

Wright says his trailer's greatest convenience is its lack of a telephone. Between portrait jobs —he does about a dozen a year —he likes a place to relax.

'A friend of mine on Long Island in New York has a 67-foot yacht," Wright adds. "And he doesn't have half the room in it that I have here." He waved his hand about the wood - paneled 35-footer. "I've got head room, too —there isn't anything to bump your head on, like there is in a boat.

"Of course, my friend's yacht is made for racing. And I'm not racing anybody."

The Laguna Beach park where Wright summers has four beaches. The Palm Springs park has a swimming pool. But so do most of the trailer parks being built now in Southern California.

According to the Trailer Coach Assn., a national trailer boosting group, there are 41,000 parks nationally and 2,500 in Southern California. More than a third of those here have pools, recreation halls and the other earmarks of "luxury" trailer parks. Nearly all the new ones being built in temperate climates also have pools — bringing their total cost to an average $300,0000.

The oldtime trailer parks are disappearing — the unpaved lots where central plumbing facilities took care of eveyone, and lighting came from bare bulbs strung from trees.

Missile Detecting Stations Planned

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 (AP)—The Air Force will begin construction, probably within a few months, of three ballistic missiles detection stations in the arctic. Using ultra-range radar, the stations could spot Russian missiles within minutes after their launching in Eurasia.

Negotiations with at least two companies for the 189 million dollar building job — which does not include cost of the equipment—are understood to be under way in anticipation of swift congressional approval of an appropriation request.

Testimony before the House Armed Services Committee was released today by Chairman Vinson (D-Ga). In it, Vinson said that the purpose of a 189 million dollar item was to construct three detection centers at locations outside the continental United States. Secretary of the Air Force James Douglas identified the centers as ballistic missile detection stations.

Additional testimony said these stations had nothing to do with warning systems for the NATO defense system in Europe. Initially, Vinson had said the powerful radar systems would be able to spot Soviet missiles as they left the ground, but later testimony showed he meant that the missiles would come into the radar scanning system as they climbed above the horizon.

The three detection centers will be spotted about 1,000 miles apart in the general area of the present Distant Early Warning Line —DEW—system for aircraft detection. The 3,000-mile range of the new radar equipment will provide ample overlap to create an unbroken fence along the continent's rim.

The DEW system consists of more than 100 main and secondary stations. However, the range of this equipment is only between 100 and 200 miles.

Because of the wide differences in the design and mission of the two systems, it will be impossible to utilize even improved DEW equipment of ballistic missile detection. But the information from both systems will be fed into the same communications system, for swift relay to United States and Canadian defense centers.

The location of the missile detection chain in the Far North would provide a warning time of about 15 minutes. This is based on the estimate that the time of flight for an intercontinental ballistic missile from Russia to the United States would be approximately 30 minutes.

The 15 minute warning would be scant help in permitting civilian populations to take shelter or escape target cities.

Students Are Living In A Real Log Cabin

FAYETTE, Iowa (AP)—A log cabin, its exact age lost with the passing years, is serving as a dormitory for three Upper Iowa University students.

John Gutz of Hampton, Jim Thompsen of Belmond and Tom Swale of Clear Lake—Iowans all—rented the cabin from Miss Stella Latimer, on whose property it stands.

"It was pretty much of a mess when we first looked it over," said Gutz. "We understand that no one had lived in it for some time, and we had a big cleanup job on our hands."

Some paint and liberal use of "elbow grease" and cleaning powder rectified that. Then the three students bought few pieces of furniture spending $10 for a rug, $11 for a refrigerator and $5 for a studio couch that makes up into a bed.

The telephone, hi-fi record player and radio in the single 14 by 16 foot downstairs room are in decided contrast to the rough-hewn log walls. A similar size upstairs room is used for sleeping.

Thompsen is the cook, hastening to explain that he has no truck with dishwashing. Gutz and Swale take care of that chore along with the housework. To help out with the food bill, and add variety to their diet, all three go hunting and fishing.

The cabin has an oil heater, but the students keep it in reserve for the most severe winter weather. They say the large fireplace across one end of the cabin does a good job of heating.

Custodian Of Big Top Is Cheered

By WILLIAM BURCH LEE

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Confidante of clowns and friend of scholars is Vivienne Mars, for 15 years ringmaster of the world's most famous collection of Circusana.

Recently retired, Mrs. Mars served as librarian of the renowned Harry Hertzberg Circus Collection in the San Antonio Public Library. She helped assemble the collection, and was its first and only librarian, taking personal pride in the thousands of items of circus lore and personal interest in the personalities of the big top. Says she:

"It's been just wonderful. I've met many of the great people of the circus.

"We've had a very limited budget with which to buy articles for our collection. But the circus people have been wonderful to us. They've given us scores of items when they found out we couldn't pay for them.

"And I guess the biggest thrill was on opening day. Not the opening day for the public. But the opening day when Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey were in town. The way they wandered around the collection and the wonderful manner in which they spoke of Mr. Hertzberg — well I suppose that was the biggest day for me with the collection."

Now that she is devoting her time being a housewife and amateur artist, Mrs. Mars still receives many visitors of circus fame and discusses with them the good old days. She recalls the people who came from all over the world to see the collection, and the many letters received daily.

The collection was founded by Harry Hertzberg, a circus fan who spent his life assembling circus mementoes, and who willed his collection to the San Antonio Library on his death in 1940.

Two new wings were constructed to house the collection, which was opened to the public Nov. 12, 1942, with Mrs. Mars in charge. Dedication ceremonies were timed to coincide with the San Antonio appearance of Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey Circus — and the entire personnel showed up for the big event.

Does she miss the excitement of her long service to circus lore?

"Well, yes," says Mrs. Mars, "but not as much as I expected to, because I find my friends from the circus still remember me, and their letters and visits keep life always interesting."

Bold, New Treatments Aiding Cancer Fights

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

NEW YORK, Jan. 18 (AP)—Victories over cancer are coming from a triumvirate of scientists, physicians, and courageous human volunteers.

Bold and dramatic treatments are providing heartening steps in the quest for chemical bullets to stay or destroy most cancers.

In broad outline, 1957's main accomplishments and future promise lie in three directions—drug treatments, immunity, and search for causes of cancer.

CHEMISTRY AND CANCER:

Some new drugs now bring temporary or partial recoveries from leukemia (cancer of the blood) and sometimes other cancers.

Last summer, 20-month-old Laura MacDonald of Drexel Hill, Pa., was sinking fast from acute leukemia despite drugs. Physicians gave her a huge dose of radiation to destroy the diseased bone marrow underlying her leukemia.

Then they drew healthy bone marrow from the shin and hip bone of her twin sister, Mary, and injected it into Laura's bloodsteam. A month later she went home, with no trace of leukemia. The transplanted marrow apparently gave her healthy blood cells.

But this victory was tragically short-lived. Little Laura was home for a few months—months she and her parents would never have had otherwise—when leukemia struck again. She died nine days ago.

A fatal form of cancer had been temporarily delayed, by scientific searching which some day may bear full fruit.

A potent chemical, methylcholanthrene, causes cancers in animals. Reasoning from animal experiments and other observations, Drs. Charles Huggins and Jack D. McCarthy of the University of Chicago shot it into six women dying of cancer.

Their cancers had started in their breasts and spread through their bodies. Every surgical treatment had already been tried.

One woman has so far had nearly a year of healthy life. The drug didn't help another at all, but did temporarily arrest the cancers in the other four.

In hospitals across the country, trials are under way on handfuls of patients with new drugs specially devised to strike at cancers. A few show early promise.

Some counteract female hormones, such as estrogen or progesterone.

Others came from studies to pinpoint differences between cancerous and normal cells. Do they differ in the chemical foods they need, or their appetites for certain foods?

Such differences are being found. The new drugs are taken in by the cancer cells, but then jam the cell machinery.

Another great search screens thousands of chemicals compounded in laboratories to see which ones strike cancers in mice. Those with effects are tested further, a few are developed for human trials.

This testing is expensive and time-consuming.

It can apparently be done effectively with new strains of tiny one-celled plants, says Prof. G. F. Guase of the Soviet Institute of Antibiotics. These plants have damaged breathing mechanisms, and one theory is that cancer cells do also. So any chemical which kills the plant cells might knock cancer cells. One antibiotic turned up this way shows some anti-cancer effect in animals.

Vaccines to prevent cancer are a beckoning goal. Hope for them lies in recent animal and human studies.

A few vaccines have been developed which protect chickens and laboratory animals against specific kinds of cancer. These are not yet applicable, of course, to human cancers.

In a quest for basic facts about immunity, volunteers at the Ohio Penitentiary had cancer cells planted beneath the skin of their arms. Their systems soon destroyed the cancer cells. Later when the same kind of cancer cells were planted again, they were destroyed even faster. The men could also throw off cells of a different type of cancer, though not quite so rapidly.

Cancer patients, the studies by Sloan-Kettering Institute scientists showed, lack some defense which healthy humans possess. Some specific immunity mechanism seems to come into play.

Blood tests and other tests are trying to spell out the differences, and how they could be used to boost immunity.

Cancer patients often have less of a disease-fighting blood substance named properdin, this and other studies show.

Dr. Jonas Salk, a hero of the polio vaccine, has devised a simplified method of measuring antibodies produced when living foreign cells are injected into animals. This could be useful to scientists working on a variety of vaccines.

A key to immunity seemingly lies in the very rare cases of spontaneous disappearances of cancer. This happens, for no known reason, only about once in every 1,000 cancer victims. Through nationwide cooperation, proven case histories are being collected, to be analyzed for clues as to how nature produced this apparent miracle.

CAUSES OF CANCER:

Many things are known to cause or be involved in the start of cancers—too much X-ray, some kinds of chemicals, repeated irritation or injury. Numerous studies associate heavy cigarette smoking with greater risk of lung cancer, but some researchers dispute this.

Fundamentally, the big question is what happens in living systems to make some cells go haywire in heedless cancerous growth.

Is the culprit perhaps viruses of some unknown kinds? Viruses are akin to the genetic material in living cells, the material that controls what cells do.

Viruses are known to cause some few kinds of animal and chicken cancers. The virus theory of human cancer now is drawing new and revived support.

Dr. Francisco Duran-Reynals of Yale, a pioneer in this thinking, finds some evidence that viruses may lie harmless and sleeping within body cells, until something happens to stir them to action and malignancy. The something could be changes in hormone balance, radiation, or other influences. Perhaps even seemingly harmless viruses might become so activated.

Other scientists find evidence implicating viruses in leukemia and Hodgkin's disease.

Still another find: Animals susceptible to cancer don't get it if raised in a completely germ-free environment, reports Dr. James A. Reyniers of Notre Dame's Lobound Institute.

If viruses do cause cancer, and if they can be identified, then a path is open to devising effective vaccines or other protections.

Much about cancer remains a murky mystery. But many keen, trained minds are searching its by-ways, solving some puzzles, gaining facts. Sudden breakthroughs might come on sudden inspiration, or lucky happenstance or through tying clues together.

The research is supported by growing millions of dollars from the National Cancer Institute, the American Cancer Society and other sources, here and abroad.

Meantime the best weapons are the proven ones—radiation and surgery. Techniques in both these methods are improving, and they are saving more lives, especially when cancers are detected early.

Audio - Visual Study Is Colorful, Action - Filled

Program At Parish High Far-Reaching

By Mary Anne Corpin
Staff Writer

"Audio-visual program." Sounds complicated, but actually it means the difference between the study of a dry, history-book account of early 1800's in the United States . . . and a colorful, action-filled movie which supplements regular texts - and makes a vivid impression upon students.

It is the difference between merely reading a classic novel or Shakespearean play—and hearing professional actors bringing life to the chapters, by way of recordings.

Ouachita Parish High School has a far-reaching audio-visual program, pre-dating those of many other schools. Classes use it frequently — during the months between September, 1956 and April 1957, three 16 mm. movie projectors were in use 340 times, all day; film strip projectors were utilized for classes 222 times, and record players were heard 185 times by various classes throughout the school.

"The aids are not used as a substitute for teaching," stressed Mrs. W. W. Ward, OPHS librarian in charge of the audio - visual equipment used by the entire school.

"The teachers do too much planning ahead of time for the movies to be 'substitutes.' Teachers come to the library and tell me "in two weeks, I'm going to start a unit on citizenship responsibilities," or many other varied topics," Mrs. Ward revealed.

Make Inquiries

"They ask what material is available to supplement that topic, and if they used a certain film last year, they mention it," she added.

Movies, slides and records are used as motivation — to interest the students in the subject matter. Background information on a certain subject is often covered by the audio-visual aids. Seeing explanations of geometry problems, European government, and scientific experiments on film help students recall what they have read and heard in class. This serves as an excellent way to summarize lessons.

The audio-visual department has three 16 mm. movie projectors, and two strip projectors which flash facts onto the screen in a "card by card" style. One strip projector also has an attachment to show slides.

Since 1951 the department has tripled its equipment. In addition to its projectors, it has two new screens, one film strip cabinet and two record players.

Although the department borrows all its films, it does have 265 "film strips"—which show one 'still' picture at a time. The topics range from economic films concerning money and panic, through careers in medicine, modern art, fossiles and reptiles for science classes, atomic energy, and the geography of Argentina.

137 Records

The record collection, totalling 137 discs, includes music by Wagner, a reading of classic novels, actors performing MacBeth, and shorthand dictation records for the commerce department.

All films are borrowed from the state depositories at nearby colleges and from commercial sources — large industries which prepare educational films. They must be returned to the colleges within one week.

"With one 10-minute film costing $50, the school can't afford to buy movies. We write to Northeast State College, Louisiana Tech or the public library and order the films. They are sent to us postpaid, and the only cost is the postage for mailing the films back," Mrs. Ward mentioned. Louisiana furnishes the films to the colleges free of charge.

A special room with an "attic-fan" type ventilation is available for showing the films, and often two or three teachers of one subject cooperate so that all their classes may see the film on the same day.

Some instructors prefer to show the films in their classrooms, and one screen is designed for use in a room which cannot be completely darkened. Its pale green surface shows the films well, and a minimum amount of light is reflected from the screen. Another screen of the newest type is on order, for showings in classrooms.

Departments which have a constant need for films, and which have their own projectors, include Distributive Education, Agriculture and Physical Education. The science and Art departments have opaque projectors, and the speech and distributive education sections each have a tape recorder. The athletic department shows its players films of each past game.

Films range from 10 to 30 minutes in length, and are shown by members of the school's Library Club when departments other than those named above request a film.

Limited to 60 members, the branch of the Louisiana Teenage Librarians Association has a long waiting list of applicants for membership. Members devote two hours each week to work in the school library, and 20 members have been instructed on how to run the audio-visual film projectors.

Those teachers who request an operator are aided by a competent high school youngster who takes the equipment to the room for showing, threads the film into the projector, operates the machine during the showing, and carries the equipment back to the audio-visual department.

Where the "strip projector" is used, the teacher flashes one picture or illustration onto the screen, discusses it, and may flip off the machine, turn on the lights and continue with the lecture.

The instructor then may continue with the film strips, showing as many illustrations as necessary, and returning to those which should be stressed. "The film strips are a time-saver, since the time which we would have to take in writing the information on the board is flashed onto the screen in a moment. More ground is covered in this manner," is the general comment of teachers who have made use of the film strips.

"Students have shown a great deal of interest in the program," stated Principal I. C. Strickland, who added that "the films aren't just an easy hour of entertainment — they review and supplement previous work, and add to the students' knowledge of many subjects."

Noting that a new film projector was purchased by the school last year, and a new screen is on order now, the principal expressed the faculty's view: "The program is reaching the needs of the students, and as their needs grow, the program will continue to be expanded."

AMERICAN HISTORY COMES TO LIFE — Students in history classes saw two films, one on Abraham Lincoln and one on the Civil War, as an audio-visual supplement to their classwork Friday. The program at Ouachita Parish High school includes films on any subject taught in the school, film strips showing individual illustrations to help make lectures more vivid, and records of famous classical literature and music. Student teacher Earl Ingram of Northeast State College was in charge of this class, which is regularly instructed by Miss Sallie Humble. (Staff photo by John I. Fogleman)

Artists' Window Remains Same But View Changes

By DIAL TORGERSON

LAGUNA BEACH, Calif. (AP) — From the view window of his clifftop home, R. Stephens Wright can look 40 feet down and see fish darting back and forth in the crystal - clear waters at Laguna Beach.

From his desert home 100 miles away he views the panorama they call Palm Springs — the desert, the mountains, the joshua trees—across a landscaped courtyard where a fountain bubbles in the cool night air.

Wright is a nationally known portrait artist. He has wealth and social position. There's nothing unusual about the fact that he has two vacation homes.

But here's what is unusual: they're both the same home.

It's a trailer.

Wright is one of the four million Americans who live in trailers all or part of the time. Of course, he isn't typical —he's listed in both the national and Southern California social registers, and few society types are trailerites. But then, among trailer folk, who is typical?

They have more in common with the snail than they do with one another. They come from all social and economic strata, and a trailer park cross section would show as many different people as you'd find, say, in a big apartment house. They have this in common: they wear their homes like fancy coats and take them anyplace they like.

Wright for instance, spends the summer in his 36-footer at Treasure Island, a fashionable but not exclusive park on the bluffs at Laguna Beach, some 50 miles south of Los Angeles.

When the first cold wind of winter blows in off the Pacific, Wright calls a trailer moving firm. For $50 they move his home 100 miles to winter quarters at Palm Springs' Skyridge park, where trailers are parked in four-home squares around fancy courtyards.

Wright has enough money to keep the trailer for vacations and week ends — his permanent home is in Pasadena. But there are many Southern Californians of modest means who could afford to be his trailer - park neighbor.

"The space costs me $75 a month at Laguna and $55 a month at Palm Springs," said Wright. "Of course, in Palm Springs I have to chip in to help pay the gardener who takes care of the courtyard."

A trailer like Wright's costs about $4,000. There are 220,000 such "mobile homes" in California alone — some 1,225,000 in use across the country. Some Treasure Island trailers have $4,000 cabanas attached and boast color television.

Wright says his trailer's greatest convenience is its lack of a telephone. Between portrait jobs —he does about a dozen a year —he likes a place to relax.

'A friend of mine on Long Island in New York has a 67-foot yacht," Wright adds. "And he doesn't have half the room in it that I have here." He waved his hand about the wood - paneled 35-footer. "I've got head room, too —there isn't anything to bump your head on, like there is in a boat.

"Of course, my friend's yacht is made for racing. And I'm not racing anybody."

The Laguna Beach park where Wright summers has four beaches. The Palm Springs park has a swimming pool. But so do most of the trailer parks being built now in Southern California.

According to the Trailer Coach Assn., a national trailer boosting group, there are 41,000 parks nationally and 2,500 in Southern California. More than a third of those here have pools, recreation halls and the other earmarks of "luxury" trailer parks. Nearly all the new ones being built in temperate climates also have pools — bringing their total cost to an average $300,0000.

The oldtime trailer parks are disappearing — the unpaved lots where central plumbing facilities took care of eveyone, and lighting came from bare bulbs strung from trees.

If viruses do cause cancer, and if they can be identified, then a path is open to devising effective vaccines or other protections.

Much about cancer remains a murky mystery. But many keen, trained minds are searching its by-ways, solving some puzzles, gaining facts. Sudden breakthroughs might come on sudden inspiration, or lucky happenstance or through tying clues together.

The research is supported by growing millions of dollars from the National Cancer Institute, the American Cancer Society and other sources, here and abroad.

Meantime the best weapons are the proven ones—radiation and surgery. Techniques in both these methods are improving, and they are saving more lives, especially when cancers are detected early.

Plane Swoops Down On Road

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — If you thought you saw a Sputnick land on Highway 82 south of Hamburg early last night, relax.

It was only a Cessna 172 airplane.

Pilot M. L. Worley filed a flight plan from McAllen, Tex., to Shreveport and got lost on the way.

He found himself in the middle of the highway.

A small restaurant was the only bit of light the pilot could find, so he just swooped down right there. Pilot, plane and auto drivers who noticed they were sharing the highway all escaped unharmed.

Deputy Sheriff Jack Stell investigated the incident.

Deaths

FOREST MATTHEWS

EPPS (Special) —Forest Matthews, 73, fell dead while working in his garden about 4 p.m. yesterday. Dr. E. D. Butler attributed death to a heart attack.

Members of the family reported seeing Mr. Butler working, shortly before they noticed him lying on the ground.

He had been a life-long resident of East and West Carroll parishes and is survived by his widow and several children.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete last night, but will be under the direction of Gay's Funeral Home.

CHARLES SEYMON GEORGE

Funeral services for Charles Seymon George, 48-year-old Mount Vernon resident who died Friday at his home, will be conducted today at 2:30 p.m. in the Mount Vernon Church, with interment in the church cemetery.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Clara George; two sons, Hansford and Douglas; two daughters, Mrs. Mildred Carter and Mrs. James Carter; three sisters, Mrs. Dadie Collie, Mrs. Nellie Freeman and Mrs. Eula Bailey, and five grandchildren, all of West Monroe.

RONNIE McLAWCHLIN

JONESVILLE (Special) — Final rites for Ronnie Morris McLawchlin, month-old-son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McLawchlin of Jonesville, will be conducted today at 1:30 p.m. at the family home with the Rev. L. G. Wilson officiating.

Interment will be in Greenwood Cemetery at Pineville, under the direction of Hixson Brothers Funeral Home of Jena.

The infant died yesterday in a Natchez hospital.

Besides his parents, he is survived by his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Bessie Fairbanks, Jonesville, and his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom McLawchlin, Walters.

THOMAS HARRIS CHEAIRS

JENA (Special) — Thomas Harris Cheairs, 78, died at his home in Utility near Jonesville early yesterday after a brief illness.

Funeral services were scheduled for 10 a.m. today at Utility Baptist Church with the Rev. James R. Shepard officiating. Burial will follow in Utility cemetery under the direction of Kinner and Stevens Funeral Home.

Surviving Mr. Cheairs is his widow, Mrs. Bessie Cheairs.

MRS. ROSA BROWN

OLLA (Special) — Mrs. Rosa Brown, 76, of Olla, died early yesterday in a Columbia hospital following a short illness.

Funeral services are scheduled for 2 p.m. today at the Olla Baptist Church with the Rev. Filer Seal officiating, assisted by the Rev. B. B. Cox. Interment will be in Brown cemetery near Kelly under the direction of Riser and Son Funeral Home.

Survivors include three daughters: Mrs. Eva Rollins, Dania, Fla.; Mrs. Victor Parish, Sterlington; Mrs. Jean Glidwell, Olla; a son, Jack B. Brown, Orange, Tex.; a brother, Elex Otwell, Extension; a sister, Mrs. Victor Howell, Monroe, 12 grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Refresher Course Set In Shreveport

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 18 (AP) —A refresher course on "pain symptoms" as they characterize certain diseases will be offered Wednesday at Shreveport Confederate Memorial Hospital by the Louisiana State University Medical School.

Faculty for the course includes Dr. Howard H. Karr, clinical associate professor of surgery, and six Shreveport physicians, Dr. Heinz K. Faludi, Dr. Fred C. Boykin, Dr. John C. Hardin Jr., Dr. Don F. Overdyke, Dr. Charles W. Armistead and Dr. James H. Shipp.

Plane Swoops Down On Road

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — If you thought you saw a Sputnick land on Highway 82 south of Hamburg early last night, relax.

It was only a Cessna 172 airplane.

Pilot M. L. Worley filed a flight plan from McAllen, Tex., to Shreveport and got lost on the way.

He found himself in the middle of the highway.

A small restaurant was the only bit of light the pilot could find, so he just swooped down right there. Pilot, plane and auto drivers who noticed they were sharing the highway all escaped unharmed.

Deputy Sheriff Jack Stell investigated the incident.

Deaths

FOREST MATTHEWS

EPPS (Special) —Forest Matthews, 73, fell dead while working in his garden about 4 p.m. yesterday. Dr. E. D. Butler attributed death to a heart attack.

Members of the family reported seeing Mr. Butler working, shortly before they noticed him lying on the ground.

He had been a life-long resident of East and West Carroll parishes and is survived by his widow and several children.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete last night, but will be under the direction of Gay's Funeral Home.

CHARLES SEYMON GEORGE

Funeral services for Charles Seymon George, 48 - year - old Mount Vernon resident who died Friday at his home, will be conducted today at 2:30 p.m. in the Mount Vernon Church, with interment in the church cemetery.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Clara George; two sons, Hansford and Douglas; two daughters, Mrs. Mildred Carter and Mrs. James Carter; three sisters, Mrs. Dadie Collie, Mrs. Nellie Freeman and Mrs. Eula Bailey, and five grandchildren, all of West Monroe.

RONNIE McLAWCHLIN

JONESVILLE (Special) — Final rites for Ronnie Morris McLawchlin, month-old-son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McLawchlin of Jonesville, will be conducted today at 1:30 p.m. at the family home with the Rev. L. G. Wilson officiating.

Interment will be in Greenwood Cemetery at Pineville, under the direction of Hixson Brothers Funeral Home of Jena.

The infant died yesterday in a Natchez hospital.

Besides his parents, he is survived by his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Bessie Fairbanks, Jonesville, and his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom McLawchlin, Walters.

THOMAS HARRIS CHEAIRS

Funeral services were scheduled for 10 a.m. today at Utility Baptist Church with the Rev. James R. Shepard officiating. Burial will follow in Utility cemetery under the direction of Kinner and Stevens Funeral Home.

Surviving Mr. Cheairs is his widow, Mrs. Bessie Cheairs.

I FEEL LIKE A REAL FINE EXPENSIVE RESTAURANT DINNER TONIGHT
OKAY--LET'S GO, AND WE'LL TAKE OUR WIVES
I'M GOING TO HAVE CAVIAR, SOLE, DUCK UNDER GLASS, CHERRIES JUBILEE AND CHAMPAGNE
ME TOO--OH, BOY, I'M DYING FOR A REAL FINE MEAL
BLONDIE--THE BOSS AND I ARE GOING TO TAKE YOU AND CORA TO THE MOST EXPENSIVE RESTAURANT IN TOWN TONIGHT
WHAT!
HELP ME PUT MAMA ON THE SOFA--SHE FAINTED
WHAT HAPPENED?
WHAT'S IN BACK OF THIS INVITATION? YOU'VE BEEN UP TO SOMETHING, JULIUS DITHERS
NO, DEAR, REALLY
I'LL HAVE TO TELL MR. DITHERS WE CAN'T GO--THE SHOCK WAS TOO MUCH FOR BLONDIE
AND KEEP OUT OF HERE UNTIL YOU HAVE A DECENT EXPLANATION
THIS IS THE WORST MEAL I'VE EVER EATEN
WELL, ANYWAY, WE SAVED A LOT OF MONEY BY NOT TAKING OUR WIVES TO THE EXPENSIVE RESTAURANT

SURE, TOM···YOU BEEN WITH MR. LEVON LONG?
TWENTY YEARS··· ···SINCE RIGHT AFTER I GOT OUT OF PRISON, ANNIE··· Y'SEE, I'M WHAT'S CALLED AN EX-CON···
YOU, TOM? OH, HOW COULD YOU EVER HAVE···?
I KILLED A MAN··· IT WAS HIM OR ME···I WAS A STRANGER···HE WAS A LOCAL BIG SHOT··· LUCKY I DIDN'T BURN···
I SHOULD BE SORRY··· BUT I'D DO IT AGAIN TO THAT MAN···HE DESERVED IT···BUT I'VE PAID···THAT STORY'S ENDED···
NOBODY HIRES AN EX-CON···BUT MR. LEVON, HE'S A WRITER··· HE KNEW MY STORY···IN FACT HE GOT ME OUT YEARS AHEAD O' TIME···
MR. LEVON'S A WRITER? DID HE MAKE A BOOK OUT O' YOUR STORY?
NOT HIM··· HE'S NEVER EVEN ONCE MENTIONED TH' MATTER··· HE'S A MAN ALMOST MAKES YOU BELIEVE TH' GOLDEN RULE···
EH···HERE COMES YOUR HELPER, BIG FRANK··· HI, FRANK!
DA···HELLO, ANNIE···I JUST BRUNG FRESH FLOWERS AN' PUT 'EM IN YOUR ROOM··· SWEET PEAS···
OH, I LOVE SWEET PEAS! THANK YOU, FRANK···
DA···DON'T MENTION IT··· I'LL PUT FRESH FLOWERS IN YOUR ROOM EVERY DAY···CAN I, TOM···HUH?···CAN I?
SURE, FRANK! YOU DO THAT···

Little Orphan Annie
SOMETIMES ANNIE SEEMS TO PROVE THAT OLD SAYING BY MICHEL DE MONTAIGNE: "WE ARE BORN TO INQUIRE AFTER TRUTH." WELL, F. BACON SAID, "KNOWLEDGE IS POWER."
GEE, MR. TROWEL, YOU SURE KEEP THIS BIG PLACE O' MR. LEVON'S LOOKIN' WUNNERFUL...
LIKING MY JOB MAKES IT EASY... AND MR. LEVON IS THE FINEST MAN I'VE EVER KNOWN... BUT I'M NOT "MR." TROWEL... I'M TOM, ANNIE...
SURE, TOM... YOU BEEN WITH MR. LEVON LONG?
TWENTY YEARS... ...SINCE RIGHT AFTER I GOT OUT OF PRISON, ANNIE... Y'SEE, I'M WHAT'S CALLED AN EX-CON...
YOU, TOM? OH, HOW COULD YOU EVER HAVE...?
I KILLED A MAN... IT WAS HIM OR ME... I WAS A STRANGER... HE WAS A LOCAL BIG SHOT... LUCKY I DIDN'T BURN...
I SHOULD BE SORRY... BUT I'D DO IT AGAIN TO THAT MAN... HE DESERVED IT... BUT I'VE PAID... THAT STORY'S ENDED...
NOBODY HIRES AN EX-CON... BUT MR. LEVON, HE'S A WRITER... HE KNEW MY STORY... IN FACT HE GOT ME OUT YEARS AHEAD O' TIME...
MR. LEVON'S A WRITER? DID HE MAKE A BOOK OUT O' YOUR STORY?
NOT HIM... HE'S NEVER EVEN ONCE MENTIONED TH' MATTER... HE'S A MAN ALMOST MAKES YOU BELIEVE TH' GOLDEN RULE...
EH... HERE COMES YOUR HELPER, BIG FRANK... HI, FRANK!
DA... HELLO, ANNIE... I JUST BRUNG FRESH FLOWERS AN' PUT 'EM IN YOUR ROOM... SWEET PEAS...
OH, I LOVE SWEET PEAS! THANK YOU, FRANK...
DA... DON'T MENTION IT... I'LL PUT FRESH FLOWERS IN YOUR ROOM EVERY DAY... CAN I, TOM... HUH?... CAN I?
SURE, FRANK! YOU DO THAT...
LOT O' PEOPLE ARE SCARED O' BIG FRANK... SAY HE OUGHT TO BE PUT AWAY...
SHUCKS! SANDY FIGGERS HE'S O.K... I'LL STRING ALONG WITH SANDY...

YEAH... FRANK'S GOT TH' MIND OF A CHILD... A SWEET, KIND, GENTLE CHILD... HE'D NEVER HARM A SOUL...
GUESS YOU KNOW TH' HOUSEKEEPER, MRS. REDIPS, PRETTY WELL, EH, TOM?
THAT OLD ADDER! POISON AT TWENTY FEET! ...BUT I SHOULDN'T HAVE SAID THAT... NO... I TALK TOO MUCH, ANNIE...
I FIGGER WE'RE GOIN' TO BE PRETTY GOOD FRIENDS, TOM... ...AND FRIENDS ARE FOR TALKIN' TO...

WE WANT ANGEL TO HAVE THE COMPANIONSHIP OF OTHER CHILDREN, MISS BRAINY.
ADMIRABLE PERSPICACITY, MISS SWEENEY! AND WE MAKE AN INDIVIDUAL ANALYSIS OF EACH CHILD'S PERSONALITY.
TINY TOT KINDERGARTEN MISS BRAINY... CHILD PSYCHOLOGIST
NOW, CHILDREN, WE'RE ALL GOING TO BE LITTLE ARTISTS FOR A WHILE. LET'S TAKE OUR CRAYONS AND COLOR THE PICTURE IN YOUR BOOK.
LATER
HOW DID ANGEL GET ALONG HER FIRST DAY, MISS BRAINY?
I WANT TO HAVE A TALK WITH YOU, MISS SWEENEY.
NOTE THE WAY ANGEL COLORED THIS PICTURE. THE SKY BROWN, THE GRASS PURPLE, THE TREES BLACK, ALL DARK, GLOOMY COLORS.
WHEN A CHILD USES ONLY SUCH MOROSE COLORS, MISS SWEENEY, IT'S A BAD SIGN. I FEAR SOME DEEP, PSYCHIC TROUBLE.
OH, DEAR.
..CK HOME. ..CILLE ..S ROSCO ..E BAD ..WS.
SEE! ANGEL USED NOTHING BUT DARK CRAYONS. MISS BRAINY FEARS THERE'S SOME DEEP, TERRIBLE REASON BACK OF IT.
MAYBE IT'S US. MAYBE WE DON'T KNOW HOW TO HANDLE A LITTLE GIRL.

I SIMPLY CAN'T STAND IT, BABY SISTER! IF SOMETHING'S WRONG WITH ANGEL, I'VE GOT TO KNOW WHAT IT IS.
YOU'RE RIGHT, BROTHER. I'M GOING TO HAVE A TALK WITH HER.
IT'S SUCH A PRETTY PICTURE YOU COLORED IN SCHOOL, ANGEL. BUT--BUT CAN YOU TELL AUNT LUCILLE WHY YOU COLORED EVERYTHING SO DARK---BROWNS, PURPLES, BLACKS?
SURE, AUNT LUCILLE.
THEY WERE ALL THE CRAYONS I HAD.

THE ANGRY JUNGLE FOLK BREAK IN THE GATES OF THE HOUSE AT GREEN VALLEY~
FOR A MOMENT, THEY SEE A HUGE SHADOW IN THE LIGHTED WINDOW.
BUT THE JUNGLE FOLK ARE DRIVEN AWAY BY MACHINE-GUN FIRE~AIMED OVER THEIR HEADS~
THE PHANTOM MUST KNOW OF THIS MONSTER AT GREEN VALLEY WE CANNOT FACE THE GUNS!
YES, YES. PHANTOM!

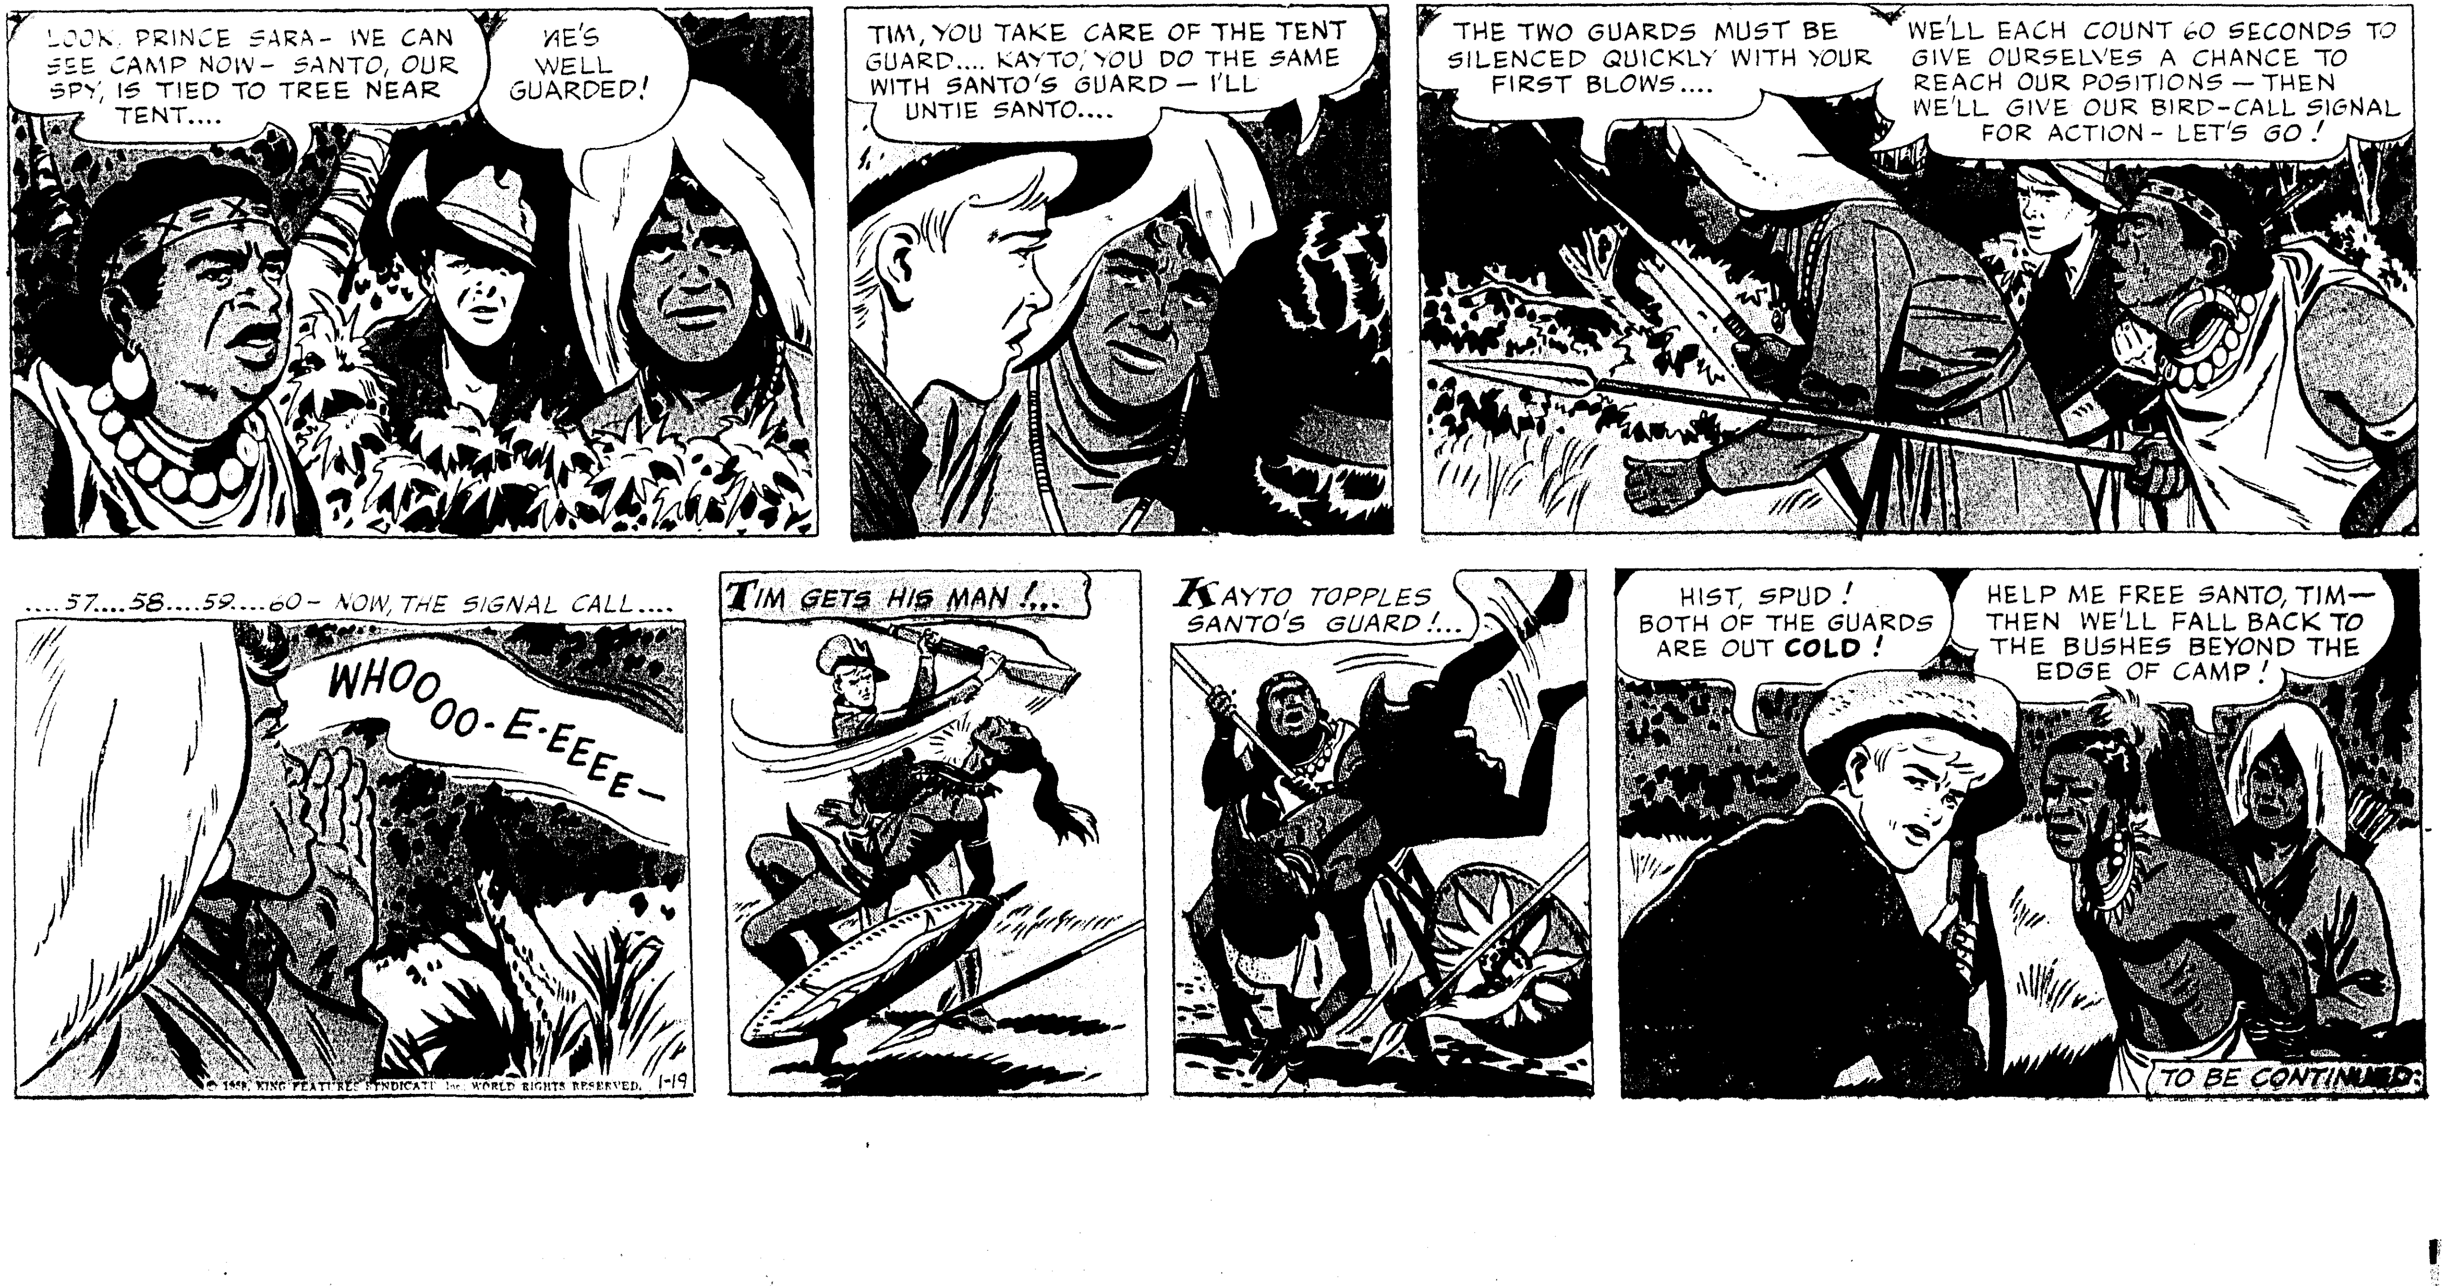
TIM TYLER'S LUCK

by Lyman Young



LOOK, PRINCE SARA- WE CAN SEE CAMP NOW- SANTO, OUR SPY, IS TIED TO TREE NEAR TENT....
HE'S WELL GUARDED!
TIM, YOU TAKE CARE OF THE TENT GUARD.... KAYTO, YOU DO THE SAME WITH SANTO'S GUARD — I'LL UNTIE SANTO....
THE TWO GUARDS MUST BE SILENCED QUICKLY WITH YOUR FIRST BLOWS....
WE'LL EACH COUNT 60 SECONDS TO GIVE OURSELVES A CHANCE TO REACH OUR POSITIONS — THEN WE'LL GIVE OUR BIRD-CALL SIGNAL FOR ACTION - LET'S GO!
....57....58....59....60 - NOW, THE SIGNAL CALL....
WHOOOO-E-EEEE-
1-19
TIM GETS HIS MAN!...
KAYTO TOPPLES SANTO'S GUARD!...
HIST, SPUD! BOTH OF THE GUARDS ARE OUT COLD!
HELP ME FREE SANTO, TIM— THEN WE'LL FALL BACK TO THE BUSHES BEYOND THE EDGE OF CAMP!

MOON MULLINS
by Frank Willard
MOON, I KNOW WE NEVER LIKED EACH OTHER, BUT I WAS WONDERING IF YOU'D LET BYGONES BE BYGONES AND OBLIGE ME WITH A BIG BLACK EYE?
SURE!
YOU SEE, I WANT TO MOVE FROM THE NEIGHBORHOOD AND MY WIFE DOESN'T... HOWEVER, IF SHE THINKS I AM IN DANGER HERE, SHE WILL GLADLY MOVE, SO—GO ON...
WILBER! DON'T TELL ME YOU'VE BEEN HAVING TROUBLE WITH THAT MULLINS PERSON AGAIN?
YES, HE RAN ME AROUND THE BLOCK BEFORE I COULD GET AWAY FROM HIM...
I'LL CALL THE POLICE!
NO, IT MIGHT AGGRAVATE THE FELLOW... AS IT IS, HE SAYS HE'LL BEAT ME UP EVERY TIME HE SEES ME IF I DON'T PROMISE TO LEAVE TOWN... HE'LL BE HERE IN AN HOUR FOR MY ANSWER...
HELLO, JULIE! TELL COUSIN JOE I WANT HIM TO COME OVER HERE AS FAST AS HE CAN...
COUSIN JOE? OH, MY WORD!
LEAVIN' SO SOON, MOON?
YEH, I GOT A APPOINTMENT TO DO A PAL OF MINE A FAVOR...
WELL, WHY DON'T YA ANSWER TH' DOOR? COME OUT HERE! YER TIME'S UP IN THIS NEIGHBORHOOD, YA DUMB SAP!
ARE YA COMIN' OUT AND FIGHT LIKE A MAN OR DO I HAVE TO COME IN AND GET YOU?
YEH!

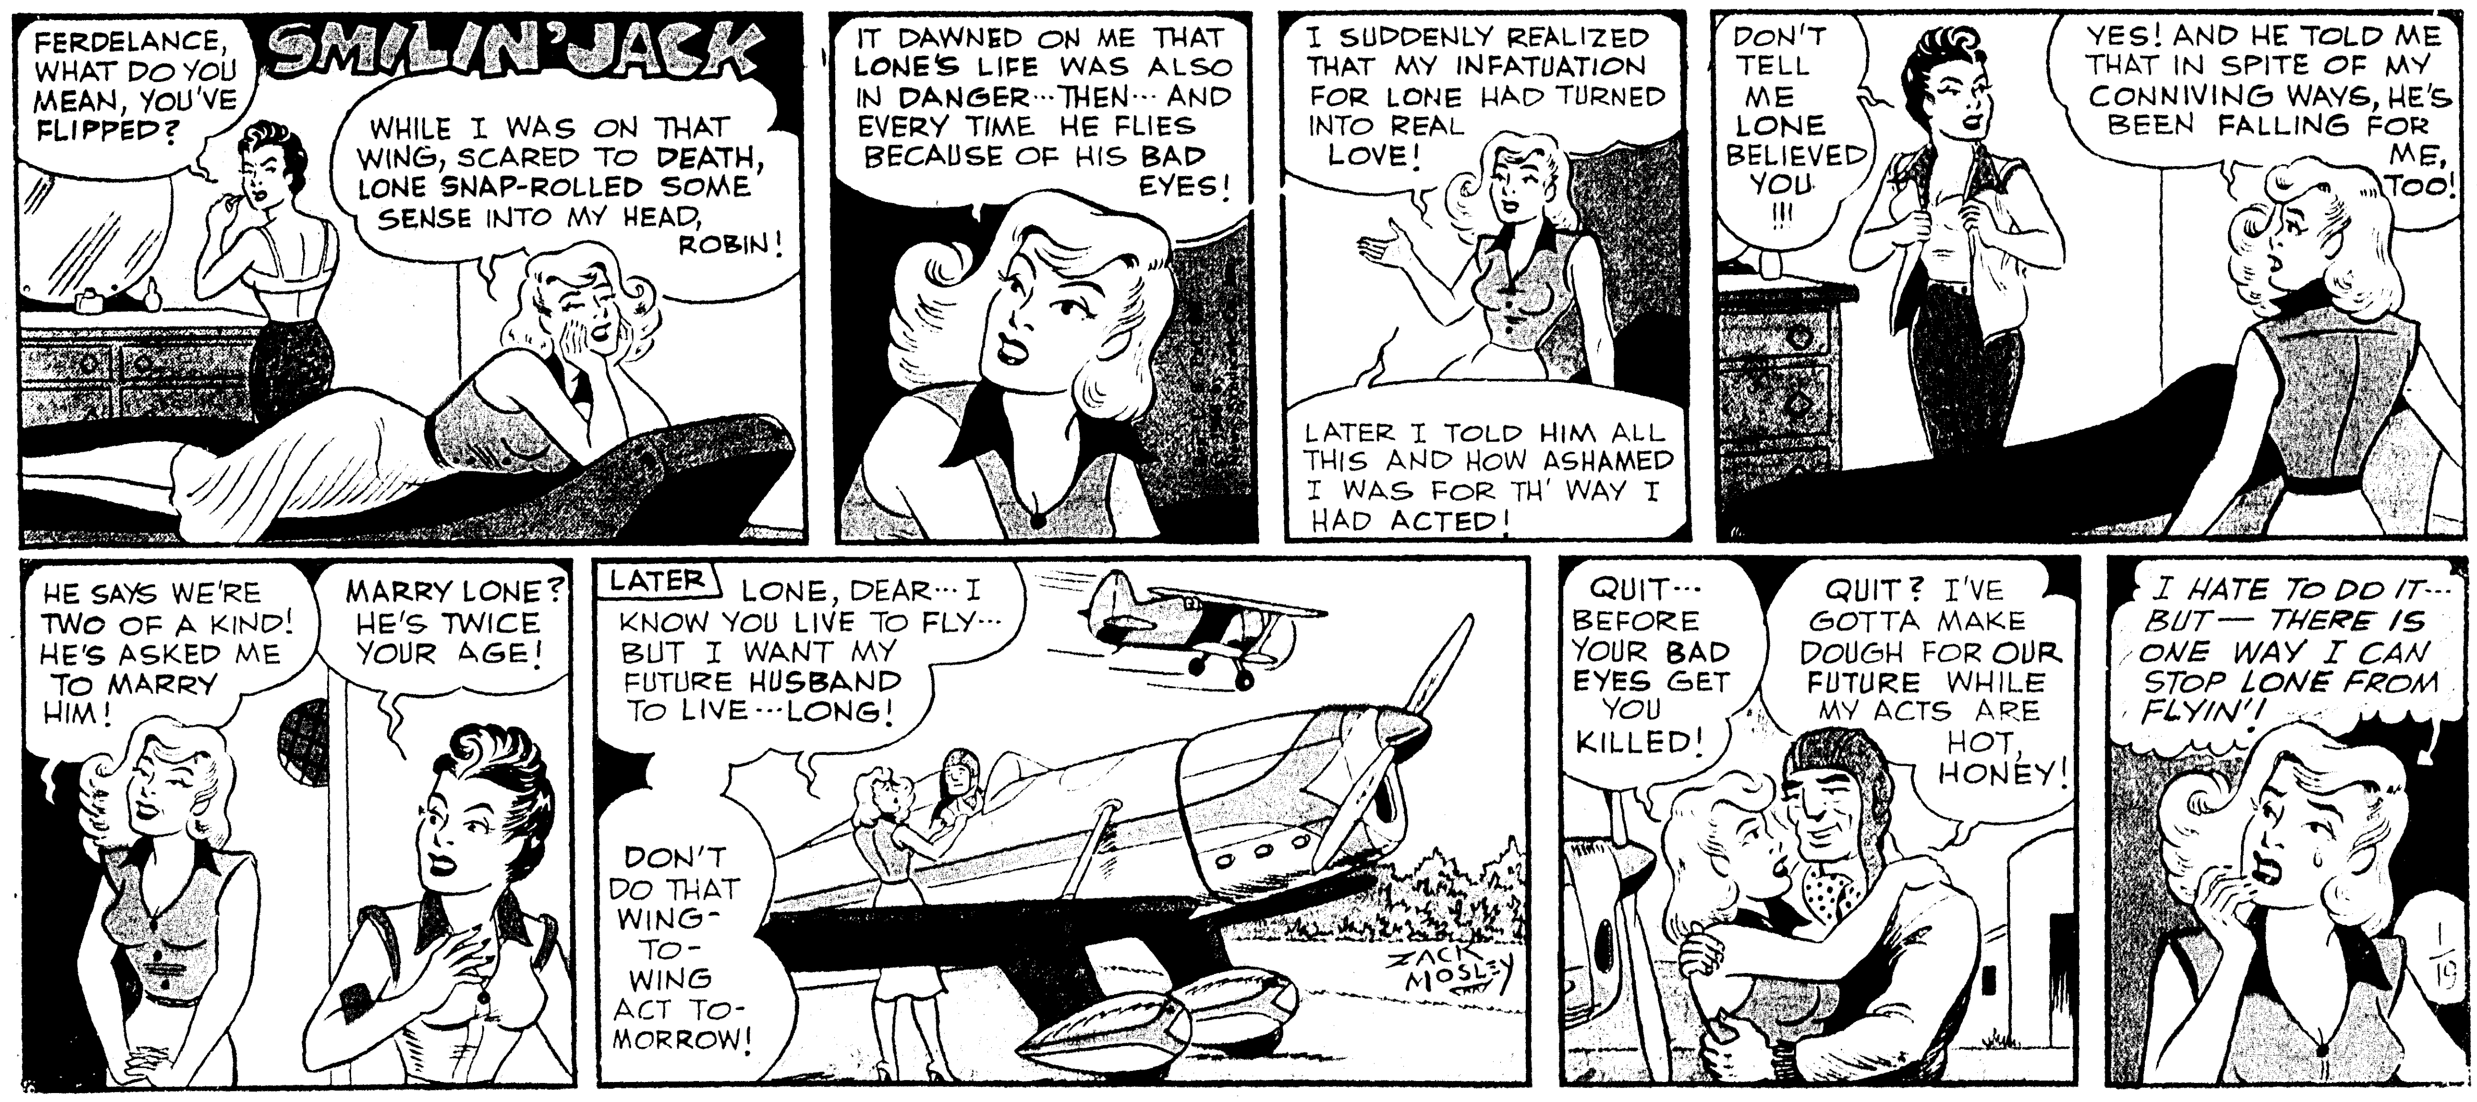
NO, I AIN'T GOT THE SLIGHTEST IDEA HOW IT HAPPENED, DOCTOR... A NEIGHBOR HOLLERED FOR ME TO BRING A WHEELBARROW AND SCOOP UP MR. MULLINS... SHE WAS AFRAID HE'D CATCH COLD LAYING THERE IN THE ALLEY IN THAT CONDITION...



SMILIN' JACK
FERDELANCE, WHAT DO YOU MEAN, YOU'VE FLIPPED?
WHILE I WAS ON THAT WING, SCARED TO DEATH, LONE SNAP-ROLLED SOME SENSE INTO MY HEAD, ROBIN!
IT DAWNED ON ME THAT LONE'S LIFE WAS ALSO IN DANGER··· THEN··· AND EVERY TIME HE FLIES BECAUSE OF HIS BAD EYES!
I SUDDENLY REALIZED THAT MY INFATUATION FOR LONE HAD TURNED INTO REAL LOVE!
LATER I TOLD HIM ALL THIS AND HOW ASHAMED I WAS FOR TH' WAY I HAD ACTED!
DON'T TELL ME LONE BELIEVED YOU !!!
YES! AND HE TOLD ME THAT IN SPITE OF MY CONNIVING WAYS, HE'S BEEN FALLING FOR ME, TOO!
HE SAYS WE'RE TWO OF A KIND! HE'S ASKED ME TO MARRY HIM!
MARRY LONE? HE'S TWICE YOUR AGE!
LATER
LONE, DEAR··· I KNOW YOU LIVE TO FLY··· BUT I WANT MY FUTURE HUSBAND TO LIVE···LONG!
DON'T DO THAT WING-TO-WING ACT TO-MORROW!
ZACK MOSLEY
QUIT··· BEFORE YOUR BAD EYES GET YOU KILLED!
QUIT? I'VE GOTTA MAKE DOUGH FOR OUR FUTURE WHILE MY ACTS ARE HOT, HONEY!
I HATE TO DO IT··· BUT— THERE IS ONE WAY I CAN STOP LONE FROM FLYIN'!

OOOH! MY POOR ACHING FEET...I'VE BEEN MAKING THE ROUNDS OF ALL MY NEPHEWS AND NIECES... SEEMS NONE OF THEM IS IN TODAY...OOOH!
WE'RE ABOUT TO HAVE OUR DINNER ...PLEASE JOIN US!
UH...I'LL HAVE ANOTHER PIECE OF PIE AND THEN I'LL TELEPHONE NEXT DOOR TO SEE IF THEY'RE BACK!
I MUST PUT JOANNIE TO BED... GOOD NIGHT, MR. GRIBB!
GOOD NIGHT, MISTER!
I DON'T LIKE TO CRITICIZE ...BUT YOUR WIFE DON'T PUT ENOUGH SALT IN THE ROAST...AND THE COFFEE'S NOT NEARLY STRONG ENOUGH!
?!
IT'S ALMOST MIDNIGHT AND THERE'S STILL NO ANSWER!
UH...LET'S PLAY SOME CHECKERS ...IT'LL PASS THE TIME! THEY SHOULD BE HOME SOON!
CAN'T FIGURE IT... I'M A CHECKER CHAMP AND YOU'VE WON 20 STRAIGHT GAMES!!
YAWN...IT'S 3 A.M. AND NO SIGN OF YOUR RELATIVES! WOULD YOU LIKE TO USE THE SPARE ROOM?
NEXT DAY
GOOD MORNING... WHAT WOULD YOU LIKE FOR BREAKFAST?
I'LL COOK IT MYSELF... THE RIGHT WAY!
LATER
POOR MAN... HE'S SO DISAPPOINTED!
THE GRIBBS MUST BE AWAY FOR THE WEEKEND!
CAN'T UNDERSTAND IT! EVERY TIME I COME TO VISIT MY NEPHEWS OR NIECES THEY'RE NEVER HOME!
M. Leff 1/19
THANK GOODNESS! HE'S FINALLY GIVEN UP...I DON'T THINK WE COULD HAVE HELD OUT MUCH LONGER!
WHEW! TOO BAD THE PALOOKAS HAD TO BE BURDENED WITH UNCLE OSCAR... I'LL CALL THEM AND EXPLAIN!
